GUARD YOUR EQUITY!

Planning to sell your home soon? Do you know how much equity you have in your home? Who will help you protect that precious financial stake?

When planning the sale of your home, determine the amount of equity available to you from the sale – before marketing your home. Equity is calculated by deducting the amount you currently owe from the present value of the property.

The first step is to make a determination of present value. This can be done in two ways. First, ask your real estate agent for a "Competitive Market Analysis." This report will show the sale prices of other, similar homes, which have sold recently. The purpose is to help you arrive at a probable selling price for your property.

Another way to establish the current value of your home is to have an appraisal made by a certified appraiser. This unbiased evaluation will give you the "fair market value" of your home, another indicator of the probable final sale price a buyer is likely to pay.

To determine your equity, subtract your current loan balance from the present value you've established. What remains is called equity. It's the part you get to keep upon the sale of your home.

Your best protection against loss of equity is the agent you choose to represent you in the sale of your home. It is the agent's responsibility to attract qualified buyers, and negotiate the highest possible sale price. As your representative, the agent has a fiduciary obligation to represent your best interests.

The agent is experienced at negotiating important aspects of a sale, such as price, terms, possession date, and other details. Buyers can be qualified for both their motivation and financial ability to complete the purchase. The benefit to you is the enjoyment of the highest possible amount of equity.

If you'd like to sell your home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE!

Lewis & Clark Journey To Be Program Topic

Local historian Paul Shogren will present a program detailing the history of the Lewis and Clark Expedition at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 15, at the Addison Methodist Church in Addison, Pa. The two-hour program is being offered by the Old Petersburg-Addison Historical Society as part of the observance of the expedition's bicentennial.

"The Lewis and Clark Expedition had a profound effect on the western development of the United States, and many other aspects of American history," said Shogren, who has taught classes at Garrett College and who currently serves as vice president of the Garrett County Historical Society.

"Even though the expedition fell short of its primary objective of finding a water linkage between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, the journals, maps, plant and animal studies, and notes on the Native American Indian Societies amounted to a western encyclopedia," Shogren stated. "The expedition set a pattern for government sponsored scientific exploration in the United States."

The facility is handicap accessible, and refreshments will be served at the program. For additional information, persons may call Patty Kelley at 814-395-4291.

AND THE BAGPIPES PLAYED ON – The rain could hardly have fallen with more force at the opening ceremonies of this year's Relay for Life Friday evening, but the cloudburst did not stop the participants from giving the whole thing a good, valiant try. The Garrett College Pipes and Drums stepped out anyway and serenaded the obviously smaller crowd around the track for the first few laps. Walkers stayed on the flooding loop for several hours, with the rain pelting them hard. When the track finally flooded across, organizers canceled the luminary ceremony and officially suspended the relay at about 9 p.m. Some walkers stayed, though, forced to nearly swim around some parts of the track where the water was reportedly as deep as two feet. The rains did finally end, and the water receded, allowing participants to get back into the swing of things at about 7 a.m. Saturday. And despite it all, participants raised about $109,000 to benefit the American Cancer Society and its local efforts for those sick with the disease. Good job! Photo by John McEwen.

Crellin Groups Reclaiming Old Coal Tipple Site

The Crellin Community Corps of Discovery, Crellin Elementary School and PTO, the town's improvement committee, and other groups are working together to reclaim and develop an old coal gob pile and tipple site behind the school. Project coordinator Gary Yoder, Maryland Department of Natural Resources, discussed the plans with the Garrett County commissioners this week.

"The community has really stepped up," said Yoder. "Everyone seems to be really involved [in this project]." He added that there was a "real vibrant learning environment" at the school. The commissioners noted that Crellin residents had a strong "community spirit."

Also involved in the project are the Garrett County Board of Education, Garrett College, Garrett County Community Action Committee, U.S. Soil Conservation District, Bureau of Mines, Maryland Department of Natural Resources, and Deep Creek Lake Design Studio, which drew up and donated a tentative design plan for the site.

The "brain child" behind the project was principal Dana McCauley of Crellin Elementary, noted Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator. She has had the idea of reclaiming the coal pile for some time and eventually approached Yoder about a possible project.

To help with the clean up, Columbia Gas recently awarded the Crellin Community Corps of Discovery a $5,000 grant through its Environmental Challenge Fund.

The project coordinator said the approximately five-acre area was not an active

THE DEDICATION OF MANY FLAGS – In celebration of Flag Day on Monday, a special ceremony was held at the Veterans Park in Oakland, located at the intersection of Third and Oak streets. The flags of all branches of the United States military now fly at the site, raised and dedicated at the event hosted by the American Legion Proctor Kildow Post #71. In honor of Ronald Reagan, the flags remain at half-mast for the required 30 days following the death of a former president. Monday's ceremony was opened by Oakland mayor Asa McCain. The master of ceremonies was Moses Miller, and an invocation was given by Rev. John Grant, past chaplain of the American Legion Department of Maryland. Singers Dave Martin and Tim Miller provided patriotic music, and Jim Seeders gave a speech. A 21-gun salute by the VFW Post #10077 followed the posting of the flags. Veterans, soldiers, Boy Scouts, and members of the public attended the event, which was closed with the playing of "Taps." The project was suggested by Cris Helbig, organizers said. R. Robinette Not Prosecuted On Drug Charges

Several drug and alcohol related cases were heard recently in Garrett County Circuit Court.

Five counts against Rachel Marie Robinette, 26, of Morgantown, W.Va., were not prosecuted by the state's attorney. She had been charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, conspiracy to distribute marijuana, and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute on school property.

The charges stem from an investigation conducted earlier this year by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force involving Erica Lynn

Events Slated For 27th Annual Grantsville Days Celebration

Plans have been finalized for the 27th annual Grantsville Days celebration, slated for June 25 to June 27. One change to be noted is the parade will be held on Friday, June 25, at 6:35 p.m. In past years, the parade began at 7:15 p.m.

This time change was made in order to allow parade watchers more time to enjoy the activities and entertainment at the Grantsville Park, according to chairman Duane Stein.

Stein also asked participants to please remember that throwing candy is not permitted during the parade.

"People may walk along with the parade and hand candy to children," he said. "But for safety reasons, we cannot allow any candy to be thrown along the parade route. Anyone who violates this rule will not be allowed to participate in the parade next year."

Special features for Grantsville Days this year will include more rides for young children, including a small Ferris wheel and a large inflated slide.

Children's activities will be held inside the Little League field, taking advantage of the new field lights that were recently installed from a State of Maryland Parks and Recreation Grant received by the town of Grantsville.

A new band, Wolf Creek Session, will perform on Saturday from 4 to 7 p.m. The quartet's music is described as "a refreshing blend of traditional Appalachian songs and music deeply rooted in Celtic influences."

The rabies vaccination clinics will be offered from to 5 to 6 p.m. on these days at the following locations: Monday at the Bittinger fire hall; Tuesday at the Garrett College maintenance bay; Wednesday at the Deer Park fire hall; and Thursday at the Finzel fire hall.

The vaccination cost is $5 per animal, and Health Department officials remind the public that only pets under the control of a responsible person may be brought to a clinic. Dogs must be on a leash, and cats and ferrets must be in a cage

MSP Jail Men Driving Alleged Stolen Vehicle

Two Illinois brothers stopped by a Maryland State Police trooper this morning were reportedly driving a stolen vehicle, according to Illinois authorities. The pair were apprehended while traveling east on Interstate 68 east of Grantsville.

At approximately 6:10 a.m., Tfc. K. Stakem stopped a vehicle near Lower New Germany Road that matched the description of a vehicle sought in connection with a misdemeanor theft incident at the Keyser's Ridge Trading Post. The two Illinois residents in the vehicle, Steven J. and Michael A. Kile, age 23 and 22, respectively, had allegedly driven away from the Trading Post's gas pumps without paying.

A computer check revealed that the vehicle had been reported stolen in their hometown of Joliet, Ill., yesterday. Both were placed under arrest and charged with theft of a motor vehicle and misdemeanor theft, and

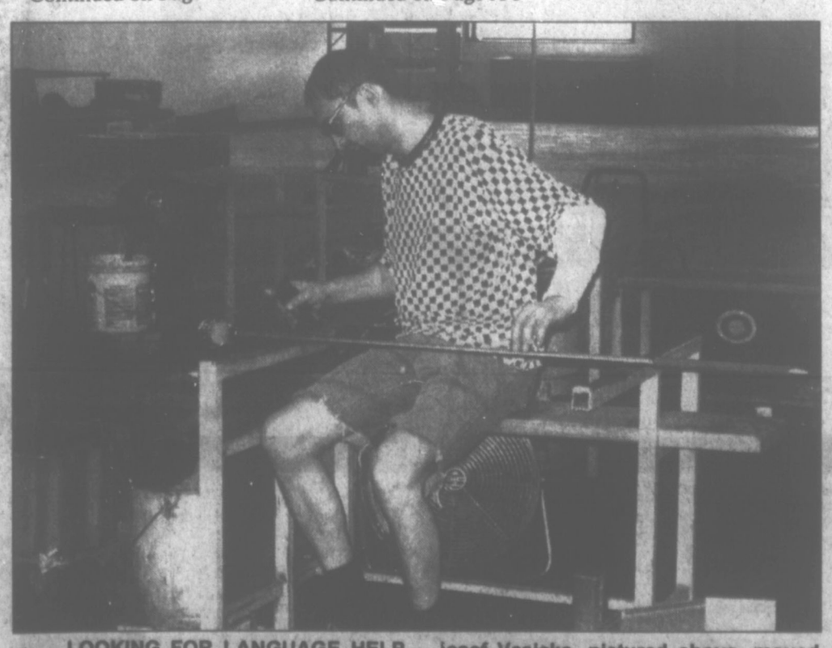
Completed DCL Capacity Study To Be Discussed

The finalized study of the carrying capacity of Deep Creek Lake will be discussed during a public meeting slated for 11 a.m. Saturday, June 26, at the Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park. The meeting will be hosted by the DCL Policy and Review Board and lake management staff from the Department of Natural Resources, and consultants from Environmental Resources Management (ERM), the private firm contracted to undertake the study, will lead the discussion.

The ERM report appraises the current state and future trends of boating and commercial uses of the lake. The firm's analysis, which was undertaken last summer, will be used by DNR and the DCL Policy and Review Board to guide future management decisions about the use of the lake. Information about peak boating use and management alternatives are included in the report, as well as an analysis of public acceptance of those alternatives.

The final report is slated to be posted on the DCL State Park web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/publiclands/western/deepcreeklake.html prior to the meeting. A copy of the report will also be available for public reference at the Discovery Center during regular business hours.



LOOKING FOR LANGUAGE HELP – Josef Vasicka, pictured above, moved from Czechoslovakia to Oakland last week to begin his work as a glass blower for Simon Pearce. He is well trained in glass blowing, but needs some assistance with the language. Right now, Josef is working closely with Martin Madera, another Simon Pearce worker who is also from Czechoslovakia. Vasicka is trained enough to work with an apprentice, but with the language barrier he stays near Madera. Persons willing to help Vasicka with learning the language are encouraged to call Marilyn Poston at 301-334-2397 or Simon Pearce at 301-334-5277. Vasicka said he hopes to move his wife and two sons, ages 5 and 11, to America in the near future. Simon Pearce recently hired four new apprentices, and now employs 25 glass blowers.

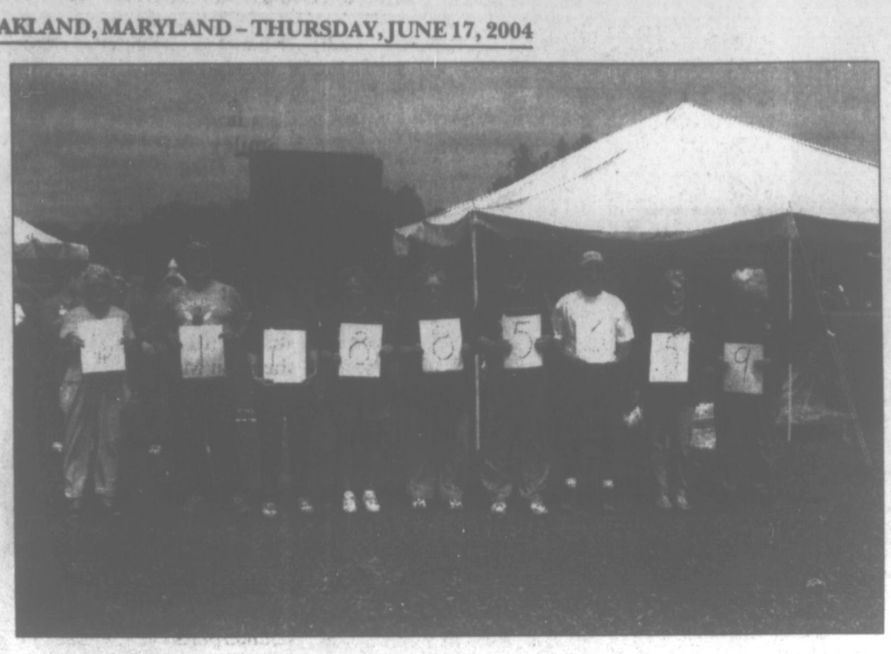
In other police news, a Republic, Pa., man faces drug charges after police pulled over his vehicle last week for crossing the center and white lines on Garrett Highway near Mountain View Drive.

Thomas James Phelan, 22, was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia.

According to police, a multi-colored smoking pipe with burnt marijuana residue was discovered in plain view in the glove compartment of the vehicle. After interviewing the driver and four passengers, Phelan admitted to police it belonged to him.



THE MONEY POURED IN (ALONG WITH THE RAIN) at this year's Relay for Life, with a total of $108,853.59 raised in the soggy event. Torrential downpours and a flooded track resulted in the unprecedented closing down of the overnight portion, although some stalwart teams stuck it out even as they nearly had to swim around the loop. Shown above are participants as they display the impressive total of funds, and shown below is the overall team winner, The Browns. Pictured in the front from left are Mildred O'Haver, Mandy Ashby, Linda Brown, and Linda White. In the back, same order, are Kenny Thomas, Ima Thomas, George Brown, Dan White, and Travis Brown. Not available for the photo were team members Buddy O'Haver and Robin and Randy Weagley.

David Charles Hoadley, 54, failed field sobriety tests, and was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), DUI per se, driving while impaired (DWI), and negligent driving.

In a separate incident that same day, John Pilkerton, 29, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested at the Overlook North Apartments for drunk driving, police said.

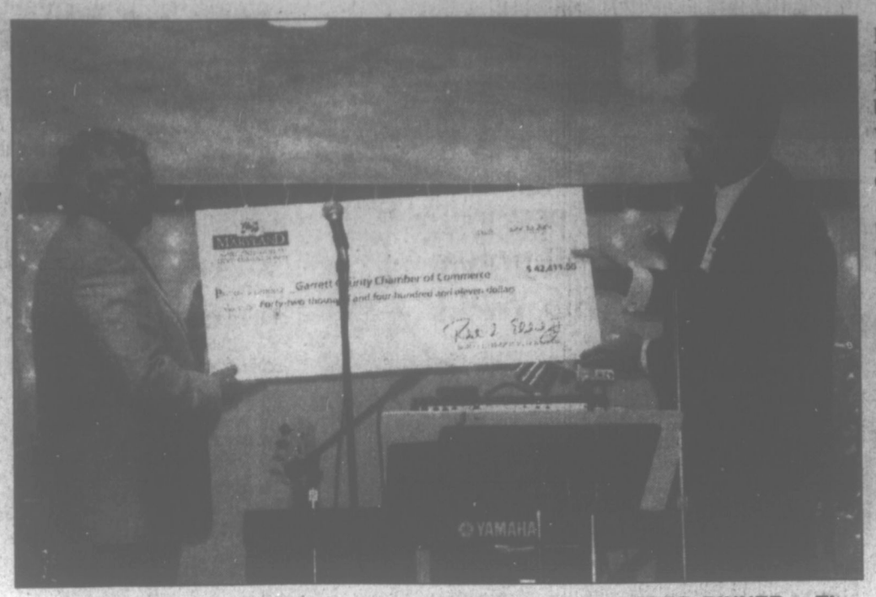
He was charged with DUI, DUI per se, and DWI.

MLP Woman Hurt In Single-Vehicle Crash

A Mtn. Lake Park woman was injured Saturday morning when she lost control of her vehicle and hit a tree near Deep Creek Lake, according to the Maryland State Police.

Shortly after 10 a.m., Brenda Sue Donham, 49, was traveling east on Mayhew Inn Road, approaching Skippers Point Road, when she reportedly failed to negotiate a left curve and drove off the right side of the road and onto some loose gravel. When she overcorrected to the left her vehicle skidded across both lanes of traffic, off the westbound shoulder, and struck the tree head-on.

Donham was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company also responded to the scene.



STATE FUNDS RECEIVED, MANY HONORED AT CHAMBER DINNER – The Chamber of Commerce held its annual dinner last week, and numerous people and groups were honored: Above, Charlie Ross, chamber president and CEO, accepts check for $42,411 in state funds from Dennis Castleman, the assistant secretary of the Department of Business and Economic Development for Tourism, Film and the Arts and chief marketing officer of the state of Maryland. The funds are generated through a matching formula to assist in the promotion of tourism for Garrett County. Castleman praised the tremendous efforts of the chamber and its director of tourism marketing, Deb Clatterbuck, in the success of its marketing campaigns. Below, Ross congratulates Garrett County commissioner Ernie Gregg and Monty Pagenhardt as they accepted the Favorite Daughters Award from the chamber on behalf of the Maryland Class 1A State Champion Southern High School Rams Girls' Basketball Team. The team was led by Gregg's granddaughter Robbin and Pagenhardt's daughter Justine. Also receiving a Favorite Son Award was their retiring coach, Don Stemple, on the far right.

more and was declared in 2003 to be "Baltimore's Best" by Baltimore magazine.

Jan Russell, chamber board member and chairperson of the Vacation Guide Task Force, and Mike Weisbach of Savage River Lodge received the Wine Spectator Award for Excellence 2003, and were named a Conde Nast Johansen's "Recommended" Hotel for 2004 and a Maryland Top 10 Romantic Getaway by CapitalBay.com.

A second set of Favorite Sons and Daughters awards went to those people – not members of the chamber – who have achieved fame for the county by their efforts. This year these achievements were dominated by sports.

The winners were: Southern High School state champion wrestler Scott Wildesen; Northern High School state champion wrestler Casey Kamp; and the Southern Rams Girls' basketball team, Class 1A champs, led by Robbin Gregg, who was named Cumberland Times-News Area High School Girls' Basketball Player of the Year, plus Justine Pagenhardt and Becca Flanagan.

An additional Favorite Son Award went to the team's retiring coach, Don Stemple.

Another Favorite Daughter Award went to the Lady Lakers, who were the 2004 Maryland JUCO Women's Basketball State Tournament Champions as well as Division II Region XX and District J champions.

The last Favorite Son Award went to "a very special young man," Austin Meshach Browning, for his "constancy in support" of and in participation in the chamber-sponsored "Living History Programs" commemorating the county's important role in the French & Indian War.

"He epitomizes our commitment to education as a number one priority," said Ross, as he made the presentation, "and our pursuit of both nature and heritage tourism as part of county's future. I was proud to sit with his parents and all four of his grandparents recently at his graduation. His award here reflects two things: what he cares about and what he knows. He cares about heritage."

A seventh generation descendant of the legendary Meshach Browning, Austin has shown up and joined in the fun and learning of the chamber's two "Living History Programs" at the 4-H Camp commemorating George Washington's first two journeys through Garrett County as part of the French & Indian War.

He is already a collector and a beginner re-enactor of this period. He was given the 5th grade Woodmen of the World History Award at Broad Ford Elementary School. He was accompanied that evening by his parents, Teresa and Dave Browning, and his grandparents, Tom and Juanita Browning. Grandparents Faye and Walt Livengood were out of town but were recognized as well.

The accomplishments of President's Award winner, Jim Hinebaugh, were listed in highlighted form prior to the presentation of his award. Some highlights were the MEDCO building at the Northern Industrial Park; the GIEC center; grant funding for the Phenix building; adventure sports, Phase I, Exhibit Hall, Keyser's Ridge Industrial Park and Oakland broadband network; numerous water and sewer projects funding; ClosetMaid recruitment; and PIVOT.

The requirements set for the President's Award include: demonstrated character and leadership to plan and execute that plan; contribution to the improved quality of life in the county through improvement in the business environment that enriches the lives of its citizens; achievements in building a greater sense of community by literally building new aspects to the community; and promotion of Garrett County beyond its borders.

The winners of the Heise Entrepreneurial Spirit Award must meet these criteria: originated and developed business from inception; willingness to take risks with possibility of losing all; involved in the community; high ethical standards; and demonstrated leadership (through one or more of the following): by overcoming a formidable problem that threatened a business' existence, or by embarking on an opportunity that will make an important contribution to Garrett County's business environment.

The Heise Entrepreneurial Spirit Award Committee, comprising previous winners, selected three nominees to be voted on by the general membership. Past honorees are Jonathan "Smiley" Kessler, Bill Sisler, Olen Beitzel, Johnny Marple, and Jim Flanigan Sr., who presented the Roszells with this year's award. Also in attendance were Helmut "Ace" Heise and his wife Evelyn, for whom the award is named, with their son Martin.

Also appearing before the group was the assistant secretary of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development, Dennis Castleman. He conveyed congratulations to chamber Director of Tourism Marketing Deb Clatterbuck on a retreat for her counterparts from across the state the week before, and presented Ross with the state's check of $42,411 for marketing.

Board of directors chairman Bob Browning presided over the annual meeting portion of the evening, extending congratulations to the new members of the board. They are Len Eiswert, Joyce Bishoff, and Pam Trickett, as well as retiring board members Dave Thomas, Marta Schroyer, and Karen Myers.

During his comments he acknowledged the "tremendous challenges" to business and growth in the chamber membership and services to meet them.

"Our marketing continues to grow; innovations and budgets for marketing will expand again next year; the Train Station is off to a rousing start, and the web site finds new ways to serve the members as well as the public; and membership services in seminars, information sharing, and greater communications has never been greater. Our growth in membership is up 15%," Browning said.

Ross added that media exposure outside the area has never been greater.

"In addition to an upcoming feature in Baltimore magazine and a live broadcast on WTTG, Channel 5 in Washington, of eight "drop-ins" from Muddy Creek Falls just prior to the Highland Festival, Garrett County is scheduled, we understand, to be featured in the August issue of Southern Living magazine and at the same time, in AAA Touch magazine."

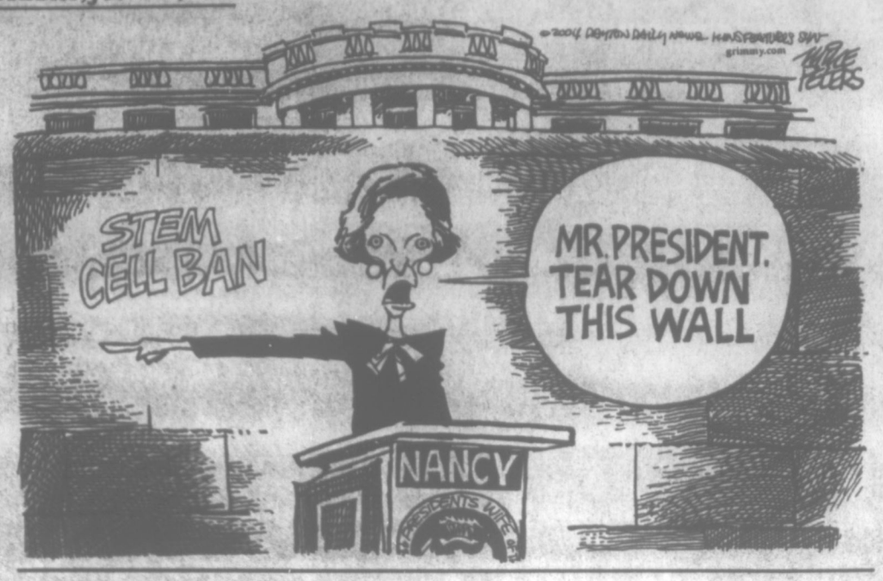
That Damned Lake...

Yesterday's issue of the Cumberland Times-News carries a quarter-page advertisement placed by Newspapers In Education, which is a program that puts newspapers in school classrooms across the country to encourage young people to read and to help them learn about print media and the importance of the First Amendment, among other good things. The Times-News is among the many newspapers that participate in what we think is generally a fine program.

In the advertisement there is a cartoon dog out in the yard with a rolled-up newspaper in his mouth, and in front of him is a small stack of other newspapers. The "bubble" that is above his head reads, "I can't just leave these laying around. People will know there's no one home!" The glaring — for some of us, painful — error, of course, is the blatant, incorrect use of the word "laying." The correct word in this case is "lying," as anyone who works for the NIE should certainly know.

We are almost positive that this was a camera-ready, drop-in ad, which means the Cumberland Times-News staff had nothing to do with this misuse of the English language. But how incredibly embarrassing for an organization that is named Newspapers In Education. EDUCATION!? Wow. We can hardly stand it here in our newsroom. Anybody can make a "typo" (and we make our fair share), but we're pretty sure this is not a typo. It appears to be just plain ignorance by the folks at the home office of NIE, who surely proofread the ad.

Upon pointing this out to our own proofreader, she immediately shared with us a more local — and frankly, hilarious — error. We really don't want to say what the little promotional publication is, but the following is a sentence in the booklet that gives a little history of Deep Creek Lake: "Deep Creek Lake is a man-made lake that was damned in 1925..." damned in 1925! We can picture a strange guy in an all-black robe standing atop the DAM of Deep Creek Lake on a gloomy day back in 1925, waiving some kind of sinister-looking scepter, and saying something like, "Deep Creek Lake, be damned!" That's kind of scary. Why would anyone want to come spend time on a lake that has been damned?



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I was struck the other day by the irony of the billboard signs on Route 42 near the Country Pride store. On one side it says "Wood Products Logs, Timber and Land," and below this sign is an advertisement for the U.S. Air Force encouraging young recruits to "Aim High." On the opposite side is an ad for protecting forests saying, "The most dangerous animals in the forest don't live there," implying man is the most destructive of our forests. Below this, the sign reads, " A world at prayer is a world at peace." I wonder if the placement of these signs was intentional.

So anyway, I got to thinking of other ironic stuff. It's ironic that a young man in this country can't legally drink a beer at age 18, but he can go off and fight a war. It's ironic that if you don't click it you'll get a ticket, but the only one you're putting at risk is yourself. Whereas, if you cross the white line into the bike lane and pass on the right, there is no penalty. That is, at least not in Garrett County, where our police seem to ignore this law. And yet, when drivers do this they are placing pedestrians at risk.

I'm sure I can think of many more things that strike me as ironic, but I'll save them for another day.

To the Editor:

In regard to a letter from last week's paper, I would just like to say a few words.

My dear Mr. Smith, what a negative message! You probably ruined some people's whole week by suggesting that Yogi or Boo-Boo be murdered by some savage human, claiming that they were protecting their property or some other silly excuse, like their family's safety. Don't you realize that we are trespassing on their hunting grounds by building our homes here in Jellystone Park?

We here in the enlightened state of Maryland, land of the free and home of the flush tax, certainly can afford to spend every million it takes to transport any poor dislocated bear who has had his environment invaded by us. What do you think all these empty government buses riding around every day are for anyway?

I just hope none of the bears happen to read your letter while rooting through someone's trash for goodies. They would probably need many months of treatment with the bear psychiatrist to make them aware that not everyone here in the county of Deep Creek feels the way you do.

Just most of us!

To the Editor:

Often, as I drive down Dennett Road, I notice how well people maintain their property. Houses and yards are well cared for; flowers and shrubs look lovely. Winter's farm is well maintained. I saw some children and an adult planting flowers in front of Dennett Road School. I saw a man using a weed-eater to cut down weeds along the street next to the track and the softball fields.

But the property across from the football parking lot is a glaring exception to this beautiful neighborhood. I think that a giant must have come creeping down Dennett Road one night, gobbled up two big, old houses, then vomited several times, and nobody cleaned it up. As you casually cruise by, you notice two empty foundations, piles of house rubble, and broken furniture. Maybe this property isn't under the jurisdiction of either Oakland or Mtn. Lake Park, and there are no ordinances requiring the owners to clean up this unsightly, unsafe mess, but I would think that the property owners would be ashamed and embarrassed to have people see such a sight. Where is their civic pride and their sense of responsibility as property owners?

It would be so pleasant to see a rolling green lawn on this lot, instead of heaps of rubble.

To the Editor:

The cycle of wasting property tax money goes on as our county officials sit in a circle with each other behind closed doors, laughing at all of us honest and hard working, true Garrett Co. citizens, as we continue paying too much in property taxes. They think we are all ignorant as they raise the assessment value costing us more money for worthless projects.

The exhibit hall, the swimming pools, ice skating rinks, etc. The list goes on of things already done and planned that aren't needed and won't help and benefit the majority of the people.

On Route 135, the business park has a new, empty building, costing money, could be used for the new jail, sheriff's office, plus put District Court there also. The county roads garage and facility could be fixed up and cleaned up much cheaper than a new one. The old B&L building has much of its space empty, much of the armory is empty, just costing money.

Our officials need to address some real problems like putting up more stop lights to help the traffic mess in Oakland. The bypass should have been completed years ago. They need to quit running off good companies with good jobs with security and a place to work until retirement. Many of the roads are a mess, many state roads haven't been cared for properly, ditches clogged for years draining out on roads, a big hazard, especially in the winter. Maybe the state's cut back in funds is the result of too much wasteful spending. Maybe the areas taking the most of the property tax money need to have some cuts in some areas.

It's time to quit legally robbing the true Garrett County people and lower the property tax. Maybe some day, someone honest with power and authority will come along. Slowly in various ways we keep losing our freedom.

To the Editor:

The Alzheimer's Association joins the world in mourning the loss of former President Ronald Reagan.

We are proud of our long partnership with President and Mrs. Reagan, starting in 1983 when the president designated November as National Alzheimer's Disease Month and continuing through the creation of the Alzheimer's Association's Ronald and Nancy Reagan Research Institute in 1995. In large part due to President Reagan, enormous progress has been made in Alzheimer research–95 percent of what we know we discovered during the past 15 years–and real potential for major breakthroughs exist in the next decade. Baby boomers could be the first generation to face a future without Alzheimer's disease–if we act now to achieve breakthroughs in science.

We are grateful for President and Mrs. Reagan's courage and generosity in working to increase public awareness of this terrible disease and of the need for support for families and for accelerated research for effective treatments, preventions, and a cure. We are also honored that the Reagan family has designated the Alzheimer's Association as one of the organizations they recommend to receive contributions in his name. Those who wish to donate to Alzheimer's Association family support services in the Western Maryland area or to the Ronald and Nancy Reagan Research Institute may call 1-800-443-CARE (2273) or mail their donation to 5 Public Square, Suite 307, Hagerstown, MD, 21740.

A fitting tribute to the life and legacy of President Reagan would be to join

IN CLOVER

Monday morning I awoke to a sweet smell. It seemed familiar, and yet I could not quite place it. The privet has been in bloom for most of two weeks, but the aroma that hung in the air did not have the spiciness of privet. It was a gentler, more straightforward smell.

St. Thomas Aquinas taught that in addition to the five physical senses there is an internal sense, common to the five, which sorts and arranges physical sensory perceptions. Most of the time, the inner sense works so rapidly that we do not notice it. Once in a while, it does not make the connection so quickly. With the mind's eye we can watch it work.

The sorting and arranging rose to the conscious level that day. When the dogs and I went for our morning walk, my eye lit on the field immediately west of my house. It is planted to trees, but the cover crop is clover. The perceptions of sight and smell converged. I then knew the source of the fragrance which wafted up to me at the moment of my waking.

For 15 years now the federal and state governments, my family, and I have been working in partnership to plant trees. The motivations for creating and participating in the Conservation Reserve Program have been various. The outcome has been steady: more trees and more wildlife cover.

Some might say that there is wildlife cover enough, with deer doing so much damage to crops and shrubbery alike. Deer, rabbits, squirrel, and geese have adapted well to suburban sprawl and to so-called clean farming (i.e., without fence rows and gleanings). For most game birds, however, the story has been otherwise, and tragically so.

When I came to my house, Love-in-the-Ruins, 20 years ago pheasant hens walked their broods through my yard. Today if someone sees a pheasant or a quail in the wild it has probably survived from a pen-rearing and release program, either private or public.

While mourning doves are still a common sight, their numbers are down. A generation ago I could organize a dove shoot, in which hunters were stationed at different places on the farm, and kept the doves moving back and forth. Today, the hunters would have plenty of time to contemplate life and few or no dove to take home for supper.

Some people, perhaps the same ones who doubt the value of wildlife cover, do not want to see farmland converted to conservation plantings. In the same breath, however, they will lament the price of corn. The farmer recognizes a glut when he sells his corn, but apparently not when he plants it.

A few years ago, I came to a realization as I drove across three counties of farm country. My external senses perceived the landscape; my internal sense sorted and arranged those perceptions. Farms are getting smaller and bigger. The mid-sized farm is disappearing.

The one exception to the rule are Amish farms; that is, farms sized to horse- and mule-power. There are signs, however, that they too are being squeezed.

Farm 10 acres or 1,000, but not 200! That seems to be the imperative loaded into today's economy. At whatever level, the first key to success is to be found in the motto of a conference I attended 17 years ago: Find the market first!

There are always exceptions to any rule, but one must always realize that they are exceptions and not instances of the rule.

Our family farm is set up to be that in-between farm which is disappearing. The time is coming when we would not be able to have the farm farmed as we want to see it farmed.

The genius of the Conservation Reserve Program is that it takes farmland out of traditional crop production (reducing the glut), but keeps the land available for the future when it is needed in the future. Meanwhile, land converted for conservation use plays an important role both in the balance of the environment and of the economy.

It is possible that in a few years a substantial part of this farm's income may be in renting deer stands. Even today the one hunter we allow on the place shares his harvest so generously that it substantially reduces my grocery budget. The tastiness of local venison is due to diet. Clover will fatten deer nicely.

The state wildlife specialist tells me that the 22 contiguous acres we have established or are establishing in trees and warm season grasses are enough to sustain two covey of quail. There is still not enough range for pheasant.

The conversion of land used for generations for field crops is a conversion of and not an elimination of farmland. The stand of white pine we planted in A.D. 1989 is reading for a pulp thinning. The black locusts can be harvested for fence posts or firewood. This is not the end of farming, rather the beginning of a new chapter in farming.

As I look upon the fields planted to trees and to warm season grasses at various stages of development, I feel that I am, both literally and metaphorically, in clover.

"Hug-A-Thug" Is Flawed

"RESTART," A.K.A. "HUG-A-THUG," HAS FLAWED RECIPE

by Douglas Scott Arey

"Too many cooks spoil the broth." And five cooks, pulling hot saltwater taffy from different directions, will create a sticky mess that looks like the fad of the minute, spiked hair. This precisely describes what the governor, General Assembly, judiciary, Department of Public Safety, and correctional officers unions have wrought through opposing tugs on Maryland's criminal justice policies.

Latest proof? The RESTART concept, doomed when correctional officers gave it the alias "Hug-a-Thug." RESTART was a recipe for tackling persistent recidivism rates by providing a comprehensive package of vocational skills, education, and drug treatment to inmates, as if these programs weren't already provided for decades.

As widely reported in March, the Maryland General Assembly just called RESTART flawed, doubted space existed for the prison classes, and cut millions funding RESTART from the governor's budget.

At that news the Department of Public Safety vowed a fight to restore funding. After all, RESTART is their signature public relations gimmick – they've made sure every local Maryland newspaper has pumped plenty of ink reporting RESTART, although not one extra dollar to date has been spent supporting it. Despite a year of publicity, the gnashing teeth of correctional officers, and innumerable editorials, not one extra teacher, case manager, social worker, or addictions counselor has appeared in any Maryland prison.

So where does this leave criminal justice policies now? Perhaps a little history is in order.

When Ochiki Young became the first to earn a bachelor's degree in prison, from Morgan University, the huzzahs were heard all the way in Annapolis, where then Governor Mandel ordered the State Police to bring Young by helicopter from the Maryland Correctional Training Center in Hagerstown for an interview, after which Mandel commuted part of Young's life sentence and he was paroled.

Compare and contrast that treatment with Nathaniel Johnson Jr., the first to earn a master's degree in prison, from Goddard College. He wasn't even a lifer, hadn't killed, raped, robbed, or molested anyone, and died unremarked on June 12, 1998, at the Eastern Correctional Institution during the term of self-proclaimed "education governor" Glendening. He was never paroled, despite a standing job offer for 15 years to become an English professor at a private college in Baltimore upon his release.

When cigar-chomping Bernie Snyder showed me the ropes in bookkeeping, he said it was like making sausage, and it wasn't pretty. Misplace a penny here, and you'll have trouble down the line; just as when you pack the sausage casing, eventually something has to come out the other end. But with Maryland's RESTART concept, the basic laws of physics were reversed. Only young thugs were to be "treated" and released; the same disastrous recipe Maryland's followed for decades.

The irony is that there are hundreds, possibly thousands, of Maryland prisoners who have already been RESTARTed. They have earned multiple new vocational skills, from stationary engineer to desktop publishing, and multiple graduations and degrees from various education programs and colleges during their decades in prison. At least a hundred have already been on work release, proving their worth to employers who loved them.

These long-termers and lifers languish due to the failure to follow the laws of physics. When a floor of cells collapsed in the South Wing of the Maryland Penitentiary over a decade ago, the public knew, and the building was razed. When another floor of cells collapsed in the West Wing this past winter in the now renamed Metropolitan Transit Center, Public Safety kept it hush-hush and shipped almost 200 prisoners to Brockbridge and ECI, stuffing the sausage casing further.

When prison overcrowding was an issue in past decades, the cases were spotlighted by the media and the public knew. When Roxbury Correctional Institution was just ordered to end housing prisoners in the day rooms and rec halls this past March, Public Safety kept it hush-hush and shipped more scores of prisoners around the state, stuffing the sausage even further.

A giant shell game – to the voters, General Assembly, and media, "Public Safety" just plays a carnival act, and DOC Commissioner Sizer visited Cumberland March 12 and ECI on March 16 to see where he'd hid all the peanuts from the shell game.

If the Maryland criminal justice system is to ever work, it's time now to RESTART the elderly, stable, skilled, and educated prisoners on parole. With today's technology, home monitoring could be combined with GPS tracking for the safe release of hundreds of prisoners who have already RESTARTed their lives with multiple millions of dollars worth of college, vocational training skills, and addictions programs.

The General Assembly has declared during these times of fiscal constraint that Maryland can't afford to fund RESTART. The next logical question is whether Maryland can afford to keep housing hundreds of prisoners who have already benefited from the RESTART concept.

Logic would dictate it's time to take advantage of the fruits of what these programs have always produced. And it's time to give these fruits a chance to flourish, rather than continue to stagnate in prison, clogging the intended avenues of progress as they remain stuffed in the sausage casing.

It's time for our cooks – the governor, General Assembly, judiciary, and Department of Public Safety (which includes the Parole Commission) – to agree on one recipe, follow the laws of physics, and let some of the elderly, stable, educated, and vocationally skilled prisoners exit from the other end of the sausage casing, so they may RESTART their lives.

After all, wasn't this the original end goal for the RESTART recipe?

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey

To the Editor:

I really appreciated your editorial last week. How I yearn for fair and balanced news, policy from the administration instead of public relations, and a press corps that does more than cheerleading. I'm not fooled by repetitive words and phrases said so often in an attempt to make them sound like the real truth.

I sincerely hope that the media will come back to its senses and get off the Reagan Legacy Bandwagon – and soon. They need to deal with the reality that not everyone was enamored with President Reagan, and for good reason. Many of the policies of the Reagan years were domestically harsh and internationally hypocritical. He gave hope and tax breaks to the affluent, spent more on the military than was asked for, and as a result brought us deficits that made deep cuts in social programs "neces sary." As Reagan pushed for democracy in Soviet nations he showed little concern for democracy and human rights in other parts of the world. He vetoed the anti-apartheid legislation passed in Congress, and made strange bed-fellows of the fascist junta of Argentina, the oppressive harsh military rulers and dictators of Guatemala, El Salvador, Chile, and the Philippines. His administration was involved with arms dealing in Nicaragua, Iran, and even sales to Saddam Hussein after he had used chemical weapons on his own people.

A new pattern of officials leaving the White House to become well paid lobbyists started in the Reagan years and continues today. The Defense Department is filled with lobbyists for arms companies, and these are the same folks who make the decisions about war policy and going to war. I've no doubt that more will be written about the legacy of the Reagan years. And it will surely include the elements of greed, arrogance, hypocrisy, and the arms dealing that strengthened terrorists of all kinds. I can't help but wonder if the blind eye that Bush is turning toward stem cell research will have the same results that Reagan's inaction during the HIV/AIDS crises did – death and suffering that could have been avoided.

Sincerely
Cynthia Knight

To the Editor:

People should be aware of optimistic broadband service claims. Regarding Internet connection speeds, 1 megabit per second is not faster than 1.5 megabits per second. More specifically, a 1 Mbps cable (television) broadband connection will not, under normal circumstances, perform "twice as fast" as a 1.5 Mbps DSL (telephone) broadband connection. The broadband Internet service providers in the town of Oakland offer DSL at 1.5 Mbps (1500 Kbps) download and 384 Kbps upload, and cable at 1 Mbps download and 128 Kbps upload.

The speed of DSL broadband will decrease the farther you are from the provider's "central office," and the DSL service area in Oakland extends out to a radius of 18,000 feet. If you're on the outer edges of the Oakland DSL service area, your 1.5 Mbps connection will actually be closer to 1 Mbps.

The speed of cable broadband will not decrease according to your distance from the provider; however, it will decrease due to a "community effect." The speed for each individual user becomes slower the more active all users of the service are. This congestion is shared equally by all customers of a cable provider, while DSL users are not affected by the number, or activity, of their fellow subscribers. If a cable broadband network, or grid, is not backed by enough bandwidth (pipeline diameter, aperture) the speed experienced by all in the service area can decrease to an agonizing crawl.

Unless something is seriously wrong technically, 1 Mbps cable cannot be twice as fast as 1.5 Mbps DSL.

During peak usage times, 1 Mbps cable can be several times slower than 1.5 Mbps DSL.

Cable broadband is a great, and sometimes the only viable option for those outside the nearest DSL service area. One megabit per second cable broadband is extremely fast compared to 56 Kbps dial-up service. During non-peak usage times, it can be over 20 times faster than 56k dial-up modems.

Lastly, '2' Mbps cable broadband "can be up to 2 times faster than" 1.5 Mbps DSL broadband.

To the Editor:

Kudos to Crede Calhoun for the excellent points made in the June 3 letter about the scandal at Abu Ghraib. I just wish to add some further thoughts about how this disaster occurred.

As Americans we complain about exporting our jobs overseas, but until now I had never heard any complaint about exporting our culture overseas. After all, we are glad to have global income from the monies derived by such products of our culture as Coca-Cola, Microsoft, McDonalds, and Hollywood.

So why are we so surprised, horrified, and outraged over a little thing like Abu Ghraib, the abuse of some Iraqi prisoners? It's no accident that some of the soldiers involved were correctional officers in their private lives before Abu Ghraib; in fact, several supervising military officers testified it was the experience of these soldiers as correctional officers prior to Iraq which gave the supervisors the confidence to believe the Iraqi prisoners were in the right hands.

Abuse of prisoners, and the deaths of prisoners, are well documented facts of life in this country. Pick up any issue of Prison Legal News, or visit their website, www.prisonlegalnews.org and you can find the abuse of Iraqis is merely reflective of the culture of our society, which we have now exported just like our other fine products.

Or just look at some recent examples from the Eastern Correctional Institution on Delmarva down by the Virginia state line.

Samuel Lockhart went to the ECI Dispensary on May 13 for a suspected heart problem and it was promptly recognized as serious, so he was taken to Salisbury on May 14 where he was treated for a heart attack. He was promptly returned to ECI, where the Dispensary promptly discharged him to his cell and he just as promptly died for lack of medical care on May 19 during an institution lockdown. "Benign neglect" and a failure to make tier rounds kills as effectively as abuse.

This past March Maxie Davis, who has regularly been on suicide watch for years due to mental problems which indicated he should not even be in prison, committed suicide in the Dispensary where he was being held in the Observation Unit where no one was observing him. Failure to abide with suicide watch orders kills as effectively as any other kind of abuse.

On October 20, 2003, Luis Morales had an epileptic seizure in the ECI Court Yard and was gasping for breath, in front of several hundred witnesses, but by the time the Dispensary staff dawdled over to examine him, he had passed the point of resuscitation. Ignoring medical problems kills as effectively as any other prisoner abuse.

And just before that the Dispensary staff treated Robert Hettche for "hemorrhoids," giving him all the suppositories and sitz baths he wanted. Too bad he had colon cancer, undiagnosed until too late, inasmuch as the prison staff "knew" he just had "hemorrhoids," and so he died on May 29, 2003. After all, a failure to diagnose a medical ailment kills just as effectively as any other form of prisoner abuse.

So let me ask again: Why are we upset, ashamed, horrified, or surprised by the Abu Ghraib investigation, when it is just a manifestation of our culture, a culture we otherwise so proudly promote?

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey

Conference Set To Address Health Of Local Community

Keynote speaker Dr. Elaine Anderson will discuss her study "Rural Health Speaks" at the Second Steps to a Healthier Community conference, scheduled for Wednesday, June 23, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Garrett College. Sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department, the free event is open to the general public. Lunch will be provided.

The Healthier Community conference is designed to reaffirm the county's commitment to preventing and addressing chronic diseases and to define the first steps to better health for all Garrett County residents, according to planning committee member Bob Stephens, director of Community and Family Health for the Health Department. "We're excited to have a speaker of Dr. Anderson's caliber," Stephens stated. "She will be able to give us insight into the cultural and social barriers to healthier lifestyles."

A member of the University of Maryland's Department of Family Studies, and a 1985-86 Congressional Science fellow, Dr. Anderson has focused her research on family policy issues and health policy. Her "Rural Health Speaks" research study focused on obesity and diabetes in rural Maryland, including Garrett County.

The daylong event will also feature a panel discussion facilitated by local experts in the fields of fitness medicine, business, nutrition, and education. The panel will help conference participants gain access to the best "how to" learning resources and practices, and implementation methods to help make a difference in communities.

The panel will include Dr. Robin Bissell of the Grantsville Family Practice, Brenda Brosnihan of the Garrett County Sportaerobic Team, registered dietician/nutritionist Amy Ritchie of the Health Department, Garrett County school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets, and First United Bank vice president of personnel Jeannette Fitzwater, who will address the costs of an unhealthy work force.

The conference will also include concurrent workshops on worksite/employee wellness, medical interventions, community responses, and child nutrition.

Registration is required for the conference, and may be made by calling the Health Department at 301-334-7730. Further information about the department's programs and services in Garrett County is available on its web site at www.garretthealth.org.

Adorable Adoptables

DESPERATELY LOOKING FOR A NEW HOME is Jag, a neutered male hound mix. He is current on shots, but will need to be re-house-trained. "He has spent many months in a kennel waiting for his owners to come back to get him, but they never did. Could you give him a loving home?" asked a Humane Society spokesperson. Also available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter is Daisy, a nice, not-too big 5-month-old female beagle mix, who was given up by her owner. Two young tabbies were also brought in by a boy who had taken them in as strays, but could no longer keep them. The male is a shorthaired tabby and very playful. His sister is longhaired and quite gentle. "Ask about spay/neuter assistance so that more kittens don't contribute to the homeless animal problem in Garrett County," said the spokesperson. For more information, persons may call the animal shelter at 301-334-3553.

Garrett WORKS Program Helps Local Jobless Find Employment

The Garrett WORKS program at the Garrett County Departrnent of Social Services moves Temporary Cash Assistance (TCA) applicants and recipients into jobs. Since implementation of the Welfare Reform Act in August 1996, Garrett County's caseload has decreased by 65%, from 215 to 73 cases, according to a release from the department.

"Most of the cases that remain are children only living with a caretaker relative, usually a grandparent," stated a department spokesperson. In March 2004, there were 10 individuals who were able to work in the caseload. Garrett WORKS requires that all individuals who are able to work have an approved plan in place to find a job, and it monitors compliance with that plan.

"Garrett WORKS has met or exceeded all state and local goals set for the program since its inception. The goal for job placements for the year ending July 2004 was 35. Garrett WORKS has exceeded that mark; to date 53 people have been placed," the spokesperson said.

Because transportation is "a big issue" for Garrett County TCA recipients in finding and keeping a job, Garrett County uses welfare savings funding provided by the state of Maryland's Department of Human Resources to run the Wheels to WORK program, a loan program which provides low-cost loans to people leaving cash assistance by working. The loans are available to those who do not qualify for commercial credit, and are applied toward reliable, used cars to get back and forth to work. Currently there are 23 cars on the road and a total of 63 people have gone through the program. Garrett County Community Action helps run the program, and Garrett Automotive provides automotive expertise.

Garrett WORKS has several strategies that it uses to move customers to work, the spokesperson explained. "Pursuit of a GED is mandatory for all teens. Approved work activities include employment, work experience, and community service. Garrett WORKS has excellent community partners providing activities, including the Oakland Police Department, the Community Service branch at the Sheriff's Office, and other organizations that provide slots for community service," he said.

Federal legislation currently pending would further tighten countable activities and work requirements, and increase hours of participation. This gives customers with little or no work experience an entry work activity. When a customer finds a job, then medical assistance, food stamps, and day care continue for a period of transition, helping ensure they keep their job.

Each customer who applies for Temporary Cash Assistance is required to apply for child support and to go through a substance abuse screening. If a substance abuse problem is found, the individual must get treatment and also must participate in a work activity.

An advisory board consisting of Community Action, Western Maryland Consortium, Department of Labor and Licensing, Appalachian Parent Association, Goodwill, Department of Rehabilitation Services, and personnel from other organizations meets every other month to decide how best to meet customer needs.

Garrett County's Local Management Board has awarded limited funding to Garrett WORKS since 1999, which has allowed Garrett WORKS to provide services (dental work) that would not have been available otherwise.

"The Garrett County Department of Social Services is an integral part of the community assisting families in need of assistance. Anyone having questions about the program may call Barbara Pentz, Garrett WORKS director, or Tom Rosser, assistant director for Family Investment at 301-533-3000," the spokesperson concluded.

House Of Hope Yard Sale Benefit Set For Saturday

Food and beverages will available for purchase at the event, and all proceeds from the yard sale and the concessions will be donated to the House of Hope.

The St. Peter's parish hall is located at 208 S. Fourth Street. The fundraiser is sponsored by the Catholic Daughters of America, Court Oakland #2209.

Town Hall

During this busy time of year, I wanted to give our residents a little update on some issues which may be of interest.

Recycling Continues – In March of this year, Oakland initiated a recycling program. On the first and third Fridays of each month, our contractor will pick up any type of metal cans and newspapers (not magazines). These items must be in separate clear bags. We have the clear blue recycling bags available at City Hall for 10 bags for $1. I would like to encourage all of our residents to take advantage of this program.

Bulk Pick-Up – The Oakland Street Department continues to do bulk pick-up during the summer on Fridays. They have also begun picking some items up on Thursday. Feel free to put your items out on Thursday and call them at 301-334-3253 to let them know. Some items may need to be paid for in advance.

Wood Chipper – We recently acquired a wood chipper through a grant for use by our street department. As a result, we no longer require limbs to be cut and bundled. Please call and let us know if you have limbs needing chipped. Note: We are only able to handle limbs up to six inches in diameter. We will not remove commercially cut tree/debris. Persons may call the street department at 301-334-3253.

Broadford Recreation Area, Pavilion Rentals – Broadford Park is now open for the summer season. We are again operating the concession stand. We still have some open dates for pavilions at Broadford and we are looking for another lifeguard or two to complete our staffing needs. Contact Oakland City Hall for details at 301-334-2691.

Broadford Fireworks – We will hold our annual fireworks display at Broadford Recreation Area on July 3 at dusk (rain date is July 5). Plan to visit Broadford Park, and spend the day enjoying the beach, boating, and fishing. Donations for the fireworks display are graciously accepted.

Vendor Ordinance – We now have a vendor ordinance for Oakland. Please be advised that anyone wishing to temporarily sell items in Oakland must obtain a permit.

Little Yough Summer Concert Series – The weekly Friday night concerts at the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion will begin on July 2. Plan to drop by each week and enjoy the outdoor free concerts. Of course, donations are always accepted.

South Third Street Bridge – Finally, I wanted to let you know that progress continues on the bridge over the railroad on South Third Street. We are currently finalizing the agreements with CSX; working with the utility companies to relocate the phone, electric, gas, and cable; and finalizing right-of-way agreements with affected property owners.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE A DAY MAKES – Above, an all-out downpour; below, about 12 hours later, a sunny and warm morning. This was the situation at this year's Relay for Life, rained out for the first time ever. Even with the adverse weather, though, walkers had fun, raised lots of money, and got to go home for some sleep for once while the rains poured on. Relay for Life donations can still be sent to American Cancer Society, P. O. Box 421, Oakland, MD 21550. Photos by John McEwen.

Reclaiming

mining site, just a "staging area." High-grade coal, which was hand mined at that time, was brought to a cleaning plant there. Unwanted materials, such as filings, and lower grade coal were separated out and dumped at the tipple site. Later, the unwanted coal was simply spread around and about 8 inches of dirt put on top of it.

Now that the site is being cleaned up, there are three ways to handle that coal, Yoder said. Its quality will be checked. If it is high enough, someone may be interested in digging it up and hauling it away. If no one wants it, the coal could be treated to stop the current orange,, possibly acid, seepage, and simply left there.

The third and least favorable choice would be to dig up the coal and haul it away, said Yoder.

Preliminary work will begin this Saturday, June 19, at 9 a.m. The county will bring in a dumpster, and the community will begin cleaning up around the school and the wetlands behind it.

Yoder said a meets-and-bounds description of the area will be completed next week. Virtually all of the project area was on county land, he said.

Once the land is reclaimed, the area could be a "green space" with an arboretum for the community and school, noted the coordinator. The school will also use the area as a learning environment.

"This looks like a really good project," said Commissioner Fred Holliday, adding that it would be an good asset to Crellin.

A science camp will be held June 28 through July 1 for Crellin students. Working with Garrett College biology professor Kevin Dodge, Eric Savage of the DNR, and VISTA workers with the Youghiogheny River Watershed Association, the students will study life in Snowy Creek and learn about the condition of the water. The creek and the Youghiogheny River are located near the school.

This fall, the Canaan Valley Institute will also teach the students interviewing techniques, which they will use to compile oral history reports. Third, fourth, and fifth grade students will then write the stories.

Yoder told the commissioners that he would bring in a copy of the site platt when it was finished.

Forest, O'Brien, Riggleman To Be Next Performers At Penn Alps

MICHAEL FOREST

MAIRE O'BRIEN

Tenor Michael Forest of Winchester, Va., will join soprano Máire O'Brien and pianist Mark Riggleman, a native of Ellerslie, for an evening of song at Penn Alps this Saturday, June 19. Selections will include classical works, popular ballads, and show tunes.

Forest is now in his 13th season with the Metropolitan Opera after making his debut in 1989 as a member of the Metropolitan's Young Artist Development Program. A frequent soloist at the Kennedy Center with the Choral Arts Society of Washington and the Washington Chorus, he has appeared with the Washington Cathedral Choir, Wolf Trap Opera Company, National Symphony Orchestra, New York Philharmonic, and BBC Orchestra. Forest holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the Shenandoah Conservatory and a certificate of advanced studies from the Guildhall School of Music and Drama in London. He is an associate professor of voice at his alma mater.

O'Brien has sung with the New York City Opera, the Aspen Music Festival, the Baltimore Opera, and the Washington Chorus at the Kennedy Center. A native of Dublin, some of her numerous awards include the Olga Koussevitsky Competition for Voice, E. Nakamichi Concerto Competition, Genevieve B. Gauemann Award, and Premio Sanremo Musica Classic International. She has earned critical raves for her performances in the Turn of the Screw, Carmina Burana, and Mozart's Requiem, and has appeared in numerous operas and concerts. She holds a bachelor's degree from Trinity College Dublin and a master's degree from the Juilliard School.

Riggleman is music director of the 92nd Street Y Music School in New York City and performs as a soloist and accompanist in New York, Europe, and throughout the United States. A graduate of the Shenandoah Conservatory, he is a champion of lesser known and often neglected virtuoso repertoire of the 19th and early 20th centuries.

Music at Penn Alps is sponsored by season and corporate sponsors and by the generous supports of individuals. Garrett College is sponsoring this evening's concert. Season sponsors are Sincell Publishing Co. Inc. and the Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop.

For information on Music at Penn Alps, reservations, ticket prices, and locations for advance ticket sales, persons may contact Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop at 301-895-5985. Tickets will be available at the door. There are no reserved seats. Ticket holders should arrive no later than 7:20 p.m. to guarantee seating. Sponsorships Still Available For Yough Music Fest

The Little Yough Summer Music Festival, entering its eighth year of bringing top national and regional acts to downtown Oakland for free concerts, is still welcoming potential sponsors who wish to help fund the series. Coordinated by the Greater Oakland Business Association, the series has grown each year since its inception, and now draws crowds of hundreds of music lovers to the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion on selected Friday evenings.

"Our funding for this concert series comes from local sponsors and our goal is to maintain these concerts as free events, but we need your help to achieve that goal," said Asa McCain, mayor of the town of Oakland, which is one of several leading contributors to the show at the Platinum level.

Other Platinum level sponsors – who, like the town of Oakland, have donated a minimum of $1,500 each – are F&M Bank, The Republican, 92.3 The Train, KHJ, 1050 AM WMSG, the Garrett County and Maryland State arts councils, the Greater Oakland Business Association, and the Oakland and the Maryland Main Street programs.

"Each Platinum sponsor's name will be listed as a Platinum Concert Series Sponsor on every program, flyer, ad, poster, and press release," stated Oakland Main Street Program manager Cherie Ross. "Platinum sponsors will also be mentioned in radio ads on a rotating basis, and will also be allowed to have an advertising and/or an exhibit area at the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion for each concert if they choose to do so."

Gold sponsors, at the $1,000 level, are Railey Mtn. Lake Vacations, Wal-Mart, Will O' the Wisp, WEPCO Federal Credit Union, and WQZK. Gold sponsors will be listed on each program, ad, and press release.

Providing sponsorships at the $500 Silver level are the Oakland Rotary Club, Miners & Merchants Bank, the Terra Alta Bank, and an anonymous sponsor. Silver sponsors will be listed in the program and in press releases.

"If you cannot sponsor the series or can contribute some in-kind time and/or service, please tell us how you can help and we will discuss the specifics and work with you," Ross added.

For information on how to become a sponsor, persons may contact Ross at 301-616-3026. Complete details and scheduling for the Little Yough Summer Music Festival is available at the event's web site at www.littleyough.com.

The Republican POETIC LICENSE Garrett County, Maryland

Shots fired through the crowd, the word quickly spread,
An attempt to assassinate our President, 'twas said.

Clocks didn't stop and the world kept on turning,
With rampant feelings, love, hate, anger burning.

Parties recently campaigning and opposing each other,
Have joined hearts and forces to pray for their brother.

Our land of the free and home of the brave,
Remember other presidents, assailants put in their grave.

Inflation, recession, to name just a few,
Americans, to our flag and God let's be true.

Part of the world sleeps now without care,
While others keep vigil and offer up prayer.

We must trust in our leaders and give full support, to our governors, senators, and the Supreme Court.

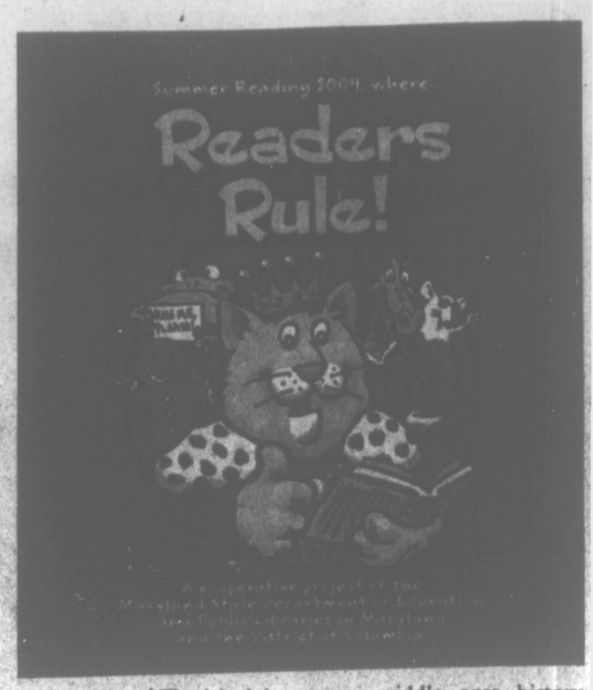
When the turmoil of this tragedy starts to subside,
Let's not falter in prayer, keep God as our guide.

Renelda Anne Thomas

Ms. Thomas wrote this poem following the March 30, 1981, attempted assassination of President Ronald Reagan. A resident of Friendsville at that time, Ms. Thomas sent the poem to the president shortly after it was written and received a personally signed thank-you note from him.



Libraries To Hold "Readers Rule!" Summer Sessions

This summer the Ruth Enlow Library will participate in the statewide theme of "Readers Rule!" by building upon the classics of literature, the use of fairy tales, and stories of folklore.

"Through the magical worlds of kings, queens, knights, and dragon, we anticipate a fun-filled month of guests, crafts, stories, and snacks," said Dorene Rogers, Oakland librarian.

System-wide shared programs consists of a magician, a puppet theatre presentation, and a renowned storyteller, then each branch will have other special activities and presenters.

"The theme this year leads into all kings of creative and fun flights of the imagination, and each branch is excitedly anticipating coats of armor, castles of the nobility, dangerous dragons, and many more middle ages history tie-ins," Rogers added.

Schedules for each branch are as follows:

Oakland: Wednesdays, July 7, 14, 21, and 28, 10:30 to 1:30 a.m., ages 3-5; Thursdays, July 1, 8, 15, 22, and 29, 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., ages 6-12; and Friday, July 2, 9, 16, 23, and 30, 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., ages 13-18.

Accident: Thursday, July 1, 8, 15, 22, and 29, 11 a.m. to noon.

Friendsville: Check with the branch for special activities, such as the July 29 storyteller Kit Bloom at 2 p.m.

Grantsville: Fridays, July 2, 9, 16, and 23, 11 a.m. to noon, and July 30, from noon until 1 p.m.; Tuesdays, July 6, 13, 20, and 27, 11 to 11:45 a.m., pre-school age.

Kitzmiller: Fridays, July 16, 23, and 30, and Aug. 6, 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Deadline For Application EXTENDED TO:

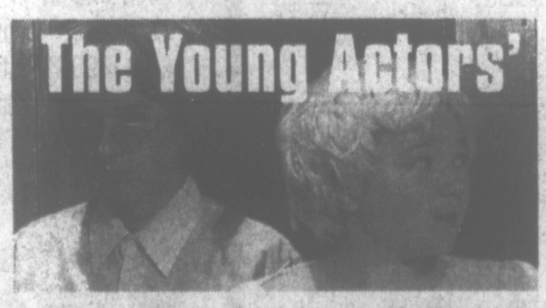
WORKSHOP
is for kids who love to draw! This workshop is intended to nurture natural ability. With a rigorous course of study, students are introduced to traditional wet and dry media and a variety of techniques in both color and black and white. They leave camp, at week's end, with a volume of work, including still life, portraiture and life drawing. Each of these areas will be explored in 90-minute blocks to keep campers fresh and motivated. The goal of this workshop is to refine skills and to instill a greater confidence in visual expression. Instructors: Mark Stutzman/Artist and Laura Stutzman/Artist.



WORKSHOP
is intended for students who would like to experience the thrill of performing with other budding young actors on an actual working stage. This weeklong workshop is taught by two seasoned professionals who introduce young actors to the tools of the craft through exercises and games designed to bring out their natural abilities. They'll participate in the writing of an original play and a performance for family and friends at week's end. Kids can count on breezing through next year's oral reports and school presentations with newfound confidence. Instructors: Vanessa Thomas/Multi-Media Artist and Kelly Gardner/ Actor and Director.

Garrett Community Concert Band To Present Free July 4th Concert

The Garrett Community Concert Band will take the stage Sunday, July 4, at 7:30 p.m. with a free Independence Day concert to be held under a large tent on the lawn of Garrett College. The concert band, under the direction of Gerald McGee, welcomes the entire community to this patriotic celebration, which has delighted hundreds over the past three years.

According to Beth Johnson, executive director of Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, "The college lawn is a perfect location to round out the evening with a great vantage point to view the community fireworks display immediately following the concert." Sincell Publishing Company is the event sponsor for this celebration, with sponsor partners Sandra and Ihor Zakaluzny.

Families are encouraged to pack a picnic for the traditional 'old time' July 4th event. For those interested in purchasing picnic food, BumBle Q's Restaurant, on Bumble Bee Road in McHenry is taking advance orders.

Persons may call the restaurant at 301-387-7667 to place an order for either a "Picnic Basket for Two" (chicken or ribs, potato salad, slaw, and water for $12) or "Picnic Basket for One" (chicken salad sandwich, fruit, cookie, and water for $6). Food can be picked up at the restaurant or the way to the concert.

In the fall of 2000, Garrett Community Concert Band became affiliated with Garrett College as part of its academic program. The college provides practice space and performance venue, but provides no financial support. The band is a non-profit organization, and all support comes from donations or grants and from volunteer help from band members and interested friends.

Membership is open to all adult instrumentalists who have a sincere interest in making a commitment to regular practice. All members are volunteers who play together "out of love of music, to enjoy the company of others with a similar interest, and to make a positive contribution to the musical environment of the community," noted a spokesperson.

The band has three goals: To provide local musicians an opportunity to play together and to enhance their music skills; to perform for the enjoyment and cultural enrichment of residents and guests of Garrett County; and to provide encouragement, experience and support to student musicians and to help them recognize the value of continuing their music for their own self-development and as a life-long activity.

To assist this goal, music scholarships are offered to those students continuing their music education. This year the band awarded $900 in scholarships to three students.

The July 4th concert, as well as the Chautauqua events scheduled on July 5 through 8, is co-presented by Garrett College, Garrett County Arts Council and Garrett Lakes Arts Festival.

For further information persons may contact Garrett Lakes Arts Festival at 301-387-3082.

OTT To Host Annual Barter Camp For Kids

Our Town Theatre will again host a Barter Theatre Camp this summer for children K-5th grade.

Students may choose one of two sessions during the weeks of July 26 to 30 or August 2 to 6. The creative dramatics sessions will be held each of those days from 10 a.m. until noon.

Each session will culminate with a special show for parents. For the first session, the date is July 30, and for the second session, August 6. Each show will begin at 7 p.m.

The bartering part of the camp is in regard to admission items each day. The "cost," or the items each camper is to bring, follows:

Monday, 37-cent stamps; Tuesday, toilet or facial tissue, pencils, or liquid soap in dispensers; Wednesday, 23-cent postcard stamps; Thursday, Styrofoam cups, pencils, or liquid soap in dispensers; Friday, 37-cent stamps.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640, option 2, starting June 18. Reservations will not be accepted after July 10. Jane Avery noted that only 20 students will be accepted, so those interested should call as soon as possible.

This camp is funded in part by the Garrett County and Maryland state arts councils.

Auditions For Five Women . . . Slated At OTT

Our Town Theatre will hold auditions for the play Five Women Wearing the Same Dress on Sunday, June 27, from 1 to 5 p.m., and Monday, June 28, from 7 to 10 p.m., at the theatre, located along Center Street in Oakland.

Written by playwright and screenwriter Alan Ball (author of the screenplay for the Oscar-winning American Beauty and the HBO series Six Feet Under) Five Women Wearing the Same Dress is a "wonderfully entertaining" comedy, according to Mairzy Yost, director.

"Picture an episode of Designing Women written with sharp dialogue and concerning real issues," said Yost.

The cast calls for five women, two in their early 20s and three in their late 20s to early 30s, and one man in his early 30s. All the actors must be proficient with a Southern accent.

Those auditioning will be asked to read sections from the script, which are available at Our Town Theatre or in Room 302 in the Performing Arts Center at Frostburg State University. Persons may also receive them by e-mail by requesting them from the director at myost@frostburg.edu. (Those e-mailing should note "Five Women" in the subject line.)

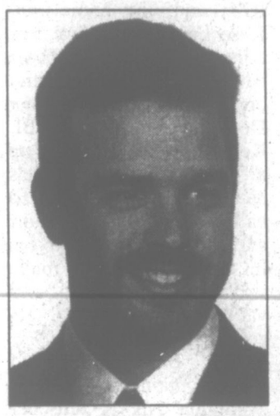
Yost described the plot of the play:

"During an ostentatious wedding reception held at a Knoxville, Tenn., estate, five reluctant bridesmaids hide out in an upstairs bedroom, each with her own reason to avoid the proceedings below. As the afternoon wears on, these five very different women joyously discover a common bond in this wickedly funny, irreverent, and touching celebration of the women's spirit."

Rehearsals for the play will chiefly be held in the evenings, but also possibly some in the afternoon, depending on schedules. They will take place at OTT and the Performing Arts Center at FSU. The rehearsal schedule will be determined once the play is cast, Yost said, but all actors must be available for Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday night rehearsals.

The run for the play will be Aug. 10-14 at OTT.

Dave Kauffman Set To Attend Arts Convention



Dave Kauffman, Maryland Mountain Arts Network coordinator, will attend the Americans for the Arts and the National Assembly of State Arts agency's second Joint Convention from July 17 through 20 in Washington, D.C.

The Americans for the Arts awarded Kauffman a scholarship to send the director to the convention by identifying him as an arts leader in underserved communities.

"Western Maryland is now recognizing the economic impact of the arts. Our goal is to increase the economic development of the arts in western Maryland. This is a real opportunity to develop strong strategic planning," commented Kauffman. "It's very exciting. We're a new entity, and this gives us the opportunity to learn from the experts."

Americans for the Arts is the nation's leading nonprofit organization for advancing the arts in America. With a 40-year record of service, they are dedicated to representing and serving local communities and creating opportunities for all Americans to participate in and appreciate all forms of the arts.

With offices in both Washington and New York, and more than 5,000 organizational and individual members across the country, Americans for the Arts are focused on three main goals: increasing public and private sector support for the arts, ensuring that every American child has access to a high-quality arts education, and strengthening communities through the arts.

The convention features several sessions to aid local communities in their efforts to improve communities through the arts. Attendees have the opportunity to network with their peers throughout the nation in developing the arts as an economic presence in their communities.

Convention attendees will also be able to talk to members of Congress about the impact of the arts on a community.

Prominent keynote speakers include the Honorable Anthony A. Williams, mayor of Washington, D.C., and political powerhouse team James Carville and Mary Matalin will address the arts and community from many perspectives.

Carville was the chief campaign strategist for Clinton/Gore in 1992. His wife, Mary Matalin formerly served as assistant to President George H. Bush and counselor to Vice President Dick Cheney.

The Maryland Mountain Arts Network is a bi-county body, which was created to stimulate economic development through the promotion and coordination of the arts and cultural tourism in Allegany and Garrett counties. It serves as a communication forum for the local artists and art presented in both counties.

A calendar of art and cultural events and the opportunity for local artists to sell their products on the web will soon be made available.

For more information on the network, persons may visit www.mdmountainsidearts.com.

Arts Council Invites All To Annual Meeting

The Garrett County Arts Council will host its annual membership meeting and public reception on Wednesday, June 30, at the Gallery in Oakland. The business meeting is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m., with the reception to follow from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The meeting agenda will include announcement of grant awards, presentation of the council's annual "Friend of the Arts" award, election of officers and board members, and adoption of new bylaws. A special feature of the meeting will be the formal release of the 2004 edition of Ginseng, the council's annual literary journal featuring poetry and prose by local authors.

A public gallery reception will follow the business meeting with complimentary refreshments provided by board members and classical guitar music by guest artist Dimitry Ostrogorsky.

"All friends of the arts are cordially invited and encouraged to attend," said Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the council. "Our annual gallery reception provides a great opportunity for people to meet, mix, and share thoughts on the state of the arts in Garrett County."

Braves Roll To Central League Season Crown

For the second consecutive year the Braves are the regular season champions of the Central Garrett Little League in Accident. The squad finished the campaign with 13 wins and 2 losses.

The Braves' excellent team showing was anchored by the pitching duo of Aaron Lapp and Kaitlynn Fratz. Lapp turned in a 7-0 mark as he whiffed 65 batters and allowed just 13 walks in 36 innings of work. Fratz finished at 6-2, recording 52 strikeouts in 32 innings. Jesse Lapp and Zak DiRienzo also contributed to the mound staff's success, as the unit held opposing teams to a combined .224 batting average.

FOUNDER'S DAY TOURNAMENT HELD – The Oakland Golf Club held its third annual Founder's Day Tournament on Sunday to benefit the club's junior golf programs. The event also celebrated the club's 67th birthday. Oakland Mayor Asa McCain addressed the participants and reviewed the progress of the new driving range, which will benefit the residents of Garrett County. The winners of the "Shamble" format tournament were Frenchie Grimm, Tom Broadwater, Cheryl Albert, and Denise Decandia.

Wisp Taking 8-0 Mark To Orioles' Park Tomorrow

The Wisp, which has burned through eight straight wins in Hot Stove Baseball League action to date, will be tested tomorrow as the squad visits the 6-2 Salisbury Orioles, a team that also has a number of Northern High athletes on its roster.

The Wisp rolled to a pair of easy wins this week, as NHS's Corey Carr tossed a one-hitter to pace a 10-0 win over KMK Insurance Saturday, then the local team crushed Flintstone by a 12-2 tally yesterday. Salisbury took both of its outings as well, with a 10-0 triumph over Ali Ghan Saturday behind Jarod Mohney's no-hitter, and an 8-5 win over Miller Construction Monday.

Carr's one-hit win over KMK was highlighted by Carr's dominating performance on the mound, as he whiffed 12 batters and walked two, giving up just a lone single along the way.

Tyler Southerly was 3-for-3 at the plate, recording a double, two singles, and three RBI. Carr tripled and singled and drove home one run, and Patrick Brady recorded two RBI.

The Wisp's Scott Bass racked up four RBI for the Wisp in its win over Flintstone as he ripped two doubles and a single. Carr recorded four hits, a double and three singles, and drove home four runs, while Brady and Jarod Lapp both doubled twice, singled, and had two RBI. Dom DiRienzo swatted a double and a pair of singles. The Wisp hammered Flintstone's trio of pitchers for 19 hits overall. Matt Sisler picked up the win for the Wisp.

In kicking off Salisbury's week with his no-hitter against Ali Ghan, pitcher Jarod Mohney struck out eight batters and issued three walks. His teammates pounded out 14 hits on offense.

Jacob Hay led the way at the plate by going 3-for-4 with a double and two singles, and Ryan Finzel singled twice to tally three RBI. Teammates Brock Glotfelty, Eric Diehl, and Dustin Klotz also rapped out two singles apiece.

Salisbury and Miller's Construction was on the short end of a 5-2 margin going into the final inning against Miller Construction Monday, but rallied with six runs to take the win. Michael Podlesnic and Glotfelty paced that final flurry, as Podlesnic ripped a two-run double and Glotfelty singled home two runs.

Glotfelty drove home four runs over the course of the contest. Salisbury hurler Aaron Beiler allowed just four singles in his complete-game win, recording eight strikeouts along the way.

Oaks Roll To Three Straight Over Philippi

The Oakland Oaks improved to 5-1 in Pen Mar Baseball League action this week, as the local squad recorded a tripleheader sweep over Philippi by scores of 4-3, 1-0, and 2-1 Sunday at Garrett College. The Oaks are holding down second place in the circuit standings, and have a big weekend ahead as they take on unbeaten Tri-State (8-0) in a pair of doubleheaders.

A trio of Oakland pitchers teamed up to limit Philippi to just one hit in Sunday's opener. Jeremy Richards, who worked the first five innings, picked up the win, and Scott Wildesen and Tobi Stoner worked one and two innings in relief, respectively.

The Oaks scored once in each of the first three innings to go up 3-0, but Philippi responded with one run in the fifth and two in the sixth to knot the score at 3-all. Josh Bosley singled home the winning run in the bottom of the eighth. Oakland had nine hits overall, with Bosley adding a double to his game-winning single, and Stoner rapping out three singles to drive home one run. Philippi's only hit was an eighth inning single.

A classic pitchers' duel unfolded over the second contest, as Stoner and Philippi's Rossi Gaubio battled for seven innings until Joe Horner came on to relieve Gaubio in the eighth. Stoner worked the entire nine innings for Oakland, recording nine strikeouts while giving up just four hits.

Befitting the classic pitching contest, the game was not decided until the bottom of the ninth, and it took some classic baseball strategy for Oakland to work its winning run around the bases. After Bosley and Stoner both singled, a sacrifice bunt advanced both runners into scoring position. Oakland's Jamie Clark then lofted a sacrifice fly to the outfield, and Bosley scampered home with the winning run.

Bosley then went to work on the mound for the third game, and just missed hurling a perfect game as he dominated Philippi's line-up over his six-inning, complete game win. He whiffed eight batters, gave up just one hit, and did not issue a walk, as his teammates were perfect on defense.

Philippi scored one run in the second inning. The Oaks tied the score in the third as Wildesen scampered all the way home when the visitors' pick-off attempt went awry and Philippi scored two errors. What turned out to be the winning run for Oakland crossed the plate in the fourth on a based-loaded RBI single by Rob Thompson that sent Tyler Daniel home from third.

Oakland (5-1) hosts Tri-State on Saturday at 1 p.m. at Garrett College. On Sunday Oakland visits Tri-State at Allegany College for a twinbill.

The Pen Mar League's current standings are as follows: Tri-State 8-0; Oakland 5-1; Cumberland 4-4; Philippi 3-4; Parkersburg 1-6; and Salisbury 1-7.

Pen Mar League officers for this year are president Bob Uhl, co-vice presidents Jim Weinstein, Joe Litten, and Rick Renotas, and secretary/treasurer Terry Helbig.

Rec. League's Salisbury Squad Splits First Two

The Rec Baseball League has expanded for its 47th season, and the circuit's new Salisbury (Pa.) squad debuted by splitting its first two outings. The Rec League, which is for 16- through 19-year-olds, drafts its players from the Hot Stove League, and last year fielded a total of over 160 players from across the tri-state region.

Salisbury, which has several recent Northern High School graduates and current seniors on its roster, fell to Ridgeley by a 10-5 margin Monday, then rebounded yesterday to beat Greg's Auto 3-1 Tuesday behind pitcher Jason Rice.

Greg Beachy worked the first four stanzas on the mound against Ridgeley, and Darrick Lowdermilk came on in relief to toss the remainder.

The following day Rice whiffed eight Greg's Auto batters in his seven-inning, complete-game win. Rice, Lowdermilk, and Jason Thomas each rapped out two hits, and teammate Jason Shapiro ripped a two-run double.

Salisbury is slated to travel to Westernport today to play Boal's Funeral Home.

Sailboat Racing
On Deep Creek Lake

ROOM AT THE MARK!
by Dan Muss

Saturday's prediction was for wind from the ESE from 10 to 20 knots. It was ESE all right, but I do not believe there were any puffs above 15. But it was a perfect sailing day and our principal race officer, Chuck Buffington, set a perfect course up through the slot between Turkey Neck and Thousand Acres.

At our start, even the line was square to the wind, so neither end was favored. We were third around the first windward mark, but as we approached the jibe mark there were three boats neck-and-neck on the starboard tack. There was one boat on the inside; we were second with a third boat on the outside. The inside boat called for room at the mark. I acknowledged his room and asked for room from the outside boat, which was, in turn, acknowledged. As we started around the mark, both the outside boat and I jibed onto the port tack to head for the leeward mark, but the inside boat did not. They stayed on their starboard tack, forcing me above the mark and forcing me to come down on the leeward, port tack boat below me. The starboard tack, inside boat had, I thought, right of way and the leeward boat, I knew, had right of way. I was caught between a rock and a hard place. The starboard tack boat touched us and called a foul. As we sailed on above the mark Ted Rissell, in Nemesis, rounded the jibe mark and took over first place!

I've been racing sailboats for a long time and I thought that I was pretty familiar with the rules, but I was uncertain what the rules called for in this situation. So we took down our spinnaker and, as soon as we could get clear, we did our two penalty turns. We did manage to catch a few boats that passed us, but finished fourth, out of the money. It was such a lovely day; it was hard to get excited about the incident.

But when we got back up to the clubhouse I looked up the rule for rounding a jibe mark, and sure enough, there it was from the Racing Rules of Sailing, 2001-2004: "18.4 Gybing. When an inside overlapped right of way boat must gybe at a mark or obstruction to sail her proper course, until she gybes she shall sail no farther from the mark or obstruction than needed to sail that course."

In other words, that inside boat was required to jibe and head for the next mark. Remember, sailors, leeward mark roundings are one case where starboard tack does not necessarily have right of way. In hindsight what I should have done was to counter-protest after we had done our penalty turns.

The forecast for Sunday was 60% chance of rain and very little wind. By noon that's what it looked like, so a few of us decided not to sail. It was a mistake. The air was variable, but there was no rain and they got off a race that was the twin of Saturday's. I'm sorry I missed it.

No one can say that today's woman is retiring. Bob and Fern Yonke were patrol on Sunday in their new motorboat. They stopped at the Committee Boat to pick up the race patrol equipment on the water. But when Bob started the engine and shifted into forward gear, the engine died. He eventually checked the prop and found a mooring line wrapped around it. Even with the motor on full tilt, neither Bob nor Fern could reach the prop to undo the line.

Fern then donned a life jacket and (fully clothed) climbed down the boarding ladder until, waist deep, she was able to unwrap the line. The race committee gave her a round of applause when she emerged. Captain Bob stayed warm and dry throughout the exercise.

Oral Cancer Treatment Options

Oral cancer (cancer of the mouth) is a growing public health issue in the United States because it can be attributed to excessive use of tobacco and alcohol. Approximately 40% of all head and neck cancers occur in the oral cavity, and more than 30,000 Americans are diagnosed with oral cancer each year. To further complicate matters, almost 6 out of 10 oral cancers are advanced by the time they are discovered. Oncologists who treat head and neck cancer patients use chemotherapy, radiation therapy, surgery, or all three.

After the oral cancer has been treated with chemotherapy or radiation, some drugs may still need to be used. Salivary substitutes can be purchased over the counter to help those with chronic dry mouth. Dry mouth may be lessened if the drug amifostine is given before the radiation treatments. The prescription medicine pilocarpine (Salagen) is known to increase salivary secretions from the remaining healthy glands. After radiation, a daily prescription fluoride product like Previ-Dent may be prescribed. Because fungal infections of the mouth can be an issue after oral cancer treatment, doctors may prescribe an antifungal product such as clotrimazole troche for the person to suck on.

Top Dirt Bike, ATV Racers Set To Tear Through Wisp Course

The nation's top dirt bike and all-terrain vehicle cross-country riders will compete in Garrett County during the Wisp Grand National Cross Country Series at Deep Creek Mountain Resort, slated for Saturday and Sunday, June 26-27.

The American Motorcyclist Association event will get under way with ATV racing on Saturday, as beginners race at 10 a.m. and pros and top amateurs race at 1 p.m. Dirt bike racers will compete on Sunday with novice riders racing at 10 a.m., and pros and top amateurs racing at 1 p.m. The races last approximately three hours each, and local racers may compete.

Described as one of America's premier off-road racing circuit, the GNCC race marks the third consecutive year the series has visited the Wisp.

"With varied terrain including hills, mud, dirt, rocks and motocross sections, the races are tests of both survival and speed," an event organizer said. "The Wisp course is unique, as the treacherous cross country track is built on the Wisp ski slopes. Steep hill climbs and descents will combine with the area's rocky soil to make for a tough track. Spectators can watch the action from the chair lifts, which will rotate above the course."

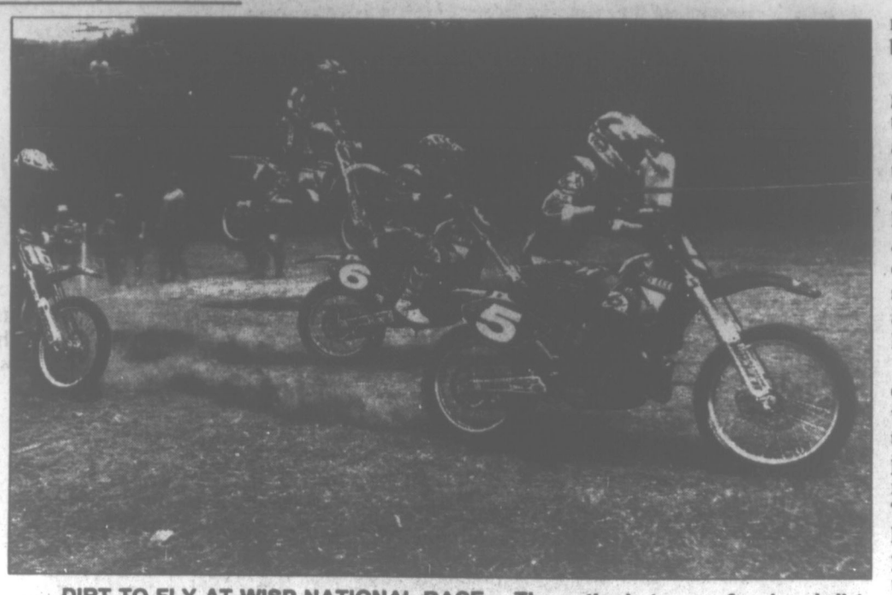
The pro classes will draw the world's best off-road racers. In Saturday's ATV race at the Wisp, Kentucky's Bill Balance will be competing for his fifth consecutive GNCC ATV Championship.

Sunday's pro bike race will draw highly salaried, factory-sponsored riders, including GNCC Championship and Wisp event title defender Barry Hawk of Smithfield, Pa. The Sunday pro race will last a full three hours, which will make physical conditioning and fitness a major factor as the riders bounce over rough terrain at high speeds for the duration of the event.

The GNCC series airs on one-hour cable television programs every week on the Speed Channel. Sponsors include Parts Unlimted, Yamaha, Dunlop, Wiseco, Maxxis, FMF, Klotz, and ITP, and riders compete for over $500,000 in series prizes.

Amateur classes are open to riders of all skill levels and equipment, and sign-ups will be conducted at the track. The amateur entry fee is $40. .

Spectator admission is $15 per person for the weekend, and children under 7 are admitted free. For more information, persons may log on to www.gnccracing.com, or call 304-284-0084.



DIRT TO FLY AT WISP NATIONAL RACE — The nation's top professional dirt bike and all-terrain vehicle racers, along with a number of intrepid amateurs, will be on hand at the Wisp on Saturday and Sunday, June 26-27, when the American Motorcyclist Association's Grand National Cross Country series makes a stop at the Deep Creek Mountain Resort. ATV racing will take place on Saturday, and the dirt bike competitions will follow on Sunday. Amateur registration will be conducted at the track each morning. Spectators are welcome, and for more information persons may consult the series Web site at www.gnccracing.com, or call 304-284-0084. See story for details.

Pee Wee League Notes Two New Teams, C'leaders

The Oakland Youth Football League has announced the addition of two Pee Wee football teams to southern Garrett County. These teams, the Renegades and the Vikings, have joined the Tri-State Area Pee-Wee Football League and will play in Cumberland and surrounding area.

"The Pee Wee division was developed to give children between the ages of 6 and 11 the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of tackle football," a spokesperson said. "It is the goal of the league executive board, coaches, and advisors to encourage leadership, sportsmanship, and teamwork to the children involved in this program."

All players, coaches, and parents are encouraged, the spokesperson continued, to use the following web address for information regarding the league and scheduled events: www.eteamz.com/futuresouthernrams.

Participants are advised to access this site for information regarding the upcoming car wash fundraiser. Persons may print pledge sheets from the "hand-outs" section of the web site.

The league also announced the cheerleaders for the division. They are as follows:

Spring Turkey Hunt Kills Down By 12 Percent

Maryland's tally of wild turkeys taken during the 2004 spring season dropped dramatically from the previous spring, according to Department of Natural Resources Wildlife and Heritage Service director Paul A. Peditto, who noted that the drop is not a cause for alarm by hunters or wildlife conservationists. The reported harvest of 2,760 wild turkeys is nearly 12 percent below the 2003 near-record harvest of 3,120. Officials said that the state's highest county tallies — Allegany with 387, Garrett's 325, and Washington's 305 — confirms that turkey populations remain strong in their traditional western mountain habitats.

"Maryland's wild turkey population remains strong, but the drop in harvest was not unexpected," Peditto stated. "Two consecutive years of poor reproductive success has caused turkey numbers to fall statewide, and the lack of young birds was reflected in the low harvest.

"Hunters should not be alarmed about this one-year drop in harvest," Peditto added. "Wild turkeys are well-adapted to overcome challenges, and the population will rebound quickly if this summer is more favorable for reproduction."

Annual brood surveys conducted by DNR indicate that reproductive success was below average in the summer of 2002 and even lower in 2003.

"As many as 75 percent of gobblers taken in a typical year are either 1 or 2 years old," said Bob Long, DNR's wild turkey biologist. "Without those age classes, fewer birds are available for hunters and most of them are older, more wary, and harder to bag than young gobblers."

Reports from hunters generally agree, suggesting there were fewer gobblers around than in the past and that 1-year-old gobblers, called jakes, were in particularly short supply this year. Jakes made up only 22 percent of the harvest this season; during an average year about 30-40 percent of the harvest will be jakes.

Maryland's junior hunters experienced good weather this spring during the youth hunt that took place on April 17, resulting in a harvest of 144 turkeys. This 1-day hunt allows hunters ages 16 and younger to hunt with an unarmed adult before the regular season opens when hunter pressure is minimal and gobbling activity is at its peak. Nearly one-half of the harvest (46 percent) occurred during the first week of the five-week regular season.

The lower Eastern Shore counties of Dorchester (289) and Worcester (269) also supported respectable harvests, although most eastern counties dropped substantially from last year. Increases in counties such as Anne Arundel, St. Mary's, and Harford suggest that populations are continuing to grow and expand in a few areas, providing additional turkey hunting opportunities for Maryland's sportsmen and women.

Maryland's turkey population has grown rapidly in the past few decades due to a successful restoration effort spearheaded by DNR with help from other conservation organizations, according to Long.

"What we are seeing now is the gradual stabilization of the population because turkeys now occupy most suitable habitats in the state," Long added. "In the future, turkey numbers and hunter success will likely fluctuate from year to year depending on weather conditions and reproduction."

Guidelines Set For Reduced-Price, Free School Meals

The Maryland State Department of Education announced revised Income Eligibility Guidelines for free and reduced-price school meals and for free milk. The guidelines are set by the federal government and adopted by the Maryland State Department of Education for school students across the state. They are effective from July 1, 2004, through June 30, 2005.

Household size and income determine eligibility. For example, a child from a family of four will be entitled to a free lunch and, where available, free breakfast and/or free milk if the household's current annual income is below $24,505. If that same family's income is between $24,505 and $34,873, the child will pay 40 cents for a reduced-price lunch and 30 cents for a reduced-price breakfast.

These guidelines are used by schools, institutions, and day care centers participating in the National School Lunch Program, the School Breakfast Program, the Special Milk Program, the Summer Food Service Program, and the Child and Adult Care Food Program. With the exception of split-session pre-kindergarten and kindergarten programs that do not have access to meals, schools that participate in federally funded meal programs such as the National School Lunch Program and the School Breakfast Program do not receive subsidy for one-half pints of milk. Separate servings of milk will be available free to eligible kindergarten and pre-kindergarten students in schools that participate in the Special Milk Program and which have elected the free milk option.

Public school systems will use a method called "Direct Certification" to approve students for free meals or free milk. This method is available as the result of a partnership between the Food Stamp Policy Division of the Department of Human Resources and the School and Community Nutrition Programs Branch of the Maryland State Department of Education. This method allows students who have been certified for Food Stamps and Temporary Cash Assistance (TCA) to receive free meals without completing an application. It is designed to reduce paperwork and improve the delivery of nutrition benefits to Maryland's low-income children in public schools.

In addition, each school system and agency that participates in one or more of the Child Nutrition Programs will send all parents/guardians a letter and application for meal benefits at or near the beginning of the school year. Some households receiving Food Stamps or TCA may not be directly certified.

On their applications, these households must list: the child's name, how often income is received, the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct, and the Social Security number of the adult household member who signs the application or a statement that the household member does not possess one.

Households that list Food Stamps or TCA case numbers must report increases in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year. The information provided on the application is used for the purpose of determining and verifying eligibility for free or reduced-price meals.

The eligibility status of each child may be given to local Title I officials for allocation and evaluation purposes, and the National Assessment of Educational Program for analyses. The information may also be shared with other federal or state education or health programs for authorized purposes. No other use of this information is permitted.

Because of federal requirements, school systems verify income information on a percentage of all applications approved for free and reduced-price meals by Oct. 31 annually. Applications will not be verified until after they have been approved. Applications to be verified will be randomly

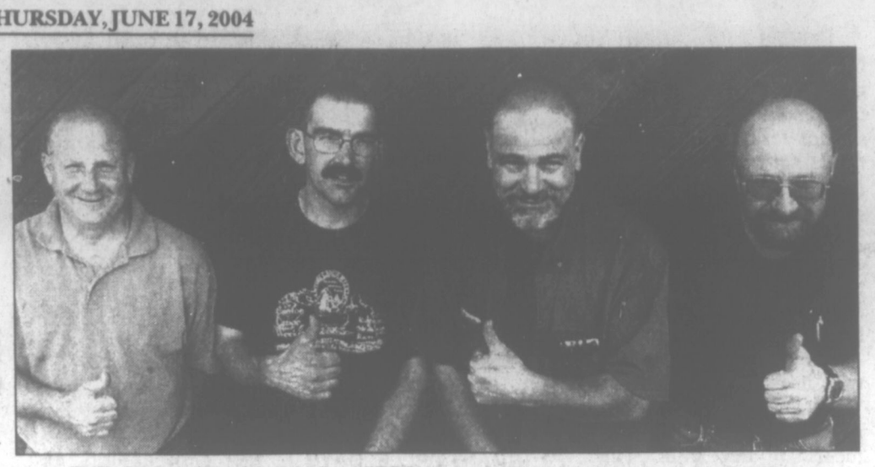
NEW BOOKS FOR THE LIBRARY – The Grantsville Rotary recently donated books to the Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library. The club has donated a total of $10,000 to the library through the sale of funnel cakes at Grantsville Days and doll sales from Total Biz. Pictured, left, is Kim Lishia, head librarian of the Grantsville library, accepting the donation from Earleena Tressler, incoming president of the Grantsville Rotary.



THE ORPHANS GO BALD, AFTER ALL! – Willy Hughes (aka Doc Willy) honored his promise to shave his head as a fundraiser for the American Cancer Society's Relay For Life, held last weekend. A previously anonymous donor, local business owner Frank Lancelotta, said he would give $1,000 if Hughes not only cut off his long ponytail but also shaved his entire head. Doc Willy accepted the challenge, and his team, Orphans R Us, raised the stakes even higher. The members said if they raised $5,000 total, three more of them would shave their heads. Although they fell short of their goal by only $500 when Relay For Life got under way, they decided to go ahead with the scalping anyway, as there is still time for people to donate to their "No Bucks . . . No Yucks" fundraiser. Hair stylist Tammy Kitzmiller, owner of Shear Fantasy Salon, had the honor of shaving her fellow team members' heads. Pictured above, left to right, giving a thumbs up to those who donated are Ken Gotsch, John Diller, Hughes, and team captain Rick "Red" Broadwater. Pictured to the right with the $1,000 check are Diller, Lancelotta, and Hughes. Doc Willy said those who laugh at these pictures "must" now make donations, if they have not already done so. "If you yuck, it's a buck!" he said. Persons wishing to make donations are asked to make checks payable to the American Cancer Society and mail them as soon as possible to The Orphans, P.O. Box 421, Oakland, MD 21550. Donations may also be given in person to the members: Diller at Savage River Works, 301-334-2335; Hughes at Dr. Willy's Seafood Company, 301-387-7380; and Broadwater at Cook Bros. Auto Parts, 301-334-2500. On a serious note, Hughes had this to say: "I have not spoken to a single person who has not been touched by cancer. The good news is, cancer deaths were down last year." He said he helped raise this money for cancer research so that his children, grandchildren, and others would one day be cancer free.

Maryland Ranks Fifth In Fatal Crashes Caused By Road Debris

Maryland ranked fifth for the most fatal crashes caused by road debris, according to a study released yesterday by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety. The study examined crashes caused by road debris from 1999 to 2001, identified the magnitude of the problem of road debris, and examined ways to prevent road debris and reduce crashes.

"Vehicles that are overloaded and have improperly secured loads can spread a significant amount of debris on the road in a split second," said John White, manager of public and government relations for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "Motorists must drive defensively, commercial drivers must be trained to inspect their vehicles and cargo, and better enforcement of truck safety and load-securing regulations are critically important to reducing these crashes."

A total of 30 states and the District of Columbia responded positively to the request for access to, or a review of, individual crash report forms from 1999 to 2001. The states with the five highest fatal-crash totals caused by road debris from 1999 to 2001 were: Texas (33), Florida (17), Missouri (13), Virginia and Oklahoma (6 each), and Maryland and Arizona (5 each).

According to the AAA Foundation study, driver training that focuses on defensive driving, commercial vehicle driver training to emphasize vehicle and cargo inspection, and stricter enforcement on truck weights and load inspection can help reduce the more than 25,000 crashes a year caused by road debris.

"But motorists would be wise to stay alert particularly on busy roads," White said. "Look as far ahead of you as possible, so you can see any vehicles that may be braking or swerving to avoid debris in the road. By spotting potential problems as early as possible, it is easier to avoid trouble."

The most common types of debris cited in the report include: tire treads, garbage from waste haulers, and lumber and construction supplies.

AAA Mid-Atlantic offers the following defensive driving tips to help motorists avoid road debris – and other driving dangers – during the summer driving season:

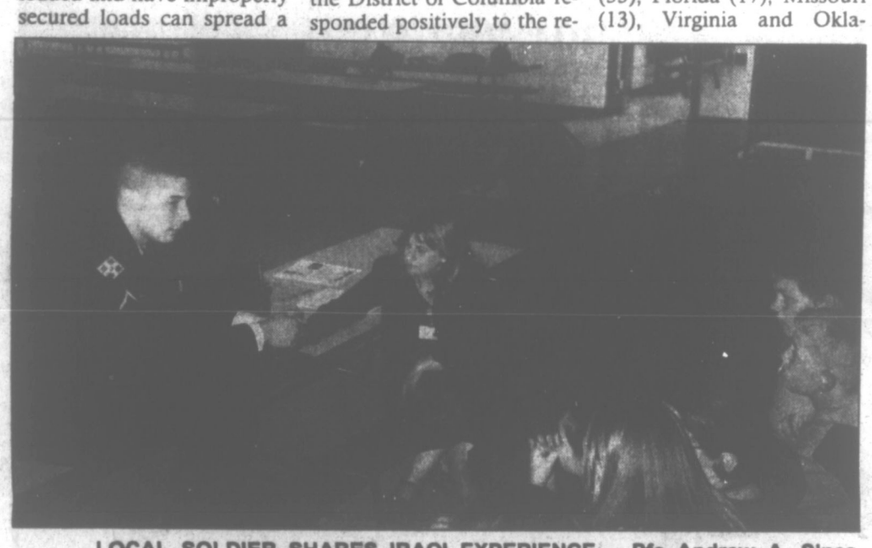
•Maintain a safe following distance. At highway speeds, this means allowing at least 4 to 5 seconds between you and the vehicle in front of you. Give yourself extra distance if following a vehicle carrying large or difficult-to-secure cargo.

•Focus farther down the road. Scan at least 12 seconds ahead so that you can see and react to changing highway conditions, including road debris. Sudden movements by cars well ahead of you often indicate a hazard in the road.

•Sometimes it is safer to run over debris than to swerve into adjacent lanes of traffic. Striking minor road debris can be far less dangerous than veering into oncoming traffic. Knowing where the cars around you are can help you make the right decision.

•In Maryland, cell phone users can dial #77 to report road debris. Motorists should use this number to call the Maryland State Police to report dangerous road conditions such as road debris and vehicles that appear ready to lose their loads.

AAA Mid-Atlantic serves 3.4 million members in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, the District of Columbia, New Jersey, and Virginia.



LOCAL SOLDIER SHARES IRAQI EXPERIENCE – Pfc Andrew A. Sines shared experiences from his recent tour of duty in Iraq with Partners After School @ Southern Middle participants. Through pictures and discussion, the Garrett County native reviewed the cultural, economic, ecological, and political similarities and differences between the United States and Iraq. He also lead the after-school participants through U.S. Army physical training exercises. Sines is currently stationed in Fort Hood, Texas, with B Company, 588th Engineering Battalion. Pictured at the table with him is Linda Lewis, outreach worker with the Garrett County Health Department.

Amy Warner and Jesse Hedrick, along with their parents, announce their engagement and forthcoming marriage.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Sheila Grimes, Mtn. Lake Park, and David and Donna Warner, Elkins, W.Va. The groom-to-be is the son of Scott and Monaca Hedrick, Loch Lynn.

The marriage ceremony will be held on Saturday, July 17, at the Crellin United Brethren in Christ Church, beginning at 2 p.m. A reception will immediately follow the ceremony.

Invitations have been sent, but all family and friends are invited to attend.

D. Purbaugh To Celebrate 80th

Dorothy Marie Purbaugh, Oakland, will celebrate her 80th birthday on Sunday, July 4. A reception will be held in the fellowship hall of St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland from noon until 2 p.m.

Friends and former students from her 25 years of teaching in Garrett County are welcome to attend. The family requests no gifts beyond guests' attendance at the event.

Purbaugh came to Oakland in 1946 to teach music at Oakland High School. The majority of her years teaching in Garrett County were as an English teacher at Southern High School, where she retired in 1986.

She has been an active member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church since 1950, and has sung in the church's chancel choir for over 40 years.

Her son and daughter, John Purbaugh, Gig Harbor, Wash., and Barbara Loftis, Buckhannon, W.Va., will be in attendance with members of their families.

Friends, family, and former students are invited to send cards or letters to her at 318 N. Third Street, Oakland, MD 21530.

Tammy Yocum Marries Jerry Everly In Outdoor Summer Event

Tammy Marie Yocum and Jerry Lindy Everly were united in marriage one year ago on June 28, 2003, at their home along Saltlick Road in Terra Alta, W.Va. Tammy is the daughter of Bill and Grace Yocum of Rawlings, and Jerry is the son of Charles and Dolly Everly of Terra Alta.

They were united in marriage by Rev. John E. Walker of the Locust Grove Church of the Brethren, Mount Storm, W.Va. The ceremony took place in the couple's yard. Lisa Harris of Baltimore, a lifelong friend of the bride, was matron of honor. Randy Everly of Salisbury, Pa., brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white bridal satin with an overlay of illusion. The bodice and cap sleeves were embellished with bugle beads and pearls. Her veil of illusion was attached to a ring of white rosebuds, made by her mother. She carried an antique handkerchief that had belonged to her maternal grandmother, wore a blue topaz birthstone ring, a gift from her brother, and a pearl choker and earrings borrowed from the matron of honor. Her bouquet was made up of yellow and orchid rosebuds and pearl sprays. The bouquets, as well as the corsages and boutonnieres, were made by Ruth Walker, mother of the matron of honor and wife of the pastor.

A reception followed in the yard of their home. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with pearls and yellow and purple roses. The cake was made by Norma Ringer of Bruceton Mills, W.Va. The cake topper was also made by Ruth Walker and featured a heart-shaped arch with bride and groom figures inside, surrounded by white rosebuds and pearl sprays. The couple cut the cake with a knife used by the bride's parents at their own wedding, 38 years ago.

Entertainment was provided by Corey Everly, nephew of the groom, on the mandolin. Playing guitar was John Atkinson, and Ralph Lewis played the banjo, both long-time friends of the groom. John played an original composition in honor of the couple.

Miss Lenhart to Wed Mr. Nicol

Bryan and Linda Lenhart, Accident, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Shawna Marie, to Ben Edward Nicol, son of Gilbert and Audrey Nicol, Lonaconing.

The bride-elect is a 1997 graduate of Northern High School.

The prospective groom is currently employed by Custer Logging.

The wedding has been scheduled for Saturday, September 18, 2004, at Cherry Glade Mennonite Church, Accident.

Invitations will be sent.

Oakland Rotary Receives District Literacy Award

The Oakland Rotary Club was recently awarded the 2003-04 District Literacy Award by District 7350 governor Doug Riley at the annual district conference at the Wisp Hotel.

"The Oakland Rotary was one of only five clubs in the district that were able to accomplish the rigorous requirements to receive the award," noted president Bob Stephens.

District literacy chairman Ruth Longer said she was very pleased with the Oakland club's commitment to literacy as a "way of serving the community and improving the lives of all who read."

One of the group's projects included making financial contributions to the Ruth Enlow Library, the Garrett County Literacy Council, Garrett County Reading Council, and the Garrett County Board of Education's summer reading program.

In addition, every child whose family received gifts through the Rotary Christmas Project received an age-appropriate book.

"This project alone put books in the hands of over 850 children," said Stephens.

The major theme of this year's district conference, hosted by the Oakland Rotary, was literacy. The event included a plenary session featuring Dr. Judy Thelan, past president of the International Reading Council.

Conference attendees also donated books to Friendsville and Crellin elementary schools, and the Rotarians read to students in those schools.

The Oakland Rotary Club meets on Thursday at noon in the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Community Services building. Persons interested in the club may contact club secretary Joan Johnson at 301-533-1031.

GC Graduates Ready To Travel Variety Of Paths

The majority of the 50 recent graduates of Garrett College who responded to a survey about their future plans indicated that they plan to continue their education at another college, according to a GC spokesperson.

As in past years, Frostburg State University tops the list of colleges students plan to attend, with 15 planning to enroll there. Three graduates intend to enroll at West Virginia University, and two will return to Garrett College.

Thirteen students have chosen other colleges, including Towson, University of Maryland Baltimore County, Mt. Saint Mary's, Shepherd, Narapa University of Boulder, Allegany College of Maryland, California University, Salisbury University, Davis & Elkins, West Texas A&M, Franklin University, Lyndon State College, and University of Maryland University College.

The 17 students who plan to seek employment or continue in their present employment indicated a variety of career interests, ranging from farm manager and Natural Resources Police officer to having their own day care service. One student plans to join the Air Force.

The survey about future plans is done each year during the college's commencement practice.

Meadow Mountain Garden On Tour

One of the four gardens being featured in the Secret Country Gardens Tour, set for Saturday, June 26, is the Meadow Mountain Garden at the home of Marlene (pictured) and Randall Glass, Swanton.

The tour, which is held annually, is sponsored by the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, a member of the National Garden Clubs Inc. and the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland Inc.

Inspired by a friend to plant perennials, the Glass garden has expanded over the last 15 years to surround the house, stretching into a large area in the back. Visitors will see many of Mrs. Glass's favorite flowers, including foxglove, oriental poppies, lupine, and liatris. She said her favorite garden spot is the area near the trellis where plants can climb and be shared by the wildlife that regularly visits Meadow Mountain Garden.

Tickets, which will include coupons, maps, and written directions, are $7 and may be purchased in advance at Gregg's Pharmacy or Green Acres Garden Center, both in Oakland; or Nature's Own, Sang Run Road, McHenry. On the day of the event, tickets may be purchased at the Gazebo in Oakland.

Also during the day, the club's Ways and Means Committee will sell various plants at the garden of Judy and Dave Bertsch. The tour will be conducted from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Proceeds from this event will be used by the Mountain Laurel Garden Club for the continued beautification of local communities, as well as the encouragement of gardening and conservation through club activities and programs. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to the Garrett County Historical Society.

For more information, persons may contact Barbara Chesley at 301-334-4519 or Kathie Smith at 301-334-3249.

Disaster Prep. Seminar Slated To Focus On Seniors

"Before Disaster Strikes," a seminar to provide tools and strategies to address the special needs of older adults, is slated for 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, June 25, at the Garrett County Health Department. The program is a cooperative effort of the Greater Maryland chapter of the Alzheimer's Association and several local agencies that serve senior citizens, their families, professional and volunteer caregivers, and emergency personnel.

"We never know when disaster may strike," said a spokesperson for the Alzheimer's Association. "It may be a simple evacuation due to a neighborhood gas leak, losing your home to fire or evacuating an entire region due to a weather disaster or terrorist threat. Whatever the scope of the disaster, for the vunerable persons with dementia or chronic mental illness, the disruption to their world can be traumatic.

"This seminar will provide tools for nurses, social workers, EMS/fire/rescue personnel, law enforcement personnel, nursing home administrators, and family members to minimize the trauma to this vulnerable population," Butala added.

The program topics for the daylong seminar are: "Preparing a Mindset," presented by Richard Bissell, Ph.D., associate professor for disaster and international EMS, University of Maryland, Baltimore Campus; "Creating a Safe Emotional Environment," presented by Mona Butula, OTR/L, education coordinator, Alzheimer's Association; "Best Laid Plans," presented by Edwina Stewart, LCSW-C, counselor to older adults and their families; "Safe Return," a panel discussion, will be facilitated by Joanne Harsh of Safe Return; "9-11 and Homeland Security" presented by Brad Frantz, director of Garrett County's Emergency Management Office; and "Recovery — Getting Back to Normal — Critical Incident Stress Debriefing" will be presented by Lee Ross, Ph.D., retired.

Working in cooperation to present this seminar, along with the Alzheimer's Association, are Mountain Top Mental Health Associates, Garrett County Agency on Aging, Garrett County Health Department, and Mountain Glade Adult Medical Day Services. The Western Maryland Area Health Education Center is sponsoring the program with support from the Mid-Atlantic Public Health Training Center and a Department of Health and Human Services, Health Resources and Services Administration grant.

The cost is $15 per participant, with lunch and class materials included. Reservations are required, and for information persons may call the Alzheimer's Association at 301-334-8144, ext. 205, or 1-800-443-2273.

POCONO 500 REVIEW

Best man wins

Jimmie Johnson dominates field, survives officiating gaffe to win

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Long Pond, Pa.

Jimmie Johnson not only had to beat the field Sunday to win the Pocono 500, he also had to overcome another NASCAR officiating mistake.

So much for eliminating human error with electronic officiating.

Johnson's dominant No. 48 Chevrolet led 126 of the 200 laps, but he cruised the final four laps under caution to beat Jeremy Mayfield's No. 19 Dodge at a pace that frustrated some in the crowd at Pocono Raceway.

Eleven cautions prolonged the race nearly 4½ hours, produced the slowest average speed (112.129 mph) for a Pocono race since the track opened in 1974 and frayed the nerves of competitors and spectators alike.

As the final laps were being run, a spectator hurled a plastic foam cooler of beer at the flagstand and struck official Jimmy Howell. He was not seriously injured, and the fan was escorted from the track by security.

There also was an on-track bumping incident in the last 11 laps between the No. 29 Chevy of Kevin Harvick and the No. 17 Ford of Matt Kenseth, which got the drivers and their crew chiefs a lengthy post-race meeting in NASCAR's big red truck.

And NASCAR president Mike Helton was compelled to address the media afterward about the pit-road officiating blunder.

"The nature of our sport and the level of competition that it is, there still is a large amount of human element that is part of the officiating of our sport," Helton said. "You'd like to think that you could do it without any error at all, but you have to accept the fact that you are human. I can't explain why days like today happen."

The ending was almost as surreal as the pit-road error on lap 154 that nearly cost Johnson his third victory this season and ninth of his career.

Johnson held a comfy 9.7-second lead on Ryan Newman with 46 laps remaining when Ricky Craven's No. 32 Ford blew an engine. It brought out the sixth caution of the day.

Johnson passed up pit road, following new rules to enter pit road under caution that had been announced Sunday. Essentially, the pits are closed the first time the race leader goes by the entrance to pit road and open the second time he approaches.

After Johnson passed the entrance, an official inadvertently changed the red flag to a green flag, indicating the pits were open, and all but four cars on the lead lap began pitting. Johnson pitted on lap 156. By the time he exited, he had fallen to 22nd.

Things worked out in the end for Johnson, who worked his way back to the front and passed Mayfield for the lead with 28 laps to go.

"The guys who saw the green flag and pitted did nothing wrong," Helton said. "And the guys who did not pit were doing what they were told to do. So there were two rights that made one wrong."

Johnson and crew chief Chad Knaus took turns saying all the right things about how tough a job NASCAR has trying to sort things out, but they admitted they'd be less diplomatic if they hadn't won.

"I'd be furious," Johnson said. "Absolutely furious. Still, there's anger inside from what takes place. It makes our performance and win today look better because we were able to overcome something that was thrown at us."

Jimmie Johnson made it to Victory Lane after taking the checkered flag under caution. It was his third win of the season.

POCONO NOTEBOOK

Harvick, Kenseth tangle on the track

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Long Pond, Pa.

Kevin Harvick and Matt Kenseth can expect to hear from NASCAR's judicial system with fines for an altercation near the end of Sunday's Pocono 500.

With 11 laps to go, Kenseth got under the back of Harvick's No. 29 Chevrolet. Then, under the last caution with four laps remaining after Dale Jarrett's No. 88 Ford blew its engine, it really got interesting.

Kenseth, in the No. 17 Ford, made contact with Harvick, and Kenseth went spinning onto the infield grass.

Kenseth got his car back on the track and hunted down Harvick, running up behind him. Harvick escaped to pit road before the race ended.

Officials from both teams were summoned to the NASCAR hauler for a lengthy discussion. All parties left without saying a word.

Prior to the meeting, however, Harvick issued an explanation through a spokesman.

"I don't know what his deal is," Harvick said. "I raced him clean and cleared him, and he got up underneath and tore my back bumper. Then under caution he brake-checked me and spun himself out. I don't know why he decided to try and wreck me.

"He needs to check his ego because it's getting too big."

With help from its electronic scoring system, NASCAR placed Harvick 20th and Kenseth 21st.

Kahne continues to impress

Kasey Kahne proved once again that he's a quick study on the Nextel Cup circuit.

Last week during a test session at Pocono Raceway, the rookie driver of the No. 9 Dodge lost control of his car off Turn 1 and hit the wall. "It wasn't a bad crash," Kahne said, "but the car definitely needed some work."

Friday, in the same car, Kahne breezed around Pocono in a track qualifying record 172.533 mph [52.164 seconds] to become the first rookie to win a pole at the track. He finished 14th in Sunday's Pocono 500 despite battling handling problems most of the day.

"I think we had a great racecar toward the center part of the race," Kahne said. "I was passing Dale Jarrett on the outside in turn three and got into the wall. It just screwed up our right front fender."

The pole was also testament to Kahne's resiliency. Last week at Dover, he appeared to be on his way to his first career win when he got into some oil and hit the wall.

"I pretty much got over [the disappointment] during the days, but every time I tried to go to sleep it would come back in my mind and made for a few long nights this week," Kahne said.

It was Kahne's fourth pole in 14 Cup starts. He ties Art Watts [1957] for the quickest that a driver has reached his fourth career pole.

TALK THE TALK

A guide to NASCAR terms

"Tri-oval"

A race track that has a "hump" or "fifth turn" in addition to the standard four corners. This should not be confused with a triangle-shaped track, such as Pocono Raceway, which has only three distinct corners.

Wallace nears 230 mph at Talladega

After his trip around Talladega Superspeedway Thursday without a restrictor plate, Rusty Wallace now knows that 228 mph is too fast.

"I was running three-quarter throttle through the corners just because it was too hard on the tires," said Wallace, driver of the No. 2 Dodge. "I'd come in and the right-front looked funny after two laps. I didn't have the nerve to leg it, knowing the tires were giving me some problems. These tires are made to go 188 mph, not 230. We only ran two or three laps."

The laps were part of a test of radio communication equipment, and Wallace is definitely not in favor to taking the plates off for more speed.

"You could never race a car that fast," Wallace said. "The motor was screaming. You're approaching 230 mph, and as I got to the corner there was no way you could go through the corner as fast as you did in the straightaway."

BUSCH REPORT

Leffler outlasts rain at Nashville

Gladeville, Tenn.

On a wet night at Nashville Superspeedway, leader Kyle Busch found his gas tank dry, and that allowed Jason Leffler to earn the first win of his 56-race Busch Series career.

Leffler took the lead when Busch spun with an empty gas tank.

Leffler led the final four laps of the Federated Auto Parts 300, which was delayed for three hours because of rain and ended under caution at 1:35 a.m.

"I'm just so overjoyed," he said. "I probably did the worst TV interview I've ever done, but it was because I was so happy."

Martin Truex Jr. finished second ahead of Clint Bowyer, Mike Bliss and Ron Hornaday Jr.

Leffler's crew chief Robert "Bootie" Barker advised his driver to conserve fuel over the final laps.

"I told him with about 25 laps to go, to 'back it down,' " Barker said.

Stewart considers owning an IRL team

Tony Stewart, who already owns teams in World of Outlaws and USAC sprint car racing, might like to step up to the Indy Racing League. He said he's had discussions in the past 30 days about starting an IRL team.

The talk continues Stewart's flirtation with Indy racing while he continues to race in Nextel Cup.

He is a former IRL champion and nearly tried to catch a ride in last month's Indianapolis 500 before being reminded his contract with Joe Gibbs Racing prohibits it.

"The discussion didn't start with me," said Stewart, who finished 27th at the Pocono 500. "It started with other groups of people that approached me about the possibility of starting a team."

He said his teams in other series are self-sufficient, and that would be a requirement for an IRL team.

"If I were to do an IRL team like that it would take a lot of planning and assembling the right people," Stewart said. "The biggest thing would be hiring a team manager and a good crew. If we could do that, I would definitely entertain it. I would love to see the IRL run in conjunction with NASCAR."

AIR CONDITIONING EFFICIENCY

Q – How can I lower my air conditioning bills?

A – The first thing is to keep the air conditioner clean. If the filter is dirty, the efficiency of the A/C unit will drop and you'll use more electricity for the same amount of cooling.

Another way to save is to make sure that the flow of air matches your true cooling needs. This means something different depending on what your dwelling is like.

For a window air conditioner, make sure air can circulate freely in the vicinity of the A/C unit. Having it blocked by drapes or furniture is wasteful.

For central air conditioning of a whole house, make sure the vents in various rooms are set just right. Because cold air tends to fall downward, it is more efficient to have the vents in the upstairs bedrooms open, so that the cool air created in the basement furnace goes all the way to the top to start off. That cool air will tumble down the steps to the kitchen and family room on its way back to the basement. (In the winter time, you'll want to open and close entirely different vents.)

Wherever your thermostat is located, make sure the vents right near it are completely closed! The most wasteful thing of all would be for the A/C to go on and off every few minutes when the thermostat suddenly gets cooled. For the whole house to be comfortable and the A/C to run efficiently, the thermostat should only "find out" about the cooling taking place when the rest of the living space is pleasant.

For most people, the most important thing an air conditioner does is reduce the humidity. That's where most of the expense comes from: It takes more energy to remove water from air than to simply lower the temperature of nitrogen and oxygen molecules. The feeling of "comfort" is directly linked to humidity, too. In very dry places like Arizona, some people actually "live on the ambient," where the inside of their house might be over 90°F, and with very low humidity they're not uncomfortable. But in very humid climates (Washington, D.C., comes to mind) you can be sticky and uncomfortable at 73°F. Therefore, if you can find other ways to lower the humidity inside your home, you can lower your air conditioning bills.

Opening the windows on cool nights lets moist air escape and dry air enter. Some people have large "whole-house" attic fans which draw in so much night air that the entire home has its air renewed at night. For a window A/C, on cool nights switch it to fan-only and open the vent to the outside (but remember to change back the next day). When you take a shower, turn on the bathroom fan to exhaust the moist air from the vicinity, rather than have it drift into the other rooms. In a room where there is a big ceiling fan, you may want to run it constantly to keep the air gently moving. The electricity used by a ceiling fan is a small fraction of what an A/C uses.

When you can predict ahead of time the hours that nobody will be home, then you can let the house drift up in temperature. Programmable thermostats can have different settings for various hours on each day of the week, and for both the heating and the cooling season.

TV PIPELINE

Josh Duhamel will return to 'Las Vegas'

Josh Duhamel

Q: In the season finale of "Las Vegas," Danny McCoy (Josh Duhamel) was recalled to the Marines. Will he return to the show next season? We would miss him! –Lindy Lawson, Bloomington, Ind.

A: "All our regulars are coming back next season," says series creator and executive producer Gary Scott Thompson. "We'd be crazy not to keep them all, but there will be some developments that will take us in different directions with some of them."

Given world events, having Danny recalled to combat was something that had been percolating in Thompson's mind for several months, he added.

"It's just what would really have happened to Danny, as a Marine," he explains. "This grounds our series a little more in reality. It will add incredible depth to his character when he returns, and now Danny and Ed (James Caan) will relate to one another on a different level than the others."

Although Thompson is tired – story meetings for season two started before post-production on season one was finished – he allows some good-natured gloating over the TV critics who dismissed "Las Vegas" last fall in favor of higher-profile but ill-fated shows starring Rob Lowe and Alicia Silverstone.

"It was a little like being in 'Ten Little Indians,' " he says of watching the other shows crash and burn as the season progressed. When the dust cleared, "Las Vegas" was the only NBC series introduced last fall that made it to a second season.

Q: Wasn't the actor who played Jason on "Gilmore Girls" the same guy who was in "It's Like, You Know"?

–John Murphy Jr., Garfield, N.J.

A: Yes, that's Chris Eigeman, 39, who starred in indie filmmaker Whit Stillman's "Metropolitan," "Barcelona" and "The Last Days of Disco" before making his TV series debut as Arthur Garment in ABC's 1999-2000 "It's Like, You Know." In addition to other credits, Eigeman also played Bill Moyers in the HBO historical movie "Path to War," and has had a recurring role as Mr. Lionel Herkabe on Fox's "Malcolm in the Middle."

Q: Is it true that Fox's "The O.C." isn't coming back next season? –Nancy via e-mail.

A: No! Chris Carmack as Luke may be gone, but the rest of the cast, including scene-stealer Adam Brody (Seth), will be back. Rumor has it the show will be more of an ensemble piece next season, however, sharing the spotlight with both generations instead of focusing mainly on the teens.

Zinc May Improve ADHD Symptoms

As a supplement, zinc is a trace element most known to help those who are suffering from a head cold or simply have a nutritional deficiency of zinc in their bodies. However, some studies are suggesting that this biologically essential trace element may also have value in helping children suffering from attention deficit-hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). Previous studies have reported that children with ADHD usually have vitamin and mineral deficiencies. However, new research suggests that zinc may play a role in regulating certain chemical levels in the brain. Supplementing zinc orally seems to improve the symptoms of hyperactivity, impulsivity, and impaired socialization in adolescents with ADHD, especially if there was a zinc deficit to begin with. Other medical research has concluded that ADHD children with low levels of zinc might not adequately respond to prescription-only stimulant therapy such as methylphenidale.

Although it is also a stimulant, most research suggests that the use of caffeine in children does not significantly reduce ADHD symptoms when used in tolerable doses.

This Fathers Day presents an excellent opportunity to consider some qualities of the "new" fathers of today. New fathers not only have a new family addition but also face a much more "hands-on" role.

First, Dads are totally involved...in the pregnancy as well as the birthing. They hang right in there – no cheerleaders were ever more enthusiastic! Both parents are truly dedicated...both are awake at the same time...and both are exhausted when the birthing is complete. Gone are the days of Dad pacing the floor in the waiting room. Today's dads are "expecting", too.

Once home, the already sleep-deprived Dad shares getting up in the middle of the night to wails of hunger, changes diapers, and shares household responsibilities. He is totally "smitten" with his new child.

Today's dads are no better than yesterday's dads, the duties and responsibilities have simply changed somewhat along with the culture. Have you noticed that more fathers accompany their children to church these days? As you worship with your family this Father's Day, especially remember the "nowadays dads"...leading the way in a new generation.

Be Kind to One Another

Recently, I was at a meeting when an older woman arrived late. Since the seats were all taken by the time she arrived, she walked to the back of the room and took a place with the others who were standing. Although I knew the meeting was expected to last about an hour, I offered her my chair anyway and when she accepted my offer, I knew I was in for a long meeting. But, I also knew that she needed the chair more than I did, and that my offer was a small but meaningful way to let her know that she mattered; and, as it turned out, it really made my day to give her my chair. This was only a minor act of kindness, but one which we have the opportunity to do almost every day. How easy it is to hold the door for someone, or to share our lunch, or let someone in front of us in line. And, the great value of these little gestures is that they let others know that they are being noticed and valued. Even though most of us will never be called to martyrdom for acts of great heroism or sacrifice, we can all still perform small acts of kindness each and every day. A friendly smile or a cheery hello can be an act of kindness, and one which will usually be returned in kind.

Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honour preferring one another.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It's been recorded that in the 1800s in the American West there lived a mountain man named Jim Bridger who became famous for memorizing most of the plays written by William Shakespeare. This feat is all the more remarkable due to the fact that he was illiterate.

• It was noted wit George Burns who observed, "By the time you're 80 years old you've learned everything. You only have to remember it."

• Here's a true tale of woe from Kentucky: 40-year-old Ralph Bregos needed a heart transplant and had been waiting two years for one to become available. When he finally got the news that a match had been found, he became so excited that he had a heart attack and died.

• Think you're knowledgeable about geography? See if you've ever heard these names: Kiribati, Tuvalu, Niue and Vanuatu. No? They're all names of countries located in the South Pacific.

• You may want to take a moment to fondly remember May Quant. Don't know who she is? She was the woman who designed the miniskirt, back in 1965. The hem was designed to fall 6 inches above the knee.

• Famed Russian writer Anton Chekhov started out writing funny stories simply as a way to earn extra money for his family. He studied medicine, and for years he couldn't decide whether he really wanted to be a writer or a doctor, so he did both. He treated many poor patients, charging very little for his services; eventually, he set up free medical clinics in rural Russia and called medicine "a sporadic second career which was to bring much hard work but little income."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On June 26, 1541, Francisco Pizarro, the governor of Peru and conqueror of the Inca civilization, is assassinated in Lima during dinner by Spanish rivals.

• On June 22, 1937, Joe Louis wins the world heavyweight boxing title with an eighth-round knockout of American Jim Braddock in Chicago's Comiskey Park. Louis would successfully defend his title 25 times, scoring 21 knockouts, the longest reign in the history of the heavyweight division.

Hairballs — Ugh!

Q. My cat regularly hacks up a hairball, about once a week. He's a short-haired cat, so I don't see why he should have the same problems that long-haired cats do. Is there a remedy for these distressing attacks? — Clarence T., Apopka, Fla.

A. While long-haired cats appear to be prone to more frequent episodes of hairball regurgitation, cats of every stripe have this problem to some degree. Cats ingest a bit of hair each time they lick themselves clean. Sometimes this hair does not pass through the digestive system but clumps together in the digestive tract instead, creating the infamous hairball.

Several measures exist to reduce the occurrence of hairballs. Of course, I recommend a checkup for your cat first, to make sure he's in good health (cats that shed excessively may be ill) and to discuss the problem with the veterinarian.

If no health problems exist, try giving your cat a preventative supplement along with a daily brushing. The hairball preventative is a petroleum-based supplement that makes it easier for hair to move along the cat's digestive tract. This treatment is available from the veterinarian or over-the-counter, in tube form (as a fish- or meat-flavored gel) or, since cats are notoriously finicky, as a kitty treat. Typically, you'll give the treat three or more times a day for the first week, and then three times a week thereafter.

Daily brushing will remove loose hairs, thereby reducing the amount of hair the cat ingests. Combined with the dietary supplement, your cat's hairball episodes should decrease dramatically.

Cathedral Radio

Q. I have an old cathedral radio that was manufactured by Hamilton-Lloyd. I think it has a blown tube. Where can I get replacements? — Rick, Copperas Cove, Texas

A. According to the 5th edition of Collector's Guide to Antique Radios by John Slusser (Collector Books, $19.95), your radio was manufactured in 1931 and is worth about $250, depending on condition. To get your radio in working order again, contact Bob Eslinger, Antique Radio Repair and Restoration, 20 Gary School Road, Pomfret Center, CT 26059. For a second opinion, there is C.E. Clutter, 3634 NW 29th Circle, Camas, WA 98607. Clutter has a Web page that might also be helpful at www.radiolaguy.com.

Q. I have an old 78 rpm recording of Bing Crosby singing "Now is the Hour." It is Decca 24279. I have been offered $30 for it, but wonder if I can't get more. — Robert, Danbury, Conn.

A. Take the offer and run. Your 1948 Decca recording is worth about 25 cents in good condition.

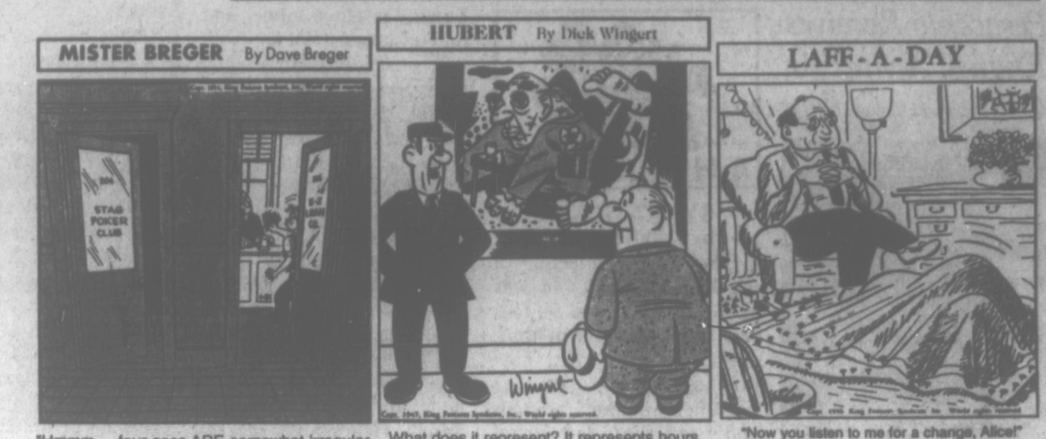
Q. I started collecting combs several years ago and now have more than 300, which I keep wrapped in tissue paper and stored in shoeboxes. Is there a club for people who share this hobby with me? — Laura, Sierra Vista, Ariz.

A. Finding a club is not as hair-raising as you might think. The Antique Comb Collectors Club is one of the more active groups and publishes a quarterly newsletter, Comb Collector. Its address is 90 South Highland Ave., No. 1204, Tarpon Springs, FL 34689.



"Hmmm ... four aces ARE somewhat irregular as collateral for a thousand-dollar loan ...." — What does it represent? It represents hours wasted trying to tell people what it represents!" — "Now you listen to me for a change, Alice!"

Fireball The Dachshund: Ready To Rumble, One Limb At A Time

AN UNOFFICIAL AMBASSADOR for Dachshund Rescue of North America is Fireball, who was rescued from an animal in Tennessee. "He touches the lives of all he meets in one way or another," said his foster caregiver, Dona Jo Show. "I totally adore him and want to see that he has a full and happy life." Fireball underwent surgery last week in North Carolina to correct a deformity to one of his limbs. He now faces weeks of rehabilitation and more surgery on his other limbs. See story for details.

by Renée Shreve

At first glance, Fireball looks like any other shiny black, short-haired 1-year-old dachshund mix – energetic, slightly silly, and down-right cute.

"I love this goofy guy," said Dona Jo Show, his dedicated foster caregiver. "He has the most adorable face."

But a closer inspection of Fire, as his caregiver calls him, reveals that something is amiss. All four of his limbs are severly deformed, especially the right fore one, which resembles the letter "S."

"My heart went out to him when I learned of his disabilities," said Dona, a veterinarin assistant at Pineview Veterinary Hospital in Oakland. The Dachshund Rescue of North America saved him from an animal shelter in Tennesse, and Dona, a member of the nonprofit organization, offered to foster Fire in her Markleysburg, Pa., until he is adopted.

Since its inception, DRNA has placed nearly 2,300 dachshunds and dachshund mixes in homes, according to drna.org. Veterinarian examinations are made, references checked, and home visits conducted before the dogs are delivered to new homes.

"We fund medical care for these dogs without any outside help, other than through donations, adoption fees, and fundraisers," added Fire's caregiver.

When Fire was delivered to her, Dona and her Pineview colleagues radiographed him. After reviewing the X-rays, however, Dr. Rick Jenkins felt the dachsie needed to see a specialist at a major hospital.

Dona and her husband Randy transported Fireball to Ohio State University in Columbus to be evaluated. But they got bad news. The specialist there felt his disabilities were too much to tackle.

"We were faced with the possibiltiy that Fire would have to be euthanized in six months to a year because of pain from severe arthritis," Dona said. "I just couldn't handle that and wouldn't take no for answer."

The search was then on for a solution. In the interim, Fireball was put on medication to help manage his pain. Dona found out about Dr. Kimberly Danoff of the Vieterinary Holistic & Rehabilitation Center in Vienna, Va., and the Shows again hit the road.

After her examination, Danoff adivised the couple to seek advice from Dr. Denis Marcellin, a orthopedic surgeon who specializes in limb deformities at North Carolina Veterinary University. Marcellin was optimistic but cautious. He could operate on Fireball, but the surgeries would not be easy ones.

Fireball had surgery on the luxating petella of his rear left limb in North Carolina last week. After six week of rehabilitation, he will have the same surgery on his right rear limb. After six more weeks of rehabiliation, his left fore leg will be evaluted and, perhaps, surgery performed again. The right fore limb, however, may not be repairable.

"This is going to take a lot of money, love, and work," Dona said about getting Fire on his feet and walking painfree. Surgery cost for the luxating patella alone is about $1,200 for both rear legs. But Dona feels its worth it. "I feel very dedicated to this dog," she said.

Fireball will use two "walk-about" harnesses, one for the front and one for the back, during his recovery process. The sling-like devices will fit over his legs, and Dona will manually help him to walk after his surgeries.

She will also help him with his rehabilitation, which is mainly passive motin therepy, ice therapy, and massage. After his left front leg surgery, Fireball may go to Danoof's center.

Danoof is certified in canine rehabilitation, acupuncture, and reiki – an ancient healing method. In addition to dogs, the center also helps cats, birds, and exotics through a variety of "non-intrusive" methods, such as hydrotherapy, massage, nutritional therapy, and therapeutic ultrasound. More information about the center is available at vetrehab.org.

"Many people ask why we are doing this for one dog," Dona said. "Fireball is truly an amazing creature. I feel he has a mission in life." She added that the dachshund does not seem to know that he is handicapped. "He is a true joy to be around and such a happy fellow," she said.

"Fireball deserves this chance to pain free and happy life as any dachsie would," said Dona. He celebrated his first birthday this Tuesday by getting a postoperative examine by Jenkins and his Pineview staff. He checked to make sure Fire was healing and that he was doing well.

Contributions to help with Fireball's surgeries are tax-deductible and can be made via the DRNA web site by PayPal or by check or money order to Jane Lantz, DRNA, 7821 Sabre Court, Manassas, VA 20109.

Donations received in excess of the cost for Fireball's operations will be directed to the DRNA Medical Fund and used to help other dachshunds in need, according to the organization.

"There is a huge possibility that I will adopt Fireball," Dona said. "Also, Dr. Danoff has offered to adopt him. But we want to get his surgeries done before we make those decisions."

Garrett Students Entering ACM Allied Health Program In Record Numbers

by Joan Crawford

A record number of Garrett College students have been accepted to allied health programs at Allegany College of Maryland this year, according to Dr. Virginia Broaddus, director of arts and sciences. Fourteen students have completed the first two or three semesters of courses required in various allied health programs at Garrett and will now complete their professional training at Allegany, in accordance with the "one-plus-one" articulated agreement between the two colleges.

"We are very proud that so many of our students have been accepted to their chosen programs in this highly competitive process," said Broaddus. "Their career interests are wide ranging – from dental hygiene to nursing and medicine – and their ages range from 18 to 50. These students have seen the advantages of Garrett's transfer option to Allegany's allied health programs, and they are now well on their way to completing their education."

Broaddus gave credit to GC biology professor Carolyn Deniker, who teaches many of the required courses and serves as academic advisor to the allied health students. "Carolyn does an excellent job of instructing the difficult courses and preparing the students to succeed on the entrance exam," she said.

The students, most of whom said they chose to begin their education at Garrett because it was conveniently closer to home, less expensive, and small enough to provide individual attention, all indicate they appreciate the caring, helpful instructors and staff they have found.

Catherine Coddington of Friendsville, who will enter the nursing program at ACM, was able to continue working in her job while she took credits at Garrett. "I'm a non-traditional student," she said, "and GC has catered to my needs and enabled me to move on to nursing school. Mrs. Deniker was very knowledgeable and helpful in steering me in the right direction."

Leroy Friend of Oakland, also entering the nursing program, agrees that Garrett was the best place to start training for his new career. "I will always remember the kindness, helpfulness, encouragement, and support from the staff of Garrett, especially from 'Mrs. D,'" he said.

Other students in the nursing program who chose Garrett because of its location and its caring instructors are Jackie Paugh of Oakland, Jamie Resh-Kamp of Grantsville, Christina Howell of Mtn. Lake Park, Adyn Kivett of Oakland, Marlene Weimer of Grantsville, and Carly Friend of McHenry, who said that she especially remembers the microbiology and the anatomy and physiology classes with Deniker.

Three students who will enter the respiratory therapy program – Greg Bobick of McHenry, Nancy Green of Aurora, W.Va., and Jennifer Murphy of Oakland – each agreed that they benefited from having knowledgeable, caring instructors and had special praise for Deniker. Similar sentiments were expressed by students entering the dental health program – Donna Michael of Aurora and Kelly Selders of Oakland – and by Holly Reese of Oakland, who will enter the Radiology Technology program of ACM.

Another Allied Health student, Sarah Pysell of Deer Park, has been accepted at the University of Maryland Baltimore County with plans to become a paramedic.

About the success rate of this year's students, Deniker said, "Acceptance into most allied health programs at ACM is very competitive. All of the students accepted into the allied health programs at ACM are excellent students. They worked very hard to complete their pre-allied health classes here at GC, and the hard work paid off because so many were accepted. I'm very pleased that so many students will be able to complete their goal and enter their chosen field in an allied health profession," Deniker stated.

On Your Birthday
June 17, 1945

If tears could build a stairway and memories were a lane,
We would walk right up to heaven, and bring you back again.
No farewell words were spoken
no time to say goodbye,
You were gone before we knew it and only God knows why.
Our hearts still ache with sadness and secret tears still flow,
What it meant to lose you
no one will ever know.
But now we know you want us to mourn for you no more,
Life still has much in store.
Since you'll never be forgotten
we pledge to you today
A hallowed place with in our hearts is where you'll always stay.

Your loving wife forever, Pat

You taught me how to stand upon my own two feet,
How to hang tough in life and not let myself be beat.

But today I really need you here just to be my dad,
To make life disappear for me like you did when things got bad.

To hold me on your lap and rock me as a child,
And tell me life would be better, sometimes it just takes awhile.

Look down on me Dad from whatever cloud you are on,
I've never needed you so much as I do now that you're gone.

Grace me with your love and bless me with your smile,
Watch over me still Dad like you did when I was a child.

No matter how old I am or how I've traveled far,
I never stopped needing you, now you are my favorite star.

And when I need advice I look up into the night,
I talk to you from my heart, you are my guiding light.

I wish just once more I could feel your arms about me,
Holding me with a father's love, cradling me tenderly.

I'm a grown woman now, but I still need you so,
I wish you knew I'd been with you when it was your time to go.

But I know as you look down on me from Heaven high,
You'll be there waiting for me when it is my time to die.

For now I'll hold my head up and walk in strength for you,
For I've never forgotten the lessons that I learned by watching you.

Forgive me when I cry for you for it's your love I miss the most,
It's times like now I need you so just to hold you close.

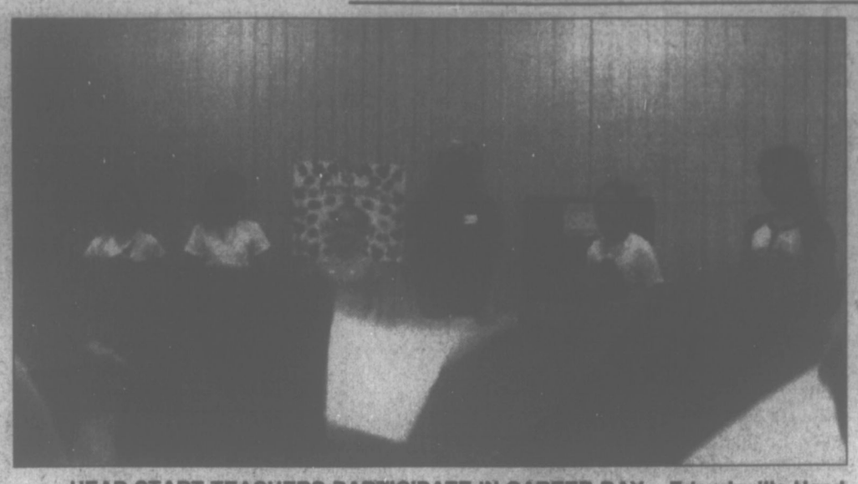
GARRETT HOSPITAL REP. SPEAKS AT WVU EVENT – Denise Liston, RN, vice president of clinical services at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, was among the speakers at the West Virginia University School of Nursing Convention last month in Morgantown. As the current president of the School of Nursing Alumni Association, Liston welcomed new graduates into the association. Her address focused on the school's role in developing a foundation for nursing practice and the significance of choosing a nursing career, and she also encouraged the new graduates to be involved with the association. Liston also represented the Alumni Association at the WVU School of Nursing Awards and Honors Program by presenting the Alumni Association's Leadership Awards to three students from the Morgantown and Charleston campuses. Pictured from the left are Dr. Fred Butcher, senior associate vice president for health sciences at WVU; Dr. E. Jane Martin, dean of the School of Nursing; Liston; and Dr. Suzanne Gross, associate dean of student services.



HEAD START TEACHERS PARTICIPATE IN CAREER DAY – Friendsville Head Start teacher Kim Crosco and assistant teacher Rita Hardesty recently participated in Career Day at Garrett College. Fifth graders from all over the county spent the day learning about careers that they may want to pursue. To give the students an idea what it is like to be a Head Start teacher, Crosco and Hardesty asked the students to pretend they were 3- and 4-year-olds. They then played educational games with them such as copy cat, swayed ribbons to music, and explained various learning techniques involving a colorful parachute. Pictured is Crosco with a few of the fifth graders. Popular with Head Start children, the parachute is a multifunctional learning tool used to explore shapes, colors, gross motor skills, direction following, rhythm, and patterns. For more information about Head Start or Early Head Start, persons may call the Garrett County Community Action at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403.

State Board Approves Strengthened High School Graduation Requirements

The Maryland State Board of Education this week approved a regulatory change that links the state's four High School Assessments (HSAs) to the Maryland High School Diploma.

The regulations will first affect the graduating class of 2009, those students entering eighth grade in the fall. Under the state board's plan, students would be required to reach minimum scores on each of the four assessments – but not necessarily pass each assessment – and earn a combined score on all four tests that is in the passing range.

"This is an important step for Maryland education and goes hand-in-hand with our other standards and accountability measures," said State Superintendent Nancy S. Grasmick. "With this vote, our state board has taken a courageous stand."

The Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) worked closely with a variety of stakeholder groups to craft the plan. It provides for a Maryland High School Diploma for enrolled students, and continues the Certificate of Program Completion for students with an Individualized Education Program (IEP) who have significant disabilities. Finally, for students not enrolled in high school, there is a Diploma by Examination, either through the national GED tests or through a national competency based, applied performance assessment for the External High School Program.

To receive the Maryland High School Diploma, students would either of the following:

•Take and pass all four HSAs (English I, algebra/data analysis, government, and biology). A student may substitute one or more approved assessments, such as the Advanced Placement Test or SAT II Test in those subjects.

•Take all four High School Assessments and earn a minimum score (an acceptable score, to be established by MSDE, that is below the passing score) and earn the combined passing score (equal to the total of the four HSA passing scores established by the State Board last year).

Passing the assessments is not the only criterion for graduation. Students must still complete all course credit and service-learning requirements, attend school for four years beyond eighth grade, and complete any local graduation requirements.

The state board and MSDE will review student performance on the assessments each year leading up to 2009 to make certain students are making progress with the exams. The regulations trigger a review of the requirements by 2008 if the state board identifies concerns over the next few years.

The High School Assessments, introduced in 2002, are end-of-course tests in algebra/data analysis, biology, English, and government. These are typically freshman- and sophomore-level courses.

Maryland has moved cautiously to strengthen graduation requirements, having studied instituting such a step since 1993. The state's Core Learning Goals, upon which the assessments are based, have been in place since 1996. All local school systems have certified that the goals are fully integrated into the curriculum and instruction, which means that appropriate courses have been in place in Maryland classrooms for seven years.

Dr. Grasmick has continued to emphasize that under the plan, all students will have opportunities for success as standards are being raised to keep Maryland classrooms on pace to meet the requirements of both the workplace and higher education.

As part of the process, Maryland is developing a series of online courses in each of the four subject areas that students will be able to access at no cost for additional instructional help.

MSA Test Scores Improve On A Statewide Basis

Overall reading and mathematics scores on the Maryland School Assessment (MSA) improved on a statewide basis, according to results released this week.

Assessment scores from the state's 24 local systems also show steady improvement in the performance of state racial subgroups, and of students receiving special services such as special education. Scores are being expressed as the percentage of students in each system that scored at or above the proficiency levels set last year.

The percentage of students scoring at the proficient or higher levels for reading in grade 3, for example, rose from 59.1 percent in 2003 to 71 percent this year. The percentage of students scoring in the proficient range for grade 8 mathematics rose from 39.7 percent in 2003 to 45.8 percent this year.

"Maryland schools have taken on the assessment challenge and frequently have made very impressive gains over 2003," said State Superintendent of Schools Nancy Grasmick. "Schools have a wealth of information now on where instruction is most successful and on where it needs to be improved. Today's scores represent important gains, but our schools are going to continue to be challenged in the coming years."

Statewide, system, and local school data are now available on the Maryland State Department of Education's report card web site, www.mdreportcard.org.

The MSA exams are given to third through eighth grade students in reading and mathematics, as well as to grade 10 in reading. These scores cover grades 3, 5, and 8 in reading and math, and grade 10 in reading. Other scores will be released later this year, after proficiency levels have been set.

This initial round of data is used to meet federal No Child Left Behind (NCLB) requirements. Under NCLB, all students must score at proficient levels on state tests by 2014.

NCLB charts progress for five racial subgroups: American Indian/Alaskan Native, Asian/Pacific Islander, African American, White, and Hispanic. It also charts success of students receiving three categories of special services: Free and/or Reduced Price Meals, Special Education, and Limited English Proficient.

Dr. Grasmick indicated a number of reasons for the improvement in the scores. For example, Maryland schools have been working with the benefit of the Voluntary State Curriculum (VSC) for the past year, which provides clear information on the state's learning standards or expectations. State staff have also noted that schools are much more comfortable with the tests, which are in their second year.

The new test results offer a variety of good news for Maryland schools across most subcategories, noted a spokesperson. For example:

•The percentage of third grade special education students scoring in the proficient range in reading increased almost 18 points, from 25 percent in 2003 to 42.9 percent this year.

•The percentage of fifth grade students receiving Free/Reduced Meals who scored in the proficient range for mathematics increased more than 10 points, from 33.3 percent in 2003 to 44.4 percent this year.

•The percentage of 10th grade students receiving Free/Reduced Meals who scored in the proficient range for reading increased by more than 5 points, from 37.5 percent in 2003 to 43.2 percent this year.

Despite the success, troubling gaps in achievement remain between African American and Hispanic students, and White and Asian students. Eliminating the achievement gap remains one of the state Board of Education's overarching goals, and Dr. Grasmick continues to focus attention on this problem.

Maryland faces additional challenges in the coming years, said the spokesperson. Testing for grades 4, 6, and 7 began this year, and will be added to the state's accountability program beginning in 2005. Moreover, the state's annual performance goals required by the federal government will begin rising more rapidly.

In addition to producing scores for schools and school systems, NCLB requires that schools and systems make annual steps toward 100 percent proficiency, a calculation known as Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP). School and system success on meeting AYP targets for this year is not being released by MSDE at this time, as state officials are currently working with representatives of the U.S. Department of Education on some possible changes to Maryland's accountability formulas.

Individual scores for Maryland students are being distributed to some families as early as this week, and distribution will continue through mid-summer

Silk arrangements were also presented to Jim Ely, who has the most children; to Betty (Nau) Shaffer, the "runner-up" for the most children; to Evelyn Shaver for traveling the longest distance; and to Betty (Sypolt) Wilson for traveling the second-longest distance.

Each place setting featured a silk flower arrangement showcasing the former school's colors. All silk arrangements were made and donated by Sue Mayne of Aurora.

Scrapbooks, pictures, exhibits, and memorabilia were on display.

A cake was cut in class tradition by Dick Baumgardner and Jim Ely. It was decorated with a lion, the former school's mascot, and with "Welcome, Class of 1942."

A donation was made to the American Heart Association in memory of Mrs. McCreary, who died just prior to the reunion.

Real Estate Facts by...

Lana Roby

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF SELLING!

When you need to or want to sell your home, who will understand exactly what you're going through? Your local real estate agent knows about all the positives and negatives that can be associated with selling your home.

Perhaps you're under the pressure of selling because of an unpleasant circumstance like divorce. Being overwhelmed by the issues that are forcing you to sell can sometimes cloud your judgment when it comes to making decisions about the real estate transaction. Place yourself in the capable hands of a qualified real estate professional who will coordinate the smoothest transaction possible.

Maybe you have other concerns about selling, or about looking ahead to your upcoming home-buying experience. You want a safe neighborhood, or maybe you want privacy and seclusion. You want the most house you can get for the money, but maybe you're not sure what you can afford. You made several improvements to your current home, but maybe you worry about pricing yourself out of the market.

Be sure to fully explain all of your anxieties and your desires to the agent, who is trained to handle the ups and downs, and who genuinely cares about helping you through a sometimes complicated and confusing process. Even if you're not sure what you want or need, the agent can offer solid information and guidance. You deserve nothing less!

SPRING RECITAL HELD

The students of Mary Mickle Ministries Studio presented their spring recital on Sunday at the McHenry House. Approximately 155 people attended, with 42 performances in vocal and piano. Mary Mickle opened the recital by welcoming everyone and introducing the teachers, who along with herself help the studio to grow more each semester.

Wendy Livengood has been with the studio for six years teaching piano and play-by-ear piano lessons. Bonnie Tinnell is a piano teacher new to the studio this year, and Jeremiah Beard will be a new vocal instructor this summer. Mary also introduced the board of directors: Dottie Sines, Cindy Frantz, and Cathy Meyers. Special thanks was given to everyone who has been involved in the past years to help make the studio and the recitals a success. A prayer was given by A.J. Savopoulos.

The performances began with student Karen Tyree singing "Thank God For Kids" while a video clip of pictures of the students was shown. Other performers included Claire Wilkinson, Keara Pitman, Kelsey Jones, Lincoln Humberson, Dylan Kiedrowski, Elizabeth Sines, Ethan Smith, Clarissa Orendorf, Sarah Price, A.J. Savopoulos, Jean Johnson, Emily Yoder, Jordan Ackerman, Isabella Tinnell, Katie Livengood, Lauren Jolles, Bryan Wilkinson, Kelsey Jones, Bonnie Doerr, Cathy Meyers, Ruby Raynor, Garrett Kiedrowski, Kierston Butler, Rachel Shaffer, Katelynn Hanek, Emily Porter, Adam Roy, Ashley Edmonds, Racheal Savopoulos, Samuel Thomas, Alexis Brenneman, Austin Smith, Vanessa Orendorf, Gabrielle Daniels, Allison Richter, and Heidi Livengood.

Awards were presented to students who practiced the most hours. Emily Porter won the award for vocal, and Rachel Shaffer won the award for piano. Each received a T-shirt with her name on it.

The teachers presented an award to their most improved students. Garrett Kiedrowski was chosen as most improved by his piano teacher, Bonnie Tinnell; Austin Smith was chosen by his piano teacher, Wendy Livengood; and Isabella Tinnell was chosen by her vocal teacher, Mary Mickle.

Special recognition was given to Adam Roy, who has been a piano student at the studio for 6½ years. He was presented with a present for exhibiting such enthusiasm, hard work, and the love of music. Cathy Meyers, his first piano teacher, presented him with the gift, and they assured him that he will be missed since he is moving with his family to New York.

Students with perfect attendance were also recognized and door prizes were given. Door prize winners were: Phil Smith, Patty Brenneman, Freddie Humberson, Dylan Kiedrowski, Ethan Smith, and Emily Yoder.

The room was decorated by Bonnie McClung and Angela and Dennis Maust. A lunch was served during intermission.

The studio is located at 5240 Sang Run Road, McHenry.

Payments are to be made to the town of Friendsville within 30 days of billing. Residents who wish to pay on a semi-annual basis will pay $20 within 30 days of billing to cover July through December. The remaining $20 will be billed the first of December and due within 30 days to cover the months of January through June of the following year. Items that will not be accepted in weekly trash pickup are: automobile batteries, paint cans, propane tanks, tires of any size, yard waste, tree limbs, leaves, oil containers and antifreeze containers. ON A PERSONAL NOTE
by Lucretia Sines

On Sunday, June 13, I attended the recital that was presented by the students of Mary Mickle Ministries, and I had a wonderful time. I really have to hand it to all of the students who performed. I know from prior experience what a time of nervousness performing can be, but I can also remember the feeling of achievement, and I hope that they feel that way too.

Every one of the performers should be very proud of the talent that they have, and I really hope that they stick with the practicing and the anxiety and all that goes with achieving a goal.

I am always very impressed with the lovely decorations and the professional atmosphere that Mary Mickle Ministries always has for her recitals because she always makes each student feel like a star. A special salute should be given to all of the people behind the scenes who had to tolerate the last-minute change of location for the recital. Someone was definitely looking down on all of you by providing a place on the spur of the moment and by having everyone pitch in to help as they did.

I can honestly say that I feel that this was the best recital that I have attended, even though I wasn't one of the lucky parents who had a child performing. Once again, thanks to all who were involved for making it such a pleasurable day to spend being entertained. You just keep getting better!

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Accident Mayor and Town Council will conduct a public hearing on Wednesday, June 23, 2004, at 7:30 p.m., at the Accident Town Hall for the purpose of hearing public comments on the proposed Water and Sewer Rate Ordinance Amendment 2004-1. The Town Council is considering changes to the municipal water and sewer rates to cover the increasing costs of providing public water and sewage services.

During this public hearing, the Town Council also will be discussing the implementation of the State of Maryland Watershed Restoration Fund fee as approved by the Maryland General Assembly during the 2004 session. It is anticipated that this fee, which will be remitted directly to the State of Maryland, will be added to all customer water and sewer bills beginning in January 2005.

In addition, the Council also will be presenting the FY2005 municipal budget and asking for citizen input into changing the current front footage fee to an ad valorem tax later in 2004. The ad valorem tax will be used to pay for the town's future USDA Rural Development loan and the water system's current GMAC loan.

By Order of the Accident Mayor and Town Council
The Honorable Richard W. Carlson, Mayor

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Five of the eight high school graduates of Emmanuel Lutheran Church were on hand for their post-service celebration last Sunday. My Claire, Robbie Glotfelty, Andrew Hady, David Taylor, and Eric Garlitz received the blessing and prayers from the congregation. They were also given a gift of a cross. Missing were Brent Housley, Torrey Poholsky, and Derek Buckel, who all happened to be away on trips to various places.

A congregational meeting was held following the church service concerning the construction of the bell tower and the paving of an entrance on Brenneman Road to the church to make it handy for the handicapped and for any funeral hearses. The original bell tower on the old church was one thing that made the church building so special and lovely. Plans were approved where the new tower will be built.

Following the meeting a reception was held in the narthex of the church and the educational building in honor of the graduates.

A bus trip to a Pittsburgh Pirates game will hit the road this Saturday afternoon. I wish I could manage the long walk and climb that it will involve, as I am a faithful fan of our beloved Bucs. If you see yellow with black trim on my mailbox, count it as meaning "Beat Bucs."

Sadly, my daughters and some of my cousins will be without market hogs this summer, as we have been unable to locate any baby pigs. However, Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty were each able to find one, so they will be the only ones. I think they are also getting lambs again. It is unfortunate, especially to me, as we are facing the first year college expenses for Claire.

David, Lesa, Gregory, and Maddy Whittemore took in a baseball game in Baltimore on Saturday. The Orioles were playing against the Whittemores' team, the San Francisco Giants. The teams split the doubleheader. Both teams had their big sluggers in top form. Both Barry Bonds of the Giants and Rafael Palmeiro of the Orioles already have 500 home runs under their belts. But Barry Bonds was the only one of them answering the call with another home run. It was the first game with two members of that very elite club hitting against another.

The Sunday game between the Giants and Orioles also had some big fans in the stadium. Kevin Bass took his two June birthday boys, Matthew and Scotty, along with Lenny and Torrey Poholsky to the game.

It looks like we will never get a chance to cut safely our waist-high hay. It is just like last year as the rain falls and the grass grows even faster without any chance to harvest it.

A new baby girl, Brooklyn Rose, joined the Miners' clan of Dung Hill Road area. Her parents are Randy and Cindy Miner. The Miners also had a graduate from Northern High School, Tasha. Tasha's grandmother and I wonder if Dung Hill is part of Bittinger. I vote "Yes." To quote a song written by a former friend of mine...Dung Hill is where reality is real..... And the same thing goes for Bittinger.

Just now I am overwhelmed by reality – like how to pay for college for three daughters, which is a problem in many other houses, plus the normal tension between teenage girls and their mother. For the first time I am feeling powerless and totally inadequate. The pile of problems seems too big to even start tackling, especially without a partner.

The hundreds of billions of dollars that the federal government is paying for this war and reconstruction of Iraq could go a long way to pay for many college students' educations, as well as provide decent care of the veterans we already have. Almost every day I receive a plea for donations to the paralyzed veterans. Where is the federal government now, who drafted them into the military service, and now they have lost the ability to support themselves and their family? It is true that I am a "bleeding heart liberal" where the "L" word makes you an outcast. Think how far the hundreds of million dollars would go to meaningful aid to Iraq, people who were victimized twice, first by Saddam and then by our bombs. Is it any way to stimulate the American economy by blowing up bridges, roads, etc., and then send expensive crews to rebuild them? That is two job strains – arms manufacturing and contractors. It is a strange way to change the world, in my opinion.

But it seems very far away from the misery of Iraq here in Bittinger where, believe it or not, the sun is shining and my birds are singing their hearts out, Yes, it seems that God is in Heaven and everything is right in this world. But it is not true, and that is why the birds' songs make me so sad. The oddest thing about our recent weather is that it causes me to feel one minute being very hot, and then the next moment really chilly.

Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa., Karmen, Julius, and Allison Carey, Frostburg, Amanda Platter, Smithsburg, and Donna Glotfelty traveled to Ashburn, Va., Saturday to attend a girls' soccer tournament, and to visit with Jeff, Sheli, Ashlin, and Abbie Gray. Six-year-old Ashlin, a member of the Cheetahs team, scored several goals in both the morning and afternoon games, and her team went on to win the tournament championship. The group also celebrated the recent birthdays of Karmen Carey and Donna Glotfelty.

Recent dinner guests at the Alpine Lake home of Tom Glotfelty were Taylor Glotfelty, a recent mechanical engineering graduate of West Virginia University, plus Ida Reckner and Donna Glotfelty. Tim Glotfelty was an overnight guest, and he and his dad enjoyed some fishing on the lake there. Taylor is a member of a university automotive team which is competing in Detroit this week.

Linda Oester and Donna Glotfelty were among the guests attending a graduation barbecue and bonfire honoring Michaele Puliti at the home of her grandmother, Lillian Reckner, McHenry. Michaele will be leaving soon for duty in the Air Force.

Earns USAA Recognition

Richard Cosner, who recently completed the eighth grade at Northern Middle School, has been recognized by the U.S. Achievement Academy for his performance in English studies. He was nominated for the national award by NMS teacher Jennifer Rankin.

Cosner, who will be recognized in the USAA Yearbook, is the son of Betty and Rick Cosner of Friendsville.

Vacation Bible School Slated In McHenry

A vacation Bible school (VBS) will be held at the McHenry United Methodist Church, located at the crux of Bumble Bee and Mosser roads. All young people from age 4 to 16 are invited to attend.

The VBS will be held June 21-25, 6 to 8:30 p.m. each evening. There will be crafts, songs, storytelling, and refreshments.

Parents are welcome but are not required to stay, organizers noted.

Vehicle Flips On Interstate 68 At Grantsville

Injuries turned out to be fairly minor in a single-vehicle accident on Interstate 68 near Grantsville yesterday, a welcome development for Maryland State Police troopers who arrived on the scene to find that two passengers had been ejected and two more were apparently trapped in the vehicle.

The 2:09 p.m. accident occurred at the Chestnut Ridge Road exit, when a 2002 Chevrolet Blazer operated by Harry Lawrence Countryman, 58, LaVale, went out of control after Countryman apparently became ill and/or fatigued and passed out, according to the police report.

The SUV rolled several times, and two rearseat passengers, Robert Edward Nelson Jr., 49, and Gary Lee Davis, 52, both of Frostburg, were ejected.

Authorities Warn Against Use Of Illegal Fireworks

The Office of the State Fire Marshal along with several law enforcement partners have launched "Operation Fire Cracker" in an effort to curb illegal fireworks use. The educational and enforcement effort will target the Deep Creek Lake area, where the use of illegal fireworks has greatly increased in recent years.

"The number of complaints of illegal fireworks use has risen dramatically over the past several years, particularly in this popular western Maryland vacation destination," said State Fire Marshal William Barnard. "Combining education with enforcement is an effective way of helping reduce the chance of tragic injury, especially to children."

The multi-phase program will include informational materials provided to local businesses and the public explaining Maryland's laws regarding fireworks combined with an aggressive enforcement effort. Deputy state fire marshals along with the Maryland State Police, Natural Resources Police, the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, and the Oakland Police Department will be patrolling the area

Garrett County Groups Awarded $84,600 From State Arts Council

Gov. Robert Ehrlich Jr. announced Tuesday that 260 Maryland arts organizations will receive more than $9 million in grants from the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development. Garrett County groups will receive a total of $84,600.

Following the recommendation of the Maryland Arts Council, the governor approved the matching grants for FY 2005 that will be used to support general operations of arts organizations, ongoing arts programs and arts projects, as well as community arts development projects.

The local allocations are as follows: Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, $9,900; Our Town Theatre, $2,457; Spruce Forest Artisan Village, $2,300; and Garrett County Arts Council, $69,943 for community arts development.

"The arts enrich our lives, help bring our citizen together, and make our cities and communities better places to live and work," said Ehrlich. "By supporting arts organizations, county arts councils and local community groups with these grants, we will ensure that the arts in Maryland continue to grow and thrive."

According to a Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development study published in 2003, more than 11 million people attended arts events in the state in FY 2002. The arts had an economic impact of $898 million on the Maryland economy, generating $32 million in state and local taxes and providing 16,108 full and part-time jobs.

Grants to organizations from the Maryland State Arts Council are awarded on the basis of artistic merit, organizational effectiveness, and service to the community. Grantees are selected through a competitive process in which applications are reviewed and receive site visits by advisory panels of professionals in each artistic discipline. The amounts of the individual grants are then recommended for the governor's approval by the state arts council.

The mission of the council is to encourage and invest in the advancement of the arts for the people of Maryland, according to the governor's press office. For more information about the Maryland State Arts Council, persons may call 410-767-6555 or TDD/TYY 410-333-4519 or visit online at msac.org.

Little Yough Ready To Rock With National, Homegrown Performers

The 2004 Little Yough Summer Music Festival, a free concert series offered through the sponsorships of a number of local supporters, kicks off its eighth season Friday, July 2, at the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion in Oakland with a night of the blues. The Channel Cats Blues Band, a top Cumberland-based group, will open the program at 6:30, and will play an extra-long set before the Dennis McClung Blues Band, of Fairmont, W.Va., takes the stage for its own extended set.

The seven-concert festival will continue for the next four Fridays, with each evening's program getting under way at 6:30 p.m. with an opening act, followed by a headlining concert at 7:30 p.m. Then, after a three-week hiatus, the series returns for an Aug. 27 show before serving up a homegrown offering of "Garrett-Stock" on Sept. 3, when top Garrett County groups the Remedy and the Smith & Roberts Band take to the stage for the festival's double-bill grand finale.

Following the July 2 opening show, there will be a jazz evening on July 9, with opener Liberty Ellman's Tactiles Quartet from New York City, and headliner Diane Hubka from Los Angeles. Hubka, who lived, performed, and recorded for 18 years in New York City, is a native of Allegany County, and a graduate of Fort Hill High School and Frostburg State University.

An acoustic night is slated for July 16, with local favorite Jim Truman and his music/comedy routine opening for guitarist, singer, and songwriter Livingston Taylor. A member of music's famous Taylor family, Livingston has been performing for decades as well as serving as a professor at Boston's renowned Berklee School of Music.

The July 23 show features a mixture of folk, bluegrass, and standards performed by Julie Adams of NPR's Mountain Stage radio program, and the pop, rock, and alternative sounds of Mary Lou Lord. A native of this region, Adams was a fixture on the Morgantown music scene before leaving for the bright lights of Charleston, W.Va. Lord, an energetic crowd favorite who has two releases on the major Sony label, appeared on the Little Yough stage a few years ago with her driving rhythms, soaring vocals, and insightful lyrics.

Start-Up Date For Deer Park Water Project Nearing

Deer Park's 405 residents have been waiting for a public water system project to be completed since 1994. But potable, running water should soon become a reality for them, after numerous delays and problems and years of bottled-water use and countless trips to laundromats.

"I don't perceive any problems to achieving the start-up date of June 30," director Mark Tonkovich, Garrett County Department of Public Utilities, told the commissioners Tuesday. "Things are going really well. I'm very pleased that we can achieve the target date."

A fluoride meter must be installed, laboratory equipment set up, and other final touches performed, however, before providing service to customers. Tests are being conducted, including those to check the water's turbidity, temperature, pH and chlorine levels, and possible volatile organic compounds.

Additionally, fire extinguishers need to be installed in the water plant, and fire hydrants and lines flushed. There is currently 100,000 gallons of untreated water in the tank, according to

Four-Vehicle Crash On I-68 Injures Four

Four people were injured in a four-vehicle pile-up on Interstate 68 Friday, according to Maryland State Police troopers assigned to the McHenry barrack.

At approximately 12:30 p.m., William Johnson, 71, Cairo, W.Va., was driving a 1922 Model T Ford east near the Casselman River bridge when his vehicle was reportedly rear-ended by a 1995 Eagle Talon driven by Jeffrey Doon, 58, of Columbus, Ohio.

The impact caused William Johnson and passenger Patricia Johnson, 58, also of Cairo, to be ejected from the Model T. Both landed on the median strip.

John Longwell, 50, Gandeeville, W.Va., stopped his 2002 Chrysler partially in the roadway to offer assistance when his car and the Doon vehicle were struck by a 1998 Chevrolet Lumina driven by William Burrows, 78, Fairmont, W.Va.

Both Johnsons, Jeffrey Doon and 58-year-old Jessica Doon, a passenger in the Talon, were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. Longwell and his

DC Lake Carrying Capacity Study Discussion Set; Highlights Noted

A public meeting slated for 11 a.m. this Saturday, June 26, at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center will focus on the results of the carrying capacity study of Deep Creek Lake. Interested citizens should note that this study is not related to the separate DCL Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Analysis Study currently in progress.

The recently-concluded independent recreation carrying capacity study was conducted last summer by the Annapolis office of the private contracting firm Environmental Resources Management. The ERM study was designed to assist the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, which manages the lake, and the DCL Policy and Review Board, which provides citizen oversight of the lake's management, with tools in developing proactive strategies for dealing with the increasing recreational demands on the lake.

Representatives of each of those three entities will be on hand for the meeting, with ERM's consulting project manager leading a discussion on his work. The general purpose of the $90,000 carrying capacity study was to measure recent and current lake recreational use trends, project future trends, and present recommendations for DNR and the PRB to consider as they deal with those continuing trends.

The final report is currently posted on the DCL State Park web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/publiclands/western/deepcreeklake.html, and a copy of the report is available for public reference (not for distribution) at the DCL State Park campground office from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily.

Selected highlights of the ERM study's summary are EMPLOYEE SIGNATURES BECOME PART OF GCMH PROJECT – The last steel beam in the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Emergency Room Renovation/Expansion project was put into place during the month of May, but not before the employees of GCMH were given the opportunity to place their "John Hancock" on it. "This white steel beam will serve as a memento of sorts, capturing their signatures for posterity," said Don Battista, GCMH president/CEO. The new wing should be open for occupancy by the end of the year. Pictured above is GCMH employee Debby Ward from Social Work Services.

READY TO CELEBRATE THE 4TH – The Garrett Community Concert Band will hold its annual July 4th celebration under the large tent on the lawn of Garrett College on Sunday, July 4, starting at 7:30 p.m. For the past three years, this band under the direction of Gerald McGee has entertained the entire community with its patriotic celebration. Families are encouraged to pack a picnic for the traditional 'old time' July 4th event. All members of the band are volunteers who play together "out of love of music, to enjoy the company of others with a similar interest, and to make a positive contribution to the musical environment of the community," noted a spokesperson. The July 4th concert, as well as the Chautauqua events scheduled on July 5 through 8, is co-presented by Garrett College, Garrett County Arts Council and Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Keyser's Ridge Industrial Park Designated Enterprise Zone

Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. announced last week that the Keyser's Ridge Industrial Park had been designated an enterprise zone in Garrett County, which is expected to help retain jobs and provide incentives for employers to create new jobs.

"This is certainly good news because Garrett County is moving ahead ambitiously with development of the Keyser's Ridge Industrial Park," said Ernie Gregg, chairman of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners. "We also have several prospects interested in the park."

Located near U.S. Rt. 219 and Interstate 68, the new zone will encompass 269 acres, of which approximately 140 acres can be developed into business sites, according to the governor's press office.

"Revitalization of our rural areas is critical to the long-term fiscal, economic, and social health of Maryland," said Ehrlich. "The enterprise zone program is an important tool for fostering economic development in our established rural area. I am confident the new zone will attract new business and new jobs to Garrett County."

Businesses moving to enterprise zone areas may be eligible for credits on their real property taxes and income taxes. Existing businesses located in designated zones may receive tax incentives in exchange for creating new jobs and making capital investments.

The Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED) approves the state's enterprise zones and local governments are responsible for their administration. There are currently 30 enterprise zones throughout the state, according to the governor's press office.

"The new enterprise zone in Garrett County will encourage new development and growth," said a press office spokesperson. "Garrett County currently has three business and industrial parks that are near capacity. The new zone will encompass nine building sites ranging in size from three acres to a size of approximately 50 acres."

"By focusing on revitalizing our established rural areas, we help create more employers and jobs," said DBED Secretary Aris Melissaratos. "We also help stabilize the economy by giving businesses the incentives and resources they need to locate or expand."

Minor Injuries Result From Biker Collision

A local motorcyclist was slightly injured Friday night in Oakland when her vehicle was struck by her riding partner's bike, according to the Oakland Police Department.

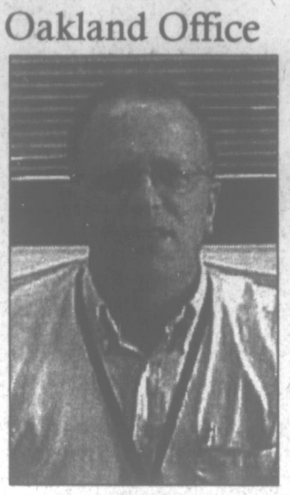
At 9:05 p.m., Sue Ellen Saunders, 50, Mtn. Lake Park, was preparing to stop for a red light along eastbound Oak Street at Third Street, in front of the Subway shop. Her husband, Michael Carl Saunders, 41, who told police he had turned his head momentarily, pulled his 2000 Honda Shadow up behind her bike and lightly tapped her back tire. The impact caused Sue Saunders to lose her balance and her 2004 Honda Shadow toppled over, causing minor injuries.

Sue Saunders was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. No charges were filed against Michael Saunders.

DUI ARREST

On Saturday Oakland police officers arrested Jeremy Shawn Baker, 28, Oakland, on charges of driving while under the influence (DUI), violating a court-ordered alcohol restriction, and assorted traffic- and equipment-related violations. The 2 a.m. traffic stop occurred at Third and Center streets.

Sanders Named Postmaster Of Oakland Office



Eric Sanders has been appointed postmaster of the Oakland post office, retired postmaster Ken Perrin announced last Friday.

"Eric will be an excellent postmaster for our community, as he has a great rapport with his employees and is extremely customer-friendly," said Perrin.

Sanders began his postal service career in 1986 as a clerk and substitute rural carrier and was selected as a city carrier in 1888. During the next 10 years, he served as president of the local National Association of Letter Carriers.

In June 2000, he was appointed postmaster of the Gormania, W.Va., post office, and returned to Oakland in June 2001 as supervisor of customer services.

In this position Sanders managed the daily operations of the Oakland office and often acted as postmaster in Perrin's absence.

Sanders is a member of Oak Park Church and the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club. He lives in Garrett County with his wife Lynn and three children – Bryson, Alex, and Shane.

PAWS Receives $5,000 Grant

PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety) members recently received word that they have been awarded a $5,000 grant from the Snyder Foundation for Animals to continue the organization's "Big Fix" spay/neuter program. This is the second year that the Baltimore-based foundation has made monies available to PAWS for the purpose of providing spay/neuter assistance to area low-income families and individuals who qualify.

The amount granted represents an increase over the amount received in the previous year, a PAWS spokesperson noted.

Under the PAWS program qualifying pet owners can receive at least a 2/3 discount in the cost of spay/neuter procedures for their animals. The program will continue as it did through the last year with the exception that the income level for single applicants has increased. According to the new guidelines, the following pet owners qualify for assistance:

• Area residents living in a single-person household with no dependents, who are not claimed as a dependent by anyone else, and whose annual income is $15,000 or less.

• Area residents living in a household with dependents (spouse and/or children), and whose annual total family income is $25,000 or less.

For more information about the program and to apply, those interested can visit PAWS website at www.garrettpaws.org. Applications may also be requested by calling 301-746-5939 or 301-334-2699.

For information by mail, persons may write: PAWS Big Fix, P.O. Box 745, McHenry, MD 21541.

Last year, with the first grant from the Snyder Foundation and those moneys the organization raised through various fundraisers, PAWS was able to alter over 121 animals. Organization members hope to be able to assist more people this year in having their pets altered.

A pet can be spayed or neutered at any age as long as it is in good health.

According to police, Strawser was traveling at a high rate of speed and lost control of his vehicle. He was charged with negligent driving.

Also responding to the 8:45 p.m. were Oakland firefighters.

In a separate accident, Crystal Nichole Uphold, 19, McHenry, was charged with driving at a speed greater than reasonable after her 2003 Mitsubishi struck a 1999 Chevy truck that was parked along Mansfield Road.

McNair's vehicle was struck from behind by a vehicle operated by Richard White, 47, Terra Alta, W.Va. White was cited for failing to control speed to avoid a collision.

Garden Club Tour Set Saturday; Collins Property Among Sites

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club's annual Secret Country Gardens Tour will take place this Saturday, June 26, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Among the four sites on the self-guided tour this year will be Self-Sown Surprises at Three Ponds, the garden of George and Madeleine Collins, pictured above.

This garden and three others will be open to tour-takers during this fifth annual event sponsored by the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, a member of the National Garden Clubs Inc. and the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland Inc. The other sites are the properties of Hopwood and Karen Wooddell, David and Judy Bertsch, and Marlene and Randall Glass.

Rock walls, woodland trails, three ponds, and several creeks forming the headwaters of Hoyes Run, an organic vegetable garden and a rolling lawn are some of what visitors will find hidden within 32 acres of woodlands at the Collins garden. Informal in design, garden beds are jammed with perennials with a constant flow of color from early March to late November.

The garden is a "creative and physical release" for both George and Madeleine, as well as a peaceful retreat, a spokesperson said. A predominant theme found in this garden is the preservation of its natural beauty. With the addition of colorful non-native perennials, inspiration is found for some of Madeleine's watercolors. Perennials blend into the woods creating pockets of interest, some of which include daisies, pink mallow Jacob's ladder, clematis, lavender, and lilies. Shade has been a constant challenge for the Collinses, but for them, they said, it "adds the interest of shadows and the interplay of light on all that grows."

Tickets, which will include coupons, maps, and written directions, are $7 and may be purchased in advance at Gregg's Pharmacy or Green Acres Garden Center, both in Oakland; or Nature's Own, Sang Run Road, McHenry. On the day of the event, tickets may be purchased at the Gazebo in Oakland. The tour will be conducted from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Proceeds from this event will be used by the Mountain Laurel Garden Club for the continued beautification of local communities, as well as the encouragement of gardening and conservation through club activities and programs. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to the Garrett County Historical Society.

The Ways and Means Committee will have plants for sale at the garden of Judy and Dave Bertsch.

Chapman Named West Region Fire Marshal Of Year

Deputy Chief State Fire Marshal Ryan L. Chapman has been named the Deputy Chief State Fire Marshal of the Year for the Western Region office of the Maryland State Fire Marshal. The western region is composed of Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties.

Chapman was cited by Deputy Chief State Fire Marshal Allen Gosnell of the Office of the State Fire Marshal for "his achievement in obtaining an exceptional closure rate in arson investigation, along with his outstanding performance in enforcing the State Fire Prevention Code. Additionally, [Chapman] displayed a degree of personal motivation and took on extra assignments to advance the mission of the Office of the State Fire Marshal."

The selection was announced by State Fire Marshal William E. Barnard at the Maryland State Firemen's Association recent annual convention in Ocean City. "Ryan's performance during 2003 is an outstanding example of the dedication shown by the employees of our agency," Barnard stated.

Chapman has served with the Office of the State Fire Marshal since 2000.

Oakland Police Officer Pedals On Bike Patrol

by Glenn Tolbert

Oakland Officer Bryan Carlson admits that riding a bicycle didn't come naturally – to him. "It took some getting used to," he said. But he's got it down to the point that while guiding his official police bicycle through the town's streets he has already written a citation for someone not wearing a seatbelt plus two other warnings.

"The beauty of being on a bicycle is that you're not as visible as you are in a cruiser," Carlson stated. "You can sit in an alley and no one will really pay any attention to you."

But drivers and pedestrians are warned that they better pay attention if a bicycle pulls up behind them with red, white, and blue flashing lights. This bike is an official police vehicle.

Ordered by the six-man Oakland police force over the Internet, the Smith and Wesson made vehicle is specially designed for law enforcement. It can go up and down steps and can simply be dropped when the rider is in a hurry to dismount. And some of the reason it took getting used to is that it carries special bags, lights and sirens as well as boasting 24 gears. All this equipment is in addition to what Officer Carlson carries on his own body. That collection of gear includes a 40 caliber Beretta, handcuffs, a baton, a helmet and various other police paraphernalia.

But Officer Carlson does not complain about his bicycle duties. In fact that bike was ordered because he wanted to be the rider. A dedicated lawman with an outgoing disposition, he sees his time on a bicycle as a chance to interact with the public. "The kids really look over my bicycle and they take note that I'm wearing a helmet, so I'm hoping that they think it's a good idea as well," he said.

The bike patrol will concentrate on the commercial areas of town and the walking trail, at least at first, and then will fan out into the residential sections of town. "Wherever we get a report of a burglary, that's where I'll be heading. On this bike I can come up pretty quiet and be there before anyone else realizes it."

OAKLAND'S NEWEST POLICE VEHICLE puts Officer Bryan Carlson in more intimate contact with the community he serves, a definite plus in law enforcement. Shown astride his trusty steed, the outgoing Carlson sees his assignment as a new way to interact with the public. "The kids really look over my bicycle and they take note that I'm wearing a helmet, so I'm hoping that they think it's a good idea as well," he commented. The new bike patrol is focused on the walking trail and the commercial district, but may gear up to serve other areas of the town. See story.

Cumberland Memorial Hospital. Three of the transports were handled by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Frostburg Ambulance Service, while Davis was flown via MSP medevac helicopter Trooper 5.

Although all of the injuries were subsequently determined to be "minor," according to the press release, the first troopers on the scene summoned the helicopter almost immediately because of the severity of the accident and concern for the injured. "Better to be safe than sorry," a source said later.

The Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department and State Highway Administration also responded.

No charges were filed by the investigating trooper.

In other MSP accident probes, a trooper investigated a Saturday morning vehicle rollover on Bittinger Road that injured two Swanton residents. At 9:42 a.m., a 2001 Ford Explorer operated by Emmitt Robinson, 67, drifted off the left side of the roadway north of Bittinger. The driver overcorrected his steering, police said, and the SUV rolled completely over in the roadway before coming to rest upright.

Both the driver and his passenger, Eleanor Robinson, 65, were transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad. Personnel from the Bittinger Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

Emmitt Robinson was charged by the investigating trooper.

On Thursday evening a vehicle went out of control on wet pavement on I-68 and hit the guardrails on both sides of the highway, injuring two of the three occupants. At 5:18 p.m., William H. Sherman, 49, Herndon, Va., was traveling eastbound when he lost control of his 2002 Chevrolet Suburban just west of Friendsville Road. The SUV veered to the left, struck the guardrail, then bounded back across the two traffic lanes to hit the guardrail on the right side of the highway.

The driver and James Paul Sherman, 18, also of Herndon, were both transported to Cumberland Memorial by the Northern Rescue Squad. A third passenger, Joan Sherman, 48, Herndon, escaped injury. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

No charges were filed by state police.

Wednesdays Summer Program Begins In Oakland

This week marked the beginning of Oakland's Wonderful Wednesdays, a summer program featuring music, entertainment, fresh local produce, artisan demonstrations, horse and buggy rides, and many store specials.

Last year was the first summer Wonderful Wednesdays program, which was so successful that it is being repeated this year, according to a spokesperson. Every Wednesday, Oakland businesses feature store specials, and will have a "Wonderful Wednesdays business participant" sign on the door or in the window.

Participating businesses this year include Marvin's Men's Wear, Proudfoot's Pharmacy, Book Mark'et, Rudy's, Emporium Antiques, Gregg's Pharmacy, Towne Restaurant, and The Shoppe at Heritage Square.

Local artisans will be demonstrating their art at The Gallery every week also.

Entertainment scheduled for the summer Wednesdays include guitarists, singers and musicians, jugglers and bagpipes. Local fresh produce will be available at the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion next to the town parking lot.

Ray Miller will be offering horse and buggy rides for $5 per person, with rides beginning and ending at the town parking lot.

Wonderful Wednesdays is sponsored by the Greater Oakland Business Association.

Give Them a Choice...

With U.S. military ranks being so widely dispersed and so many of our troops now deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan, there is more and more talk about reinstating the draft by the Selective Service System. Many believe that we simply do not have adequate troops to defend our nation, especially in the event of a major attack (God forbid).

An idea this writer proposes to help address low numbers of troops is to involve our judicial system. The jail in our county, and the thousands of jails in our country, are loaded with many young people (mostly men), a significant number of whom probably shouldn't really be there if there were some other option for judges to consider. Obviously we're not referring to those who have committed serious crimes such as rape, murder, armed robbery, etc., but to those who are serving time for crimes such as illegal drug use, breaking and entering, theft, vandalism, and/or a long list of other offenses that are far less serious.

Too often the experience of jail time turns a wayward youth into a hardened criminal, a youth who, simply with some guidance and structure in his life, could instead turn himself around and become a productive member of society. The military provides that guidance and structure, and has an excellent record of molding some good citizens out of kids who, without that experience, may have taken the negative fork in their personal path of life. Judges, during the sentence phase of a case, could offer such offenders a choice – jail or the military. Most would probably choose the military, where they would be given an opportunity to reform. They could be provided some additional basic training (e.g., anger management) and then integrated with other troops who, it is hoped, could serve as positive role models and mentors. Failure to respond in a positive way would result in a forfeiture of this option and automatically land them back in jail.

So much human potential is wasted inside our jail cells, and keeping prisoners is extremely expensive. Their room, board, and medical expenses, construction costs and maintenance of jails, and the salaries paid to wardens and guards add up to an enormous sum in tax dollars every year, with virtually nothing in return. Many of the same expenses are incurred in support of our military, but with one major difference: a healthy return on our investment. That return is not only a strong, well-maintained military, but also the molding of thousands of young people into good citizens, young people who otherwise would be just another long-term burden on society.

To the Editor:

In your editorial of June 17, the word "waiving" should be "waving."

Sincerely,
Audrey Brenneman
Grantsville

Dear Audrey,

1. You win the microwave for finding our intentional error! 2. Gee, none of our copies of the article have that error! 3. Rats . . . we were hoping no one would notice my spelling mistake, especially in that particular editorial. At least I did note that we make our fair share of typos. Plus, the grammatical errors that were noted are, in my opinion, far more serious than a misspelled word. But, thanks for writing (I think), and congrats on picking up the error. We know a lot of readers who missed it.

Editor

To the Editor:

The Republican (A pretty "damned" good paper) –

In a recent letter to the editor I used the word "supercede" (spelled with a c but changed it to an s) after checking three dictionaries and the Internet to find it had been changed from the way it had been taught in my day. I was therefore amused to see you had printed my letter changing it back to a c as I had before I made the corrections. I have since noticed that auto parts companies use it both ways, yet the dictionaries do not say it is interchangeable.

As the top speller of OHS-'44, I do not think any word formerly taught should be deleted but made interchangeable with the newer version.

Do you think guys like myself should be "dammed" or just counted "rong" for not knowing about changes? If those in charge of such things want to change some words they should start with words like "syzygy," which one in a 100 can't spell and most don't know its definition. (Try it on your employees if you think I'm wrong.)

Respectfully,
Bob Groves

To the Editor:

During these past weeks, our nation has learned about President Ronald Reagan's 10-year battle with Alzheimer's disease through the eyes of his wife and family. President Reagan acknowledged 10 years ago that he and Nancy were entering a "long twilight struggle." When initially diagnosed, neither of them understood how dark this period would be, nor the full impact it would have on Mrs. Reagan as the primary family caregiver.

According to statistics developed in 2003 by the National Family Caregivers Association, Maryland has an estimated 42,257 family caregivers. These individuals provide many hours of unpaid care to loved ones each year. If provided within the formal health care system, these services represent an annual market value of over $1 million.

The Area Agency on Aging is a community resource to help caregivers in this very special role. Our National Family Caregiver Support Program, under the direction of Leona Beckman, provides services for family caregivers that may include information about Alzheimer's support groups as well as information about other long term care services, i.e., assistance, educational programs, other support groups, respite care, and supplemental services.

We want to thank the caregivers in our community for their dedication and commitment. We encourage community members to tell their friends and neighbors about the caregiver services available through the Area Agency on Aging. There are several ways to reach us.

Call our office at 301-334-9431 or toll free 1-888-877-8403 ext. 143. E-mail us at lbeckman@garrettcac.org.

Stop by our offices. We're located on the second floor of Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. building, 104 East Center Street, Oakland, MD.

Nothing can prepare us adequately for the role of family caregiver, but the Area Agency on Aging can offer a helping hand to those who find themselves suddenly faced with this challenge.

Sincerely,
Lynda Weeks

Reference: The advertisement which appeared in the May 27 issue of The Republican by the Sprenger-Lang Foundation concerning the proposed wind turbine generators on Backbone Mountain.

The additions to the photo at the top of the advertisement have been drawn grossly out of proportion in an effort to make the wind generator towers look much larger than they actually are. If the photograph were on the same scale as the tower drawings, the width of the photograph would be only two miles wide. In reality, the distance from one edge of the photograph to the other is much greater.

In the lower photograph, the towers on the left side of the photograph are drawn the same height as the ones on the right side, even though the left side is much farther away. A quick lesson in perspective would teach the "artist" that the towers on the left side of the photograph should be drawn much smaller than the ones on the right side.

Furthermore, the towers are not white. They are not as conspicuous as the author would have you believe. With the availability of digital photography and desktop publishing, a much more accurate depiction of these scenes with the proposed wind generators could have and should have been presented.

Concerning aircraft obstruction lighting, three types of lighting are recommended for wind turbine structures: red flashing beacon, medium intensity white strobe light with reduced intensity at nighttime (italics because the ad's text failed to mention this) or medium intensity white strobe light during the daytime and red flashing beacon at night, such as is employed on the communications tower on Meadow Mountain next to I-68. Only the red flashing beacon method requires that the structure be painted in a manner similar to the red and white bands which are common on many broadcast towers. If the nighttime strobe light is really objectionable (Has anyone that lives near the existing towers actually voiced any objection?), why not approach the company before the turbines are installed to see if it is possible to use the red beacons at night instead of just complaining about it? In any case, the type of lighting selected must ultimately be approved by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Three thousand dead birds sounds like a nice round number. Did you count them? Why don't you suggest we all quit driving automobiles? Collisions with deer have certainly put a similar dent (no pun intended) in their population; however, there seems to be no danger of deer becoming extinct. Several previous letters to the editor have dealt with the folly of this excuse, so I won't dwell on it.

Many companies obtain subsidies in the way of tax breaks or low-interest loans from the state or federal government. Some even pit states against each other for financial concessions and threaten to move if their demands are not met. There seems to be no effort to curtail these actions. An electric utility or any other business will not operate at a loss. If subsidies are offered to encourage the nurturing of nascent technology and if a company is willing to take the lead, more power to them. Besides, any local company which enters the wind generation business would be eligible for the same tax credits and lower tax rates. Since Sprenger-Lang is so interested in the health of the real estate industry, I might add that that business is indirectly subsidized by the mortgage interest deduction on one's personal income tax return.

It is correct that after a wind farm is up and running, it requires a minimal staff for day-to-day operation. On the other hand, it doesn't use OPEC oil, cause air pollution, or require daily heavy truck traffic through downtown Oakland. It is one of the most environmentally benign forms of power generation in existence. Sprenger-Lang seems to have the narrow point of view that this project is undesirable because it prevents the real estate industry from developing every square inch of land in Garrett County, doesn't create hundreds of jobs, and doesn't produce an overly generous tax windfall.

Garrett County's natural beauty and unsurpassed views have already been destroyed. The once pristine view of Roman Nose Mountain from the eastern approach to the Glendale Bridge is now an eyesore topped by the "red roof in" (with apologies to the motel chain). If the current building continues, there won't be a tree left standing between the Glendale Bridge and Route 219. (A side question: Why was it necessary to clear-cut the southeast corner of Glendale Road and 219?) The "scenic" overlook on Route 219 near McHenry now gives visitors a wonderful view of large houses and condominiums gracing the ridgeline across Deep Creek Lake. There were no state or federal siting guidelines to ensure that these developments were environmentally sound and would not harm significant cultural and ecological resources, endangered species, or scenic views! Why is Sprenger-Lang so concerned that the wind farm would be constructed without these guidelines when its foundation made no effort to ensure that the construction adjacent to Deep Creek Lake would meet similar requirements?

All forms of electrical power generation have some down side: coal mining can scar landscapes and cause acid runoff, oil prices are set by OPEC's whim, burning fossil fuels can cause air pollution, nuclear reactors produce radioactive waste products, most hydroelectric projects flood scenic valleys and trout streams and displace property owners (This includes the formation of Deep Creek Lake!), and wind power generators may add a minor blemish to a scenic view and kill a few birds. The electrical energy needs of this country require that an intelligent blend of these generation technologies be utilized and that the negative effects caused by each of their shortcomings be minimized. Deep Creek was chosen for a hydroelectric plant many years ago because the area was a suitable location to create a lake. In the same manner, Backbone Mountain has now been chosen as a very suitable location for a wind farm because of the reliable wind which is present there.

Sincerely,
Howard Reynolds

Tonkovich.

"We will flush out what is in the tank at a nearby hydrant," he noted.

Dan Piaseck of the Maryland Department of the Environment was scheduled to arrive this week to help with the start-up. Chemical feed and filter representatives were also expected this week.

Tonkovich noted that the start-up was a "learning experience" for all involved, including the MDE, since there were not many capital projects like this in the state. "This is not something that is often done," he said.

Deer Park will operate the water system itself. Tonkovich noted that Jim Baker, assistant operations supervisor, and Wayne Boal operator, were working on the system now and would be responsible for its maintenance.

Funded by a Maryland Public Works grant, a U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development grant, a low-interest loan from the Maryland Department of the Environment, and other sources, the $3 million project included a treatment facility, construction of water lines, and a distribution system.

"This project was started in 1994. It's time to finish and move on," said Tonkovich, who was appointed diector shortly after the county was given jurisdiction over the former Garrett County Sanitary District Commission by state legislation last April.

HOLLYHOCKS

The trumpet blossoms of hollyhocks silently proclaim the arrival of summer. The hollyhocks stand at attention, guarding doors to my house and blending the images of God's creation and man's. God made the hollyhock, and I have planted it as a transition from the grassy yard and flowering beds to the house which is my home.

A volume on my shelves which is boldly titled The Garden Encyclopedia (emphasis of "the" is made by the editor of the encyclopedia) opines that hollyhocks "are stately hardy biennials or semi-perennials which should be included in every garden because of their graceful, tall growth which makes them especially suitable for background borders, against walls or trellises, and to screen unsightly views or fences."

In spite of the authority implicitly claimed by that volume, other sources had to be consulted to discover that the hollyhock originated in China. Descriptions begin to appear in English gardening works of the mid-sixteenth century. That may help explain why they are associated with colonial American life.

In 1607 and 1620 the hollyhock was a new variety, and therefore likely to be carried by those making a new venture. The hollyhock is surely prim enough for puritans and colorful enough for cavaliers.

In the case of my yard, the hollyhocks lift the eyes of visitors so that they might not notice the weedy condition of my yard and the paltriness of my flower beds. Flower gardening is steady work. I leap into it only on the occasions when I can tear myself away from the long list of other chores demanding my attention.

Hollyhocks do much work for me. Because they are biennials they fill space for two years. Because they produce prodigious quantities of seed they tend to reproduce themselves. In fact, unchecked they sometimes become invasive of the beds they are meant to complement.

The Garden Encyclopedia says that hollyhocks begin blossoming in July. If that is routinely so, then the fact that mine have already been blooming for the past week provides confirmatory evidence of what I have been thinking: The season is about two weeks ahead of schedule. This summer has rushed in where angels fear to tread. We had July-like weeks in May, causing me to ponder what July itself would bring.

The opening of the first hollyhock blossoms this year coincided with my mother's birthday which falls midway through the last week of spring. I drove the two hours to her home in a town that sits at the foot of the mountains. We walked up and down the charming streets and alleys. Hollyhocks adorned the yards of many homes in a place where up-to-date people express their subliminal wistfulness for the past through architecture and flowers.

It was interesting to see the same flowers in two different cultural settings, by the door of a farmhouse and in the gardens of townsfolk. As I drove from one place to the other my eye was alert for hollyhocks along the way.

There is one spot in particular which I look for, perhaps even slow down to see, where the hollyhocks are a deep red. Those in my yard are white, yellow, and rose, all gentle colors, painted in pastels. The red hollyhock bloom is just a tad shocking. While I prize modesty I am at least a little attracted to the shocking.

For all the enduring popularity of hollyhocks, it is a humble popularity, like that of rhubarb, another favorite of mine. I checked two dictionaries of quotations without finding a single reference in prose or poetry. The time may have come to compose odes to hollyhocks.

My first attempt at filling that gap has gone somewhat astray. Bartlett is not likely ever to include a couplet that runs, "Who prefers the stink of dirty socks / to the gentle scent of hollyhocks?" No, it just won't do. I try again.

Sentinels stand alert and proud with silent voices and heads unbowed.
They dress in uniforms of green which regimental colors preen.
My door they guard all summer long, ages old and forever young.

Children tease the palace guards which man the gates of nobler yards.
Crowds joke, and shout, and flirt to make the soldiers smile or speak by mistake.
None, I think, will ever mock the gentle arms of the hollyhock.

That poem may win no prizes, but it does fill a gap, the absence of tribute to the simple elegance of the hollyhock. May the poem stand, like the hollyhock, humbly, until better work takes its place.

HUNDREDS OF APPLES represent the 30 years of Linda Buckel's career in the school system. The collection began with a gift from her husband Pete and their young daughters, Kim and Tina. It grew over the years with apples from students, parents, colleagues, and family members. Buckel said, "I don't know what I'm going to do with them, but if I put them in a box, it will be a storehouse of treasure with memories and memories in each one." At the awards assembly, Buckel presented the first apple from her collection to her daughter, Kim Collins, who is a kindergarten teacher at Grantsville. She also presented a crystal apple to her granddaughter, Abby Collins, who just completed first grade at Grantsville and has expressed an interest in teaching as well. Photo by Lisa Broadwater.

From Bus Aide To Principal . . . And The Journey Continues

by Brenda Ruggiero

"Time cannot take away anything that has already been given: Your treasures from days gone by are treasures still; Your most precious memories will always be. We learn, as we go along, that happiness is not one big, beautiful jewel we can hold — or lose — in our hands. Each one of us is an hourglass. And in the course of our lives, we get to keep the diamonds that come our way among the passing sands."

— Douglas Pagels

Principal Linda Buckel used this quote in her closing remarks at a recent awards assembly at Grantsville Elementary School. It was the last day of school for students and nearly the last for teachers as well. But for Mrs. Buckel, it was much more than the last day of a school year. This day marked the end of one chapter in her life and the beginning of another.

Pausing for a moment of reflection, she stated, "For the past 30 years, I've been working to earn the opportunity to afford my ticket to go on this magnificent journey of retirement.

"Today I stand before you a woman of wealth, for I have been truly blessed with a storehouse of diamonds, gems and jewels that I have had the opportunity to see sparkle and shine in the course of my career."

For Mrs. Buckel, the seeds were planted early and nurtured during her school years.

"Ever since I was in third grade," she said, "I always wanted to be a teacher. Mrs. Marshall was my fifth grade teacher at Cresaptown Elementary, and she was the one who made me see that I really wanted to teach, and I wanted to pattern myself after this woman who loved kids and loved poetry. She was just a beautiful person, and what made her such a special person was that I knew we were all special to her, and to this day she's still very special to me."

As time passed, the Garrett County school system continued to nourish those previously sown seeds.

Mrs. Buckel explained that her teaching career began accidentally when she interviewed for a job as a health nurse at Northern High School. She didn't get the job, but the interviewer called Bill Watson, who was the cafeteria/transportation supervisor at the time, and told him that he might want to consider Linda if he had any openings.

Mr. Watson did call her, and she accepted a position as a bus aide in 1972. Her job involved riding the bus with handicapped children from the northern end of the county to the southern end, where the only facility for special needs students was located.

Her next career move came when Sally Wilson, a teacher at Green Street School, suggested that she put in an application to be an assistant at the new special education center that would be located at Accident School. When Mrs. Buckel questioned whether or not she could do the job, Wilson said, "The kids love you and you love the kids, and you know the kids, so it only makes sense." She got the job.

Shortly after, she began working toward her degree at Garrett Community College. "The last summer before I graduated in 1980, I was going to Frostburg and Garrett both at the same time," she explained. "I was doing 22 credits, because I was determined that I was going to finish so if there were an opening in the fall, then I would be eligible for the job. Besides taking the 22 credits, I was working a 40-hour week at Herrington Manor and Swallow Falls state parks, so it was really a struggle to get through, but I was really determined that I was going to be finished by the 1980 school year."

But when the offer came, it wasn't exactly what Mrs. Buckel expected. She noted that Lewis Domenick, who was in personnel at the time, called and offered her the position of a reading teacher at Northern High School.

"I said no — you'd have to be crazy to work in a high school," she explained. "I wanted to teach kindergarten or first grade, so I turned the position down. As a matter of fact, I turned the position down three times." Finally, she told Mr. Domenick that she wasn't certified in secondary education. His reply was, "We're not looking at your certification, we're looking at your qualifications, and we know you can handle this position."

Mrs. Buckel finally accepted the job. "Even though I thought you had to be crazy to work in a high school, I'd be crazy not to take this job," she remembers thinking.

She remained at Northern for the next eight years, and also spent time working as a reading resource teacher. She then worked for five years as a diagnostic and prescriptive teacher.

Her move into principalship came about quickly. She put in an application on a Thursday, got called for an interview on Friday, completed the interview on Monday, and was offered the position at Red House the same evening.

"From the time I turned the paper in to when they called and told me I had the job was just a very short period, so I didn't have time to back out," she noted.

Mrs. Buckel spent four years at Red House Elementary before the school closed. She remembers interviewing for a position at Yough Glades at that time, and she was asked where she would want to be if she could be anywhere she chose.

"I'd really like to be at Grantsville, because that's always been my dream school," she said. "That's the community that I feel like I'm a part of — that's where we bank and that's where I shop. That's where I started as a bus assistant, and where my kids went to school. I just feel that would be a nice way to end my career — I would have come full circle, back to where I started."

She was transferred to Kitzmiller, where she was principal for two years before she was offered the Grantsville position. She has spent the last six years at Grantsville. During that time, she emphasized the school slogan "Together we can make a difference." She also worked to involve the community in the school and provide opportunities for the students.

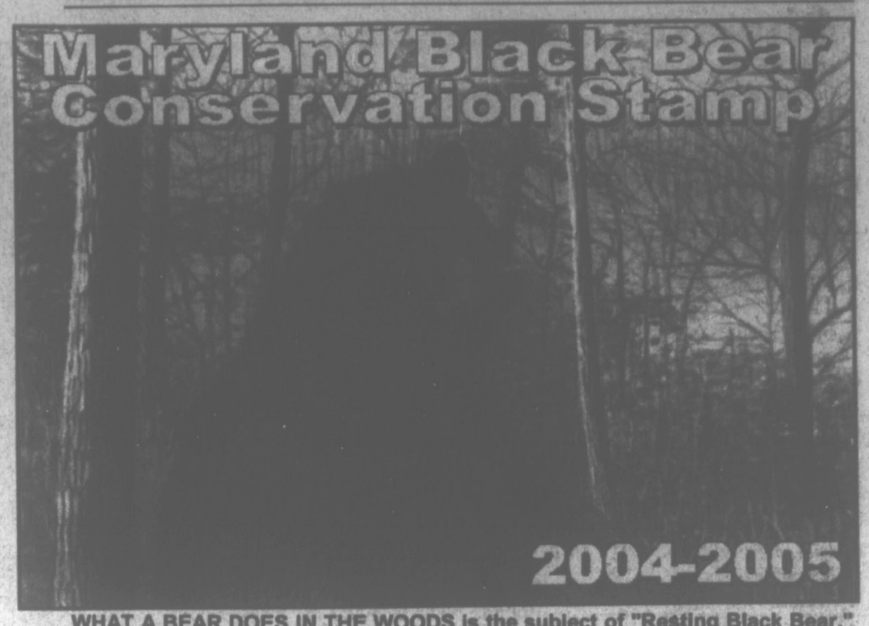
Mrs. Buckel noted that she wanted the kids to realize that learning is fun, and for the staff to see that with focused goals and a designated plan of action, positive change would occur.

She is proud of the school's work with the character education program, the beautification and school habitat programs, the volunteer participation at Grantsville, and new programs such as Accelerated Reader, Star Reader, Accelerated Math, Star Math, and the Save for America banking program.

However, she is quick to add, "It wasn't me . . . it was working together."

Mrs. Buckel noted that her decision to retire was not an easy one. "My husband Pete, my kids and my family, my friends and colleagues have always been there for me," she said.

"I love this place, and I love the kids. I've been so blessed with so many personal and professional growth opportunities, but I know that this decision is part of a master plan, and that once again, I believe that this is the right moment in time for me to be doing this, and that I am where I am because that's where I'm supposed to be. I believe this is the right point and time for me to be doing this. I don't have a clue what I'm going to do, but I know if I just listen, God will say to me, 'This is where you need to be, Linda.'"



WHAT A BEAR DOES IN THE WOODS is the subject of "Resting Black Bear," winner of the 2004-05 Maryland Black Bear Conservation Stamp Contest. The work shows a bruin taking a well-earned break from roaming its range, which can extend for many miles. It was painted by noted Severn artist Louis Frisino, who has won a number of prestigious awards and numerous wildlife art contests around the country. Frisino graduated from Maryland's School for the Deaf in Frederick in 1953, and went on to graduate with honors from the Maryland Institute College of Art, where he received the prestigious Peabody Award. He retired after 25 years as a commercial artist with Baltimore's News-American, a now-defunct daily newspaper that existed in various forms for over 200 years. Proceeds from the sale of the Black Bear stamp and other products are used to compensate farmers in Maryland experiencing agricultural damage caused by black bears. For more information, or to purchase a stamp, persons may call 410-260-8540 or visit the Maryland Department of Natural Resources web site at www.dnr.maryland.gov.

THE TERMINAL

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:08 - Released 6/18/04

When I reviewed Steven Spielberg's 2002 film Catch Me If You Can, a fluffy but likable film which co-starred Tom Hanks, I said that it was vaguely disappointing because, since those two have built such a reputation for excellence, my expectations of them had grown too high. Well, this time there isn't anything vague about it: I didn't like The Terminal. Even though it's based on a true story, even though it features the work of one of the best directors and actors currently employed, and even though it is technically as superior as anything either or both have produced in the past, its script (by Andrew Niccol, Sacha Gervasi, and Catch Me writer Jeff Nathanson) is nothing less than absurd, having been twisted, turned, romanticized, and Hollywoodized to the point of losing all of its based-on-a-true-story charm.

I guess part of my problem is that I made the mistake of watching my new DVD of Schindler's List, one of my favorite movies of all time, the day before I went to this movie. Seeing the heights of excellence to which Spielberg has soared in the past only emphasized the comparative mediocrity of his latest film. There are so many holes in the plot of this movie, so many ridiculous lapses in credibility, so many poorly drawn, patently unbelievable characters and events, I was appalled almost from the first scene. Even if the general framework of this story really did happen, this retelling is almost entirely preposterous and unbelievable, and the only reason the film achieves a barely passing grade is because of the technical talents exuded by its director, cast and crew. Spielberg has proven himself a genius, and can afford good people, like cinematographer Janusz Kaminski, film editor Michael Kahn, and composer John Williams, but no amount of talent can offset the myriad weaknesses of this script.

The story begins when Viktor Navorski (Hanks), an immigrant from the fictional eastern European country of Krakozhia who is on his way to New York City, is stranded at JFK airport (which, by the way, is re-created in true Spielbergian style down to the last escalator, including arrival/departure monitors, banks of seating, and a fully functional food court and shopping center with numerous name stores and restaurants). As it happens, a war in Viktor's home country has resulted in a bloody coup and a change of government, and Krakozhia as we know it has ceased to exist, rendering his passport invalid. He is escorted to the office of customs supervisor Frank Dixon (Stanley Tucci), who, despite the fact that Viktor obviously does not understand a word of English, explains to him in a very complicated and rude fashion that he is "unacceptable," actually exploding a bag of chips from his own lunch all over his own office to illustrate how Viktor's country has been decimated. Viktor is then turned loose in the airport with strict orders not to leave, while Dixon engages in several ridiculous and borderline illegal plots to entice him to escape so that he's "somebody else's problem."

As days turn to weeks and weeks to months, Viktor takes up residence in a portion of the airport which is supposedly under construction (although no one ever comes to work on it). He makes friends with various airport service personnel, such as a customs clerk (Zoe Saldana) who advises him to fill out the same form every day so that she may make a fresh application of her red "denied" stamp; a trio of baggage handler/custodians (Chi McBride, Diego Luna, Kumar Pallana) who run a regular poker game using items from the Lost And Found department as ante capital; and a comely flight attendant named Amelia (Catherine Zeta-Jones) who becomes extremely fond of him despite that fact that she regularly misunderstands his broken English and is engaged in an ongoing affair with a married man. Meanwhile, Viktor manages to eke out a living, first by scrounging quarters, then by striking up a deal with a food service worker, and finally by joining the airport's construction crew (even though he still doesn't have a passport, a green card, a work visa, or any form of identification), and makes friends with just about every worker and store owner in the airport's shopping center, until they all are rooting for him to defy Dixon's orders and enter the U.S. illegally.

I would think that the customs and security personnel and general management at JFK would be absolutely incensed by this movie, as they are nearly all portrayed as alternately stupid, insensitive, rude, and/or criminal, not to mention generally ineffective at their jobs. Scenes in which the petty and vindictive Dixon watches a security monitor, anxiously hoping for Viktor to walk out the door so that he may contact the authorities, are interspersed with scenes of Viktor using airport construction materials to build himself a virtual apartment (not to mention an extremely ornate and elaborate gift for Amelia), complete with an airport-owned soda vending machine as his own personal refrigerator. Although he is ostensibly portrayed as a good man because he refuses to defy the restrictions placed on him, he is constantly breaking other rules which are inexplicably ignored by the authorities. As usual, Hanks makes us like and empathize with his character despite the textual imperfections which would doom a lesser actor. His performance is certainly likable and believable, although his Russian-esque gibberish is sometimes quite obviously false (especially in the scene where he converses with a man who is actually speaking Russian). But the whole plot of this movie is an elaborate cock-up, a ridiculous attempt at romanticizing a story which, if it had been told truthfully and without embellishment, would probably have been quite engaging.

Incidentally, the real story of Mehran "Alfred" Nasseri, the Iranian refugee who was stranded in Paris's Charles de Gaulle airport in 1988 and apparently chose to stay there despite subsequently receiving permission to live in Belgium, has indeed been the inspiration for at least two films before, namely the 1993 French comedy Tombés Du Ciel and the 2001 mock documentary film Here To Where (in which Nasseri himself appeared). Although I have not seen either of these films, I'd be willing to bet either is preferable to this version.

I think I'll go watch Saving Private Ryan. ★★★

60 Years Ago: Garrett County Hit By Tornado

by Brenda Ruggiero

On June 23, 1944, a tornado swept through Garrett County, leaving a mile-wide path of destruction. According to the June 29, 1944, issue of The Republican, three people were killed, at least eight were hospitalized, and many others were injured.

The article reads: "The storm cut a clean path throughout the county knocking down, destroying or damaging houses, barns, outbuildings, timber, and killing cattle, horses, hogs, chickens and sheep by the score.

"The twister in this area was just part of a pattern of destruction in West Virginia and Pennsylvania, which took at least 146 lives, injuring more than 1,000 and causing millions of dollars in property damage. Hardest hit was an area around Shinnston, WV, where 58 died. The destruction here was estimated at $100,000."

The storm reportedly broke over Garrett County around 9 p.m., hitting between Terra Alta and Cranesville, WV. Damage was reported at Route 219, Broadford Road, Mt. Lake Park/Deer Park Road, Swallow Falls, and the Bethlehem community.

The article continued, "Mr. and Mrs. James Sebold were killed when their home near Deer Park was blown from its foundation and completely demolished, while their four children miraculously escaped death and are now in the hospital recovering from injuries. The baby had a lacerated right hand. All had brush burns and cuts.

"The only other fatality was that of Robert Tilton Paugh, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Paugh, of the Bethlehem community. Their home was completely destroyed. Mr. Paugh and two daughters are in the hospital at Keyser, while Mrs. Paugh and other members of the family are at the Kiser home at Mt. Lake Park.

"How the other persons in the demolished houses escaped death is still a mystery not only to the individuals themselves, but others.

"Garrett County virtually was sealed off from the world for 15 hours after the storm hit, road and wire communications not being fully restored until Saturday

CITY STROKES BY STEVE

Steve Charity, who said he has always been concerned with fashion, has recently opened a new clothing store called City Strokes by Steve, at the Castle on Oakland Drive near Southern High School.

Charity was born in Virginia, but said his roots are in New York City.

His business offers original designer clothing, handbags, and accessories found in the larger metropolitan areas. Special orders are available.

"Everyone is treated like family," Charity said. "We are totally customer driven. I am very much concerned about the community, and prefer to be very active in the community, especially with anything that involves young people. That is an additional reason for starting this clothing business.

"This will provide young people with clothing that will make them look good and be affordable."

According to Charity, all the garments and items are handpicked based on customer feedback. The prices are affordable and the styles are up to date with what is carried in the big cities.

"My desire is to be the 'go-to' guy in town for clothing," said Charity. "I am not boasting to take the place of the mall, but before you make that drive, see me first."

Grantsville Days History

In 1977 the Grantsville Business Association decided to have an event that would encourage local organizations to work together to sponsor a fun weekend for the community. It was designed as a non-commercial "homecoming" event for people who had moved away from Grantsville — a chance for them to return to Grantsville to renew old acquaintances and to have family reunions. The participating organizations would be able to use the event for fund-raising, and it was decided that food booths would be limited to non-commercial, local church, and community organizations. The tradition has continued to the present day, and that's what separates Grantsville Days from other events that allow commercial food vendors. The food concessions are centered around the local Lions Club chicken BBQ, which is held both Saturday and Sunday.

The 3-day event is now coordinated by the Grantsville Lions Club. Through the years, 2 nights of fireworks have been added and are now sponsored entirely by local businesses. Many local people donate their time and expertise to make Grantsville Days successful. The entire community joins together each year to have a successful weekend. There are many activities for persons of all ages, including tennis, basketball, and children's games. Unique tractor and horse pulling contests have been added with great enthusiasm from the community. Other events include a western line dance demonstration and tale weaving.

A new stage was constructed in 1994 to showcase the excellent, free entertainment offered all 3 days. Visitors are encouraged to bring lawn chairs for a weekend of superb, continuous performances. Similar community events are held each year, but we feel Grantsville Days is unique. Ask anyone who has attended and you will hear the same answer: They are looking forward to the next Grantsville Days. Each year the attendance grows, so the word must be getting out. A huge, new playground was dedicated in 1996. The community response was fantastic. You won't see a nicer playground anywhere in the area and probably not even in major cities. Kids visit the playground from miles around. You have to see it to believe it!

In 1998 a new, large pavilion was constructed. Now there are 3 in the park for groups to have picnics. They are always reserved in advance every weekend during the summer months. The new pavilion allowed the Lions to shorten the waiting list for use of the buildings.

Golf Tournament, Banquet Slated To Benefit United Way

The annual Charity Golf Tournament and Banquet is scheduled for Friday, July 9, at the Oakland Golf Club. This marks the sixth time in the event's 16-year history that the benefit tourney has been sponsored by First United Bank and Trust. Proceeds will go to the United Way of Garrett County.

Since its inception, the benefit tournament has raised over $194,000 for Garrett County charities as "participants enjoy a challenging round of golf, and at the same time help raise much needed funds for worthy community projects," an organizer said.

The United Way of Garrett County was established in January 2000 to provide funds for area charities, explained Jeannette Rudy Fitzwater, the agency's Executive Committee chairperson. The non-profit organization relies solely on contributions for its funding, and all funds are used exclusively for programming within Garrett County.

"United Way of Garrett County is very appreciative for being chosen by the bank again this year to be the benefactor of the annual charity golf tournament," said Fitzwater. "The proceeds that are raised play a big part in meeting the organization's campaign goals and the best part is that the funds directly benefit the Garrett County efforts."

Golfers will be competing for team prizes redeemable at the Oakland Golf Club Pro Shop. First place low net and low gross teams will each receive $1,000 gift certificates; the second place low net and low gross teams will each receive $650 gift certificates; the third place low net team will receive a $400 gift certificate, while the fourth place low net team will receive a $200 gift certificate; and the fifth place low net team will receive a $100 gift certificate.

Sponsorships are also sought for the fundraiser, and persons, organizations, and businesses that register as associate sponsors will receive two tickets to the banquet and awards ceremony, which will immediately follow the tournament. Associate sponsors will be recognized on prominently displayed signs on the day of the event, and through a "thank you" ad following the tournament.

Persons interested in becoming a sponsor may call 1-800-470-4356, ext. 2420.

Rams Don Area Baseball Crown For Third Straight Year, 10th Total

The Southern High School varsity baseball program will have to start counting its area championships on its toes from now on, as the Ram program has added its tenth area title to a storied list of accomplishments over the 18 years of the post-season poll. This latest accolade came via a unanimous vote.

The 2004 SHS squad, which opened with 15 straight wins and turned in an overall 17-2 mark, were named area kingpins for the third straight year, and for the eighth time in 11 seasons. The Rams join other area champion squads fielded by SHS in 1987 (the poll's debut year), 1988, 1994 through 1998, and 2002 to the present.

"Going into the season we felt the strength of our team was definitely pitching and defense," Southern coach Jim Bosley commented of his latest champion unit. "We had Chris Smith and Scott Wildesen back as pitchers, and they had won 14 of the 17 games the previous year. We also had Aaron Louden up from the jayvee team, where he was 5-0 as a pitcher.

"However, without a doubt, this was the single best defensive team I've ever had, position by position. We only had 30 errors in 19 games. That's a school record for fewest errors in a season for us. It wasn't even close — the previous record was 37 errors," the Ram skipper stated. Southern's defense was anchored by junior shortstop Cory Bosley, who made just two errors all year.

Smith, a senior left-hander and preseason All-State pick, plus Wildesen and Louden led a pitching staff that had a 2.45 earned run average and an excellent walk-to-strikeout ratio. In 123 innings, the Rams allowed only 83 hits, walked 43 and fanned 170. There were also four no-hitters. Smith no-hit Allegany and Keyser, and Louden no-hit Allegany. The other, against Hampshire, was a combined no-hitter by Wildesen and Louden.

Smith finished 6-2 with a 2.23 ERA and 75 strikeouts in 44 innings. Wildesen was 7-0 with a 1.92 and 65 strikeouts in 51 1/3 innings. Louden was 4-0 with a 2.80 and 22 strikeouts in 20 innings.

The Rams' offense was none too shabby as well, as it compiled a .363 team batting average, with Billy Reams hitting .509 with 29 hits, nine doubles, five homers, 31 RBI, and 28 runs scored — all team highs.

"Billy is one of the top three hitters I think I've ever coached," said Bosley, who has led the SHS program for approximately 25 years. "I think he's the best player in the area. We built our team around him, and he's also a very good defensive catcher."

Tyler Graham hit .400 with seven doubles and 19 RBI, Curt Taylor hit .394, Brad Reese .373 with 17 RBI, Wildesen .371 with seven doubles and 27 RBI, and Cory Bosley .347 with 7 doubles and 24 RBI.

Others who hit .300 or better were Corey Burrell, .343, Louden .320 with 20 RBI, and Smith with .319.

Five starters were underclassmen, each who gained valuable experience this season, which bodes well for next spring, according to Bosley, who credits the work of Garrett County's summer baseball program for much of his squad's successes, this year and in the past.

"A good year of American Legion ball last summer certainly helped the kids hit the way they did," Bosley observed of the local Garrett County team, which took the Legion Mountain District title and played in the state tournament. "Eight of our nine starters played Legion ball last year for Ed Wildesen, who does a great job running it. The summer Legion program has been a big help to our program."

FISHING RODEO WINNER – The Department of Natural Resources' 15th annual Herrington Manor State Park Fishing Rodeo drew 63 anglers to the shores of Herrington Manor Lake recently under cool, cloudy skies. The age division winners were: Under 6, Kiana White of Friendsville; ages 7-11, Jasmin Wadsworth of Brownsville, Pa.; and ages 12-16, Eric Park of Oakland. The 14-year-old Park, shown above, also landed the day's largest catch, a whopping 16-inch, 25.8 oz. rainbow trout. Among those on hand for the event were Garrett County sheriff's deputies, who facilitated educational activities and distributed materials underscoring the event's theme of "Hooked on Fishing, Not on Drugs." The fishing rodeo drew financial support from a number of businesses, organizations, and individuals recruited from throughout the community by Sponsorship Committee chairperson Debbie Beitzel and her fellow volunteers.

All-Stars Chasing Sixth Straight Sr. Lg. District Crown

The Oakland Senior League All-Stars open their quest for a sixth straight District title at 1:30 p.m. this Sunday, June 27, when they take on the winner of Saturday's game between South County and Maugansville. The local 15- and 16-year-olds will compete in the weeklong double-elimination tournament against five teams from the Hagerstown area.

The players on this year's Senior League team roster are Chris Care, Matt Davis, Bret DeWitt, Mike Edwards, Matt Fitzwater, John Knox, Tim Reams, Anthony Schrock, Joey Tressler, Jason Wakefield, and Shane Weaver. As in past seasons, the team is coached by Doug Copeland, James Burns, and Matthew Whitacre.

"It's been very difficult to get our entire team together for practice, so we're not as ready to play as we would like," Coach Copeland commented. "I feel this team is capable of keeping the streak alive if they stay positive and play well defensively. I think our pitching will be one of our strengths, but we will need to find a way to manufacture some runs."

Oakland's Junior League All-Star team, composed of 13- and 14-year-olds, will play in a 5:30 p.m. contest Sunday at Broadford Park. This year's Junior League All-Stars roster is also composed of 11 players: Jason Ashby, Justin Ratliff, Jordan Pacella, Jeff Stem, Sammy Frantz, Tommie Reams, Mike Delaney, Cory Lipscomb, Mark Bittinger, Chris Hinebaugh, and Seth Fike. The squad is coached by Brad Frantz, Paul Pacella, and Mike Delaney.

"Hopefully we will get a nice crowd on Sunday," Copeland stated. "It sure means a lot to these kids."

In addition to its six consecutive district titles, the Oakland Senior League All-Stars team also won the 2000 Maryland state championship.

Salisbury Snaps Wisp's Hot Stove Winning Streak

Salisbury turned up the heat in Hot Stove Baseball League action this week, as the Orioles downed Boal's Funeral Home 4-2, the Wisp 3-2, and Ridgeley VFW 9-3. The homefield extra-inning victory over the Wisp, paced by Brock Glotfelty's three-hit pitching performance, halted the guests' 12-game winning streak. However, the Wisp rebounded from the setback to crush the Cresaptown Eagles in a 10-0, two-hit shutout tossed by Matt Sisler.

The Salisbury slate opened last Thursday, June 17, as Greg Beachy helped dig Boal's grave with some strong pitching and clutch hitting. In the fourth stanza, with two outs showing, Beachy doubled home a pair of runs that put the O's up 4-0 on the way to their two-run win. Beachy gained a complete-game win on the mound, whiffing eight Boal's batters and giving up seven hits.

The following day, the high-flying Orioles hosted the unbeaten Wisp team, and a classic showdown ensued. The game went into the bottom of the eighth (the mandatory final inning, by league rules), with the score knotted at 2-all. Jarod Mahoney led off the Salisbury half of the stanza by ripping a double, and advanced into scoring position when Glotfelty, the next batter, drew a walk. The Wisp was able to get two straight outs, including Mahoney, but Glotfelty was able to eventually scamper home with the winning run.

Glotfelty got the complete-game win by giving up just three hits, one a Patrick Brady homerun. Corey Carr started for Wisp, and Sisler came to the mound in the third inning. Salisbury scored its first two runs in the fourth inning, and Wisp scored its pair in the fifth.

Salisbury had to rally from an early two-run deficit Monday against Ridgeley. The Orioles tied the score at 2-2 in the bottom of the first, then hammered out five runs in the second stanza. They added two in the fifth, and Ridgeley responded with one in the sixth to close out the scoring.

Aaron Beiler paced the O's on the mound with a complete-game five-hitter and 13 strikeouts. Mahoney ripped a two-run double for Salisbury, Beiler added a run-scoring double and a single, and Ben Diehl punched out a pair of singles.

After its Salisbury loss, the Wisp came out on fire early Tuesday against Cresaptown to score two runs in the first inning and three in the second, then added one in the fourth and four in the fifth. Meanwhile, Sisler was blazing through the hosts' lineup from the mound, whiffing seven batters and issuing just one walk.

Corey Carr led the Wisp at the plate offense with five RBI on two singles and a sacrifice. Tyler Southerly and Brady drove home two runs apiece.

Salisbury (8-2) plays American Insurance today at Hamilton Field, while the Wisp (13-1) hosts Fort Ashby today in Accident.

Oaks Drop Four Of Six Pen Mar League Outings

The Oakland Oaks had a tough week on the Pen Mar League circuit this week, as the local squad took only two wins across the span of three doubleheaders. The Oaks were swept Saturday by Tri-State, 3-0 and 7-5, then were edged in Sunday's opener, 2-1, before roaring back in the second game to hand the unbeaten Titans their first defeat of the year by a convincing 8-3 margin. Last night Oakland split a pair with Cumberland, opening with a narrow 2-1 loss before answering with a 3-1 victory.

The Oaks were held to just three hits by the Titans' Brian Powell in Saturday's opener, while Oakland's Bryson Meyers tossed six innings and Matt Miller one as the pair combined to limit the guests to just five hits. Meyers gave up just one earned run and recorded two strikeouts.

The Titans roared out to a 5-0 lead in the leadoff inning of their two-run nightcap win. Miller and Ryan Hess doubled and singled, Tobi Stoner singled twice, and Jeff Kuykendall doubled and drove in two runs for Oakland, which had 11 hits.

The following day's twinbill opener was a heartbreaking loss for the Oaks, who had rallied to pull within one in the final stanza of a pitcher's duel. Oakland's Hickerson tossed a five-hitter and struck out six Titans in a complete-game losing effort, while Tri-State's Josh Logsdon gave up five hits on his way to the complete-game win. Tobi Stoner recorded two of Oakland's five hits, all singles.

A team effort boosted the Oaks over their hosts in the nightcap, as Jeremy Fitzwater and Dan Vagnetti combined to hold the Titans to just three hits. Oakland's Alex Weinstein went a perfect four-for-four at the plate, recording four RBI on a pair of doubles and a pair of singles. Miller added two singles to the Oaks' 11-hit attack.

After Oakland was edged by Cumberland in last night's opener at Allegany College, the Oaks went on to record a 3-1 win in the nightcap. Stoner picked up the win on the mound for Oakland.

The Oaks are slated to take on Cumberland in a twinbill rematch that will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Hot Stove Field located at the Allegany County Fairgrounds.

Current Pen Mar League standings are as follows: Tri-State, 11-1; Philippi, 7-4; Oakland, 7-5; Cumberland, 8-6; Parkersburg, 2-9; and Salisbury, 1-11.

Sailboat Racing

UNSTABLE WEATHER, BUT FINE RACING
by Dan Muss

For the past week there has been a horizontal front hanging over the Mason-Dixon Line bringing us clouds and rain. The forecast was for clearing by Saturday noon, but by race time it was still socked in and threatening rain. The wind was westerly about 7 to 12 knots, so with the motorboats at bay it was just perfect for sailing. Principal Race Officer (PRO) Bruce Spinnenweber set a good course up through the slot, with the windward mark off Holy Cross Point and the leeward mark off Poland Run.

We had a good start and led for the first three legs. Approaching the leeward mark we were flying, and I misjudged how long it would take to get our spinnaker down with my still inexperienced forward crew. When we arrived at the mark I could not round up to close-hauled because the spinnaker was still up. We stalled, and four boats passed us before we could get the spinnaker down and get moving again. However, we still had three legs to go and worked our way back up into second place. We were halfway to the finish line, and I was thinking about covering the third-place boat, when we got a huge and lucky "lift" that practically pointed us at the finish flag. Leader Frank Meehan was not so fortunate. We were on a starboard tack, and I was hoping to get far enough upwind to cut Frank off as he tacked onto port to weather the finish flag. We would then tack onto port and sneak over the line; but it was not to be – Frank was able to clear us on port and finished just ahead of us.

Temps dipped into the 40s early Sunday morning, and it was still pretty cool by noon. The forecast was for a high of 65 with wind light and variable and clear skies. That's what we had with the vaporous breezes boxing the compass. But it was mostly northerly, and that's what the PRO set the line for. At race time the wind was a nervous 0-5 knots, but by the last leg it was blowing close to 10. We got off to a poor start, with the starboard tack favored at the committee boat. So, as soon as we cleared the committee boat we tacked onto an unfavorable port tack to get cleaner air. We were fortunate to pick up both a lift and some wind, and we were first around the windward mark with Meehan close on our heels.

My crew, Jim Munford, and I got the spinnaker up and filled quickly, but then the wind died and we sat bobbing in the motorboat wakes. The wind came up from behind and the lead boats of the Championship Fleet passed us, as did a number of Masters. We had to give room at both the jibe mark and the leeward mark, so by the second windward leg we were back in the middle of the pack. We managed to work our way back up, and by the last windward leg – with the wind now a pretty steady 10 knots northerly – we started to cover Ted Rissell in "Nemesis." We finished first, and Al and Jean Thagard second.

Restoration Funds Available For Md. Wetland Habitats

David Doss, state conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), recently announced that Maryland received funding of $1,240,800 to create and restore wetland habitats through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP).

Landowners interested in filing an application for funding consideration or learning more about WRP or other conservation programs are asked to immediately contact their county's Soil Conservation District or NRCS office located at USDA service centers. Sign-up will end on August 1, when all applications will be ranked according to criteria that will determine which proposals offer the most environmental benefits at the lowest cost.

Participants in WRP voluntarily limit future use of the land, but retain private ownership. Landowners benefit by receiving financial and technical assistance in return for protecting wetlands, reducing problems associated with farming potentially wet and difficult areas, and developing wildlife and recreational opportunities on their land.

According to the NRCS, wetlands benefit the nation by providing fish and wildlife habitat; improving water quality by filtering sediments and chemicals; reducing flooding; recharging groundwater; protecting biological diversity; and providing opportunities for educational, scientific, and recreational activities.

The WRP offers three enrollment options:

Permanent Easement – This is a conservation easement in perpetuity. Easement payments for this option equal the lower of two amounts: the agricultural value of the land as established by appraisal or an amount offered by the landowner. In addition to paying for the easement, USDA pays 100 percent of the costs of restoring the wetland.

30-Year Easement – Easement payments

Adorable Adoptables

JUNE IS "ADOPT A SHELTER CAT" MONTH and there are plenty to choose from at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Pictured above are two of three male kittens who were brought in with their mother. Two are orange tabby, and one is tabby with white. They look like they will be longhaired. "The mom is nice as well," said a Humane Society spokesperson. Also pictured above is Mitten, a young female gray/white tuxedo, who was brought in with her sister Sheba, a white longhair, who is pictured below. Additionally, a male black Lab mix was picked up as a stray last week near the Savage River. "We hope the owner will call. If not, he is available for adoption now," said the spokesperson. Jag, the large hound featured in last week's paper, was finally adopted. "It was a happy moment, since he had spent almost a year in a kennel waiting for his original owner to reclaim him," said the spokesperson. "Also, the owner reclaimed a large dog who was picked up in Accident last week. He had a collar but no identification. If he had, the owner could have been contacted sooner," said the spokesperson. "The shelter is full, so it is important that you call when your dog is missing." For more information about adopting these pets, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553.

afternoon. Telephone and electric company crews worked until Sunday to put everything back in shape.

"The town of Oakland just missed the full force of the storm but nearby places were strewn with splintered trees, telegraph poles, dead animals, roofs of houses, twisted storm wreckage, etc. Areas about a mile wide were swept clean at some places.

"District Forester William H. Johnson, after visiting the area, estimated roughly about 4,000 acres of timberland destroyed by the tornado."

In a separate article titled "Disaster Sidelights," details were given of various incidents during the storm. It states: "All who noticed farm animals during the storm said they all appeared bewildered. One animal was noticed in particular, a Guernsey bull, 2 years old, belonging to Mrs. T.W. Casteel, north of town. During the storm it broke from a pen and tried to enter Mrs. Casteel's home, chased everybody who came near it, and even after several neighbors had succeeded in getting him back in the barn kept bellering and pawing all night long. The next day it was taken to Terra Alta and was due to go on the auction block on Tuesday. It had been extremely gentle prior to the storm. Mrs. Casteel's barn was on the edge of the storm."

through this option are 75 percent of what would be paid for a permanent easement. USDA also pays 75 percent of restoration costs.

For both permanent and 30-year easements, USDA pays all costs associated with recording the easement in the local land records office, including recording fees, charges for abstracts, survey and appraisal fees, and title insurance.

Restoration Cost-Share Agreement – This is an agreement (generally for a minimum of 10 years) to re-establish degraded or lost wetland habitat. USDA pays 75 percent of the cost of the restoration activity. This enrollment option does not place an easement on the property.

NRCS and its partners, including Soil Conservation Districts, continue to provide assistance to landowners after completion of restoration activities. This assistance may be in the form of reviewing restoration measures, clarifying technical and administrative aspects of the easement and project management needs, and providing basic biological and engineering advice on how to achieve optimum results for wetland dependent species.

NRCS is USDA's lead conservation agency and has worked hand in hand with farmers and landowners for almost 70 years to conserve natural resources on private lands, noted an NRCS spokesperson. Maryland landowners can learn more about conserving natural resources by contacting NRCS Maryland through USDA service centers or by visiting the NRCS Maryland home page at md.nrcs.usda.gov.

Garrett County's field service center is located 1916 Maryland Highway, Mtn. Lake Park. The phone number is 301-334-6950.

country music — essentially a mixture of country, bluegrass, folk, and pop — is slated for July 30, when Kat Mills of western Virginia and Mary Alice Wood of Nashville give twang a whole new twist. Mills, an northern Virginia native who now resides in Blacksburg, Va., and Wood have both been compared to acts as varied as Patsy Cline and Gillian Welch, Emmylou Harris and Joan Baez, and Bruce Springsteen and R.E.M.

The Little Yough Festival will then take a three-week break until Aug. 27, when another alternative country showcase takes the stage in the form of Eliza Gilkyson and Dar Williams. Award-winning songrwriter Gilkyson, who hails from the alt-country hotbed of Austin, Texas, and Williams, who brings to mind Mary Chapin Carpenter while retaining her own signature sound, are recognized as two of the top female songwriters working today.

The summer will close out when "GarrettStock" rocks the Yough in the form of the mountaintop's own the Remedy and the Smith & Roberts Band. The Remedy will kick off the extra-long homegrown evening of music at 7 p.m., with Smith and Roberts slated to follow at approximately 9 p.m.

The Remedy is fast gaining a reputation as a large but extremely tight and talented blues-rock ensemble, complete with a horn section, with a little jazz and country tossed in for good measure. Oakland doctor Jim Jones and his cohorts tear through lengthy sets spiced with covers of hits by the likes of Jerry Lee Lewis, Van Morrison, the Rolling Stones, and Patsy Cline.

The evening will conclude in original fashion as Rob Smith and Keith Roberts, local musicians who first teamed up three decades ago, lead their accomplished five-piece folk and bluegrass band through a long set of self-penned compositions, a number of which explore the stable foundations, as well as the staggering changes, of life on the mountaintop.

The Little Yough Summer Music Festival is still welcoming potential sponsors who wish to help fund the series, which is coordinated by the Greater Oakland Business Association. For information on how to become a sponsor, persons may contact Oakland Main Street program manager Cherie Ross at 301-616-3026. Further details and photographs of the scheduled performers also appear in today's "Summer Sensations" insert, and additional information is available on the Little Yough Music Festival's web site at www.littleyough.com.

Local music lovers are also encouraged to keep abreast of the growing lineup of acts coming to the stage of Mighty Oaks Brew Pub South, located in the basement of the Oakland Golf Club's clubhouse. The restaurant/tavern is hosting a series of Saturday night "preview" concerts of top singer-songwriters and bands, many who will likely take to the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion Stage for future installments of the Little Yough Music Festival. For further information, call the Mighty Oaks Brew Pub South at 301-533-0701, or Ken Perrin at 301-387-2440. Capacity Study Discussion Set

Background

Since 1988, Garrett County's population and economy have experienced significant growth. The Deep Creek Lake Land Use and Recreation Plan (LURP), which was prepared by the MDNR and PRB in July 2001, indicates that "fairly extensive development has occurred at several places around the perimeter of the Lake." It also states "more than 40 percent of the subdivisions in Garrett County between 1986 and 1996 were for homes in the Deep Creek Lake area" (LURP, 2001).

This study was specifically conducted to determine: current/existing recreational boating lake uses; potential/projected future recreational boating uses; optimal recreational boating use carrying capacities, the ability of the lake to accommodate existing and future demands; and management options for controlling growth if boating commercial uses at the lake meet or exceed carrying capacity.

In addition to simply quantifying existing and future recreational use, this study also provides information to help address some of the recreational use issues and conflicts that currently exist at Deep Creek Lake. These include: balancing protection of Deep Creek Lake and the desire for economic development in Garrett County; the appropriate amount and type of commercial use along the Deep Creek Lake buffer; and need for additional public boat access so people without dock permits can easily access this valuable recreational resource.

Recommendations

Based on our analysis of the spot counts, aerial photographs, and contact and waterfront resident survey responses, we make the following recommendations:

•Provide increased law enforcement on days when lake carrying capacity may be exceeded, especially in bottleneck areas near the bridges and Turkey Neck to insure a safe and enjoyable boating experience.

•More strictly enforce the Maryland Boaters Safety Education Act requirements to insure that boat operators possess a valid certificate of boating safety.

•Consider prohibiting special boating events during peak use hours on holiday weekends, especially in the more crowded northern and central lake zones.

•Do not expand the Deep Creek Lake Boat Launch parking area — this will only result in increasing the probability of exceeding lake carrying capacity.

•Consider providing a small cartop boat put-in for canoes and kayaks on one of the coves in the northern or southern lake zones to provide improved access for non-motorized watercraft.

•Limit commercial uses adjacent to or on Deep Creek Lake to those consistent with a rural outdoor recreational experience. Other more commercialized uses, such as those included in this study's surveys, are inconsistent with the natural setting and type of recreational experience visitors and residents are seeking.

•Conduct a study to evaluate the severity and causes of noise and shoreline erosion at Deep Creek Lake.

Discussion of Reccomendations

This study found that current recreational use exceeds the recommended boat carrying capacity at Deep Creek Lake, on average, approximately one day per summer, usually during good weather on a holiday weekend. As discussed above, we recommend increased law enforcement and prohibition of special events during peak use hours on holiday weekends, at least in the more congested northern and central lake zones, to mitigate the effects of these occasional peak use periods.

Current growth of up to 16% in peak boating use by the year 2003 is projected to result in both an increase in the magnitude of the annual peak BAOT as well as the frequency at which the boat carrying capacity is exceeded. As recommended above in the Limits of Acceptable Change, if the carrying capacity is exceeded more than two weekends a summer, we recommend that MDNR consider implementing management actions.

It is difficult to control boating levels on lakes, especially at lakes with so many waterfront residences. The survey responses indicated little to no support from visitors, commercial operators, and even waterfront residents for decreasing boat horsepower capacity, establishing speed limits, or expanding no wake zones. Most of these measures more directly address boating safety rather than carrying capacity anyway.

Strategies for Implementing Recommendations

Therefore, we recommend MDNR consider the following actions to address boat carrying capacity if use levels exceed the LAC metrics:

•Prohibit waterskiing from 11 am to 4 pm on the Saturday, Sunday and holiday of Memorial Day weekend and the Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays from July 1 through Labor Day. This measure would parallel the current regulations for personal watercraft. It would remove the boating use that has the highest use factor (12 acres per boat) and which poses the greatest safety risk in congested boating areas.

•When boat levels exceed the recommended lake carrying capacity (based on MIDNR aerial boat counts or the judgment of Maryland Natural Resource Police), MDNR may limit access to Deep Creek Lake from the Deep Creek Lake State Park boat launch and from commercial boat rental businesses. Additional boats would only be launched or rented to replace boats returning from the lake.

The Maryland Natural Resource Police would authorize the State Park and boat rental businesses to resume normal operations when they determine boating levels have dropped below 450 boats. These measures primarily affect visitors to Deep Creek Lake. The only ways to effectively limit access to Deep Creek Lake by waterfront residents would be to implement a mandatory lake use permit system.

The feasibility of a similar proposal was evaluated in 1994 by MDNR and was determined to be impractical (MDNR, 1994). The survey responses from this study indicate a certain degree of self-regulation on the part of waterfront residents. This self-regulation, combined with the active management of visitor use by the measures described above, would reasonably distribute the burden of limiting lake access to all affected parties.

Most of the predicted future increase in boating use at Deep Creek Lake is attributable to residential growth in the Deep Creek Lake market area. Respondents to both the waterfront resident and contact survey supported limiting residential development in the area. Although MDNR does not have the authority to directly manage residential growth (this lies with Garrett County, which has a growth management study underway), it does have the authority to limit the granting of new buffer strip use permits (e.g., pier or common dock permits). This authority could be exercised by MDNR to help control the increase in boating use at Deep Creek Lake.

We believe that the other measures recommended above are better focused on addressing boating levels on peak use days. Prohibiting new buffer strip use permits will not necessarily eliminate the need to implement the other measures described above.

Garrett County may determine that additional growth management measures are warranted in order to preserve the rural character of Deep Creek Lake, to protect water quality, or for other reasons, but we do not believe restricting the issuance of new buffer strip use permits is justified simply to limit boating on a few peak use days.

GC Art Gallery To Present Ceramics By Michelle Miller

The Art Gallery of Garrett College will host an exhibition of recent ceramic works by artist Michelle Miller from June 25, through July 27. Her show will present both functional and sculptural ceramic pieces made with high-fired porcelain and an emphasis on surface quality and design. An opening reception is set for Friday evening, June 25, from 7 to 9 p.m. The public is welcome.

Miller's work in clay focuses on the development of form, surface, and function, and how it relates to both historical pottery and contemporary ceramics. She is involved with researching formal issues in ceramics and creatively interpreting forms with her own personal style. She begins with simple forms thrown on a wheel, then stretches or in some way alters the forms into desired shapes. The forms are also manipulated with expressive surface textures and refinement of designs.

Of her work she states, "I am striving to imply a sense of gesture and stance that expresses the quality of the clay and my interest in making."

Miller was first introduced to ceramics while attending Garrett College in 1996, where she became inspired to pursue a career in ceramic arts. In 1997 she attended the Massachusetts College of Art to study ceramics and glassblowing. She continued her education at Ohio University in Athens, where she explored the many possibilities in working with clay, and received a bachelor of fine arts degree in the spring of 2003.

Her experiences at Ohio University included mold-making, glaze calculation, kiln building, and procedures for various oxidation and raku and reduction firing. Her BFA exhibition at the university consisted of ceramic work that was atmospheric fired in soda, salt and wood kilns. She was also employed as the studio assistant at OU for Professors Brad Schwieger and Chuck McWeeny, and as office assistant for the dean of fine arts.

Michelle has also broadened her ceramic experiences by attending conferences of the National Council on Education for the Ceramic Arts, and by participating in workshops such as the Carbondale Clay Center in Colorado with artist Ron Meyers, and the Pelee Art Center in Ontario, Canada, with artist Dave Dunk.

She has participated in many exhibitions in Ohio, and has donated volunteer work with organizations such as the Regina Brown Scholarship Fund through the National Council on Education in the Ceramic Arts in San Diego, CA, the "Souper Bowl" fundraiser in Athens, and the Seigfried Gallery, also in Athens.

Michelle is currently an artist in residence at the Cub Creek Foundation in Appomattox, Va., which is a non-profit organization for the ceramic arts. During her year at Cub Creek, she continues to show her work and intends to develop a portfolio for admission to graduate school.

Her Garrett College exhibition is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and on evenings and weekends during special events.

For more information, persons may call the GC Art Department at 301-387-3024.

A SPECIAL EXHIBIT OF ARTWORK pertaining to Garrett County will be on display at the Gallery in Oakland on Wednesday, June 30, when the Garrett County Arts Council hosts its annual membership meeting and reception, beginning at 6 p.m. More than 100 paintings and photographs and hundreds of three-dimensional works by local artists will be featured, according to a council spokesperson. The meeting agenda will include presentation of the council's annual Friends of the Arts award, election of officers and board members, grant announcements, and the official release of the 2004 edition of Ginseng, the council's annual literary journal. The public is invited to the 6:30 reception and social hour, immediately following the meeting, with complimentary refreshments and classical guitar music by Dimitry Ostrogorsky. Chautauqua Celebration Set For July

HENRY DAVID THOREAU

RACHEL CARSON
DORIS DWYER

THEODORE ROOSEVELT
DOUG MISHLER

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's (GLAF) is in full swing in its 18th season as July begins with a five-day Chautauqua celebration under the tent at Garrett College. Attendance has grown steadily since Chautauqua first was offered in Garrett County 10 years ago, from a handful of people to audiences now topping 800. The Chautauqua series is free, but free-will donations are invited.

The Garrett Community Concert Band will kick off the Chautauqua series on Sunday, July 4, at 7:30 p.m. with an Independence Day concert featuring patriotic standards. The concert band, under the director or Gerald McGee, was formed in May of 2000. Members include people from all walks, including businessmen, teachers, homemakers, and high school and college students. They are all volunteers who enjoy playing their instruments, and giving back to their community the gift of music.

Fireworks off Marsh Mountain will conclude the free Independence Day concert. This concert is sponsored by Sincell Publishing Company with sponsor partners Sandra and Ihor Zakaluzny.

On Monday, July 5, the free Chautauqua tent show begins at 7 p.m. for four consecutive nights under a big top tent at Garrett College.

"The American Environment: Voices and Choices" features Henry David Thoreau, Rachel Carson, Theodore Roosevelt, and Garrett County Voices: Meshach Browning, John Garrett, Coal Stories and more.

Preceding the Chautauquans will be musical performances by local artists who will appear in costume, talking about their lives and answering audience questions.

Chautauqua is co-sponsored by Garrett College, Garrett County Arts Council, the Maryland Humanities Council, and Garrett Lakes Arts Festival with sponsor partners Heilig Plumbing & Heating and Verizon.

The schedule of events is as follows: Sunday, July 4, at 7:30 p.m., Independence Day concert by the Garrett Community Concert Band, followed by fireworks from the mountaintop at Wisp.

Monday, July 5, at 7 p.m., fiddle music by Ellinor Benedict with Philip Birkby on guitar, "An Evening with Henry David Thoreau" by Kevin Radaker.

Tuesday, July 6, 7 p.m., old time country music with J.C. and the Boys, "An Evening with Rachel Carson" by Doris Dwyer.

Wednesday, July 7, at 7 p.m., mountaintop dixieland jazz band, "An Evening with Theodore Roosevelt" by Doug Mishler.

Thursday, July 8, at 7 p.m., folk music by Keith Roberts, "An Evening with Meshach Browning" by Steve Schlosnagle, "John Garrett" by Al Feldstein, and "Coal Miner" by John Grant.

In the event of rain, evening Chautauqua programs will take place indoors, in the Garrett College auditorium.

SINGER-SONGWRITER REBECCA HALL will be performing at the Purple Fiddle in Thomas, W.Va., this Sunday, June 27, at 4 p.m. "Her music echoes the timeless themes of Appalachian ballads, the concise storytelling of classic songwriters, and the delicate arrangements of British folk rock," said Hall's agent. Hall – a Boston, Mass, native – recently gave up a full-time job in New York City to move to a little house in West Townsend, Vt., to pursue her music career full-time. Her first CD, Rebecca Hall Sings!, was released in 2000. Her second, Sunday Afternoon, in 2002.

Summer Reading Prog. Sponsored By Board Of Ed.

The Garrett County Board of Education is asking, "Have you read any good books lately?" As part of its goal to promote reading, the board is again sponsoring a summer reading program for all fifth grade students going into the sixth grade and all eighth grade students going into the ninth.

Sponsored in part by the Foundation for Education in Rural Maryland and the Oakland Rotary Club, the program distributed free books and reading packets to these students for summer reading before the school year ended.

The choices for the rising sixth graders were Ella Enchanted by Gail Carson Levine, Hank Zipzer: Niagara Falls, or Does it? by Henry Winkler and Lin Oliver, and A Separate Battle: Women of the Civil War by Ina Chang.

The rising ninth graders' choices were Artemis Fowl by Eoin Coffer, Girl In a Cage by Jane Yolen and John J. Harris, and Probably Still Nick Swansen by Virginia Euwer Wolff.

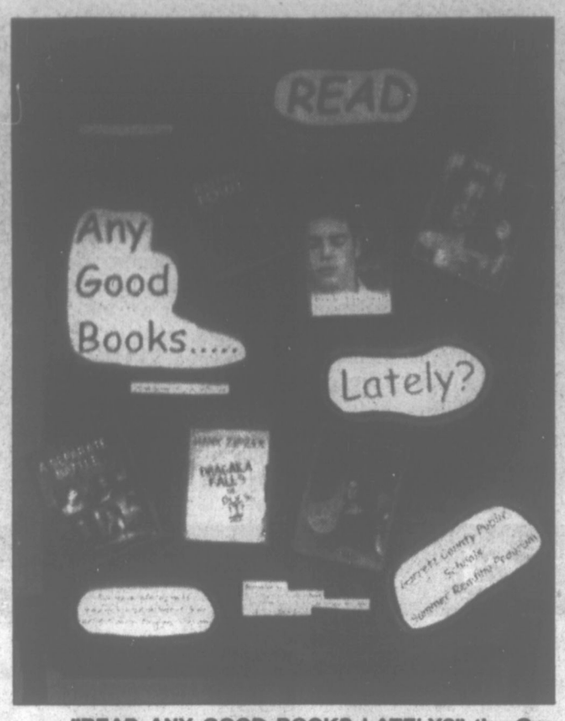
"Studies have shown that when students are given a choice of reading materials, they are more likely to read," said a board spokesperson.

The students in the summer reading program are not only encouraged to read their books but also to share them with parents and friends.



"READ ANY GOOD BOOKS LATELY?" the Garrett County Board of Education is asking rising sixth and ninth graders this summer. Free books were distributed to the students before they left for the school year. The students will participat in a variety of activities and discussions pertaining to their books during the summer. Pictured is a library display about the reading program. See story for details.

Promoters of this program include the Lakeside Creamery, Deep Creek Lake; the Book Mark'et, Oakland; Main Street Books, Frostburg; and all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library.

The Creamery is offering a free ice cream cone to those who read a book, bring it and a coupon (found in the reading packet) to the Creamery, and answer a question about their reading material.

Both the Book Mark'et and Main Street Books are offering the summer readers 10 percent off any books, with coupon, on the program's "If you liked . . . try . . ." reading list located in their reading packets.

The Ruth Enlow libraries will also hold discussions about the books in August at each branch.

Students who did not receive a free book this summer are encouraged to review the reading list and other connections listed on the Summer Reading Program page of the Board of Education's web site at ga.k12.md.us. Also listed are activities, library dates of book talks, web connections with hyperlinks, and a link to the Garrett County "virtual librarian."

GC Arts Council Literary Journal Ginseng Published

The Garrett County Arts Council has published the sixth edition of its annual literary journal, Ginseng, featuring poetry and creative writing by local authors. The publication will be formally released at the council's annual membership meeting and reception, scheduled for June 30 at the Gallery in Oakland, beginning at 6 p.m.

This year's edition of Ginseng was illustrated by Collen DuBose, a graduate of Northern High School currently studying at the Columbus College of Art and Design in Columbus, Ohio.

For the fifth consecutive year, Richard Hill, a staff member of the Sincell Publishing Company, designed the publication. Melodee Hill, Jack DuBose, and Susan Haydel reviewed manuscript submissions and acted as editors.

"The arts council is extremely proud of this publication," said Steve Schlosnagle, executive director. "Each year, volunteers devote a great deal of time and talent to the production of a journal designed to reflect the best works of local creative writers. Judging a book by both cover and content, this year's Ginseng may be the best yet."

The writings of the following local authors are included in this year's edition: Jack DuBose, Helen C. Fitzwater, Virginia M. Grove, Greg Jenkins, Mary Sincell McEwen, Bob Mills, Sarah Pierce, Connie D. Reams, Katharine L. Smith, Jack W. Spencer, Debra Wolf, Lori Yoder, and Karen Zealand.

All six issues of Ginseng are available for purchase exclusively at the Gallery in Oakland. Back issues are available for purchase at a discount.

The arts council will solicit manuscripts for publication consideration in next year's Ginseng this fall. Additional information on opportunities for local creative writers is available by calling 301-334-6580 or by visiting the arts council's website at www.garrettarts.com.

She was also nominated to attend the National Youth Leaders Forum on Defense, Intelligence, and Diplomacy, and chosen to attend the Westvaco Engineering Seminar based on her strength in math and science.

Skipper is also a volunteer at the Mt. Top Crisis Pregnancy Center, and a member of the youth group and award-winning drama team at the Loch Lynn Church of God.

8th Annual Family Support Picnic Slated

The 8th annual Family Support Network Picnic will be held July 15, at 5 p.m., at the Oak Shelter, which is the pavilion closest to the beach area at the Deep Creek Lake State Park. This year's celebration is special because it is celebrating the fact that the Garrett County Infants and Toddlers program has served its 500th child, according to Stephanie Ludle, program coordinator.

This program is a collaborative effort of the Garrett Partnership for Children and Families, Garrett County Board of Education, Garrett County Health Department (Personal Health and Healthy Families,) Garrett County Department of Social Services, and Garrett County Community Action Head Start.

Dinner will be ready at 6 p.m. Chicken from BumBle Q's Restaurant, drinks, and utensils will be provided. Persons are asked to bring a covered dish to share.

Reservations may be made by calling Sue Sharpless at 301-334-1189. All reservations must be received by July 1 in order to provide enough chicken for those attending.

The Infants and Toddlers Program serves children ages birth through 3 years old. It provides in-home services such as speech therapy, special instruction, physical therapy, occupational therapy, and service coordination to eligible children and families free of charge.

Persons may make referrals by calling 301-334-1189.

BPW Scholarship Program Seeks Local Applicants

The Business and Professional Women (BPW) organization in Garrett County is seeking applicants for scholarship funding. The application process is open to women 30 and older who are interested in continuing their education, and are available in amounts up to $800. Completed applications must be received before Thursday, July 1.

The local BPW bestows its "Scholarship for Women" each year to a woman living, working, or attending post-secondary school in Garrett County. It can be used for tuition, fees, books, travel or related educational expenses.

New BPW member Suzanne Nicolas, who recently opened a Curves franchise in Oakland, became familiar with the organization when her mother received a BPW scholarship, according to scholarship committee chairperson Judy Carbone.

"Her mother was a single parent who decided to go to college when she was 45 years old," Carbone said. "She attended Purdue University for a degree in social work, receiving financial support from BPW." Nicolas said her mother started her own health care business at the age of 63, and only regretted not having gone into business for herself earlier. "This is a mistake I was not going to make," she added.

Longtime BPW member Mildred Dunbar, who recently was inducted into Garrett County's Women's Hall of Fame, received a $500 scholarship from the BPW Federation toward her studies at Frostburg State. "It was worth doing all the paperwork," Dunbar said, noting that other people should know it is possible "to continue their education with BPW as a supporter."

"This is someone who now encourages others to continue learning and to be all they can be," observed Carbone. Dunbar, former director of nursing at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, is still active as a volunteer throughout the community.

Applicants for the BPW scholarship must send a completed application, a transcript of grades, three letters of reference of character and abilities, and proof of acceptance into a program, school, or college.

"Many women are struggling to complete the education or training needed to enter or re-enter the job market in their chosen field," remarked former committee chair Phyllis Trickett. "Past scholarship award winners have gone on to enter the health care profession, the business world, and education, among other fields."

For more information or a copy of the application, persons may contact Carbone by phone at 301-616-5036, or via e-mail at judycarbone@gcnetmail.net.

THE SUN—The sun spends most of the month in the star group Gemini before moving into Cancer on July 20. The amount of daily sunlight will slowly drop over July, which opens with 14 hours, 57 minutes of sunlight and closes with 14 hours, 16 minutes of sunlight. In early July the sun rises about 5:54 a.m., and sets around 8:50 p.m., while in late July sunrises are about 6:16 a.m., and sunsets occur at approximately 8:32 p.m. The sun's midday height during July drops from 73 to 68 degrees (45 degrees is halfway from the horizon to the top of the sky). In July the length of twilight is about 70 minutes, so the fainter stars fade will from view about 1 hour and 10 minutes before sunrise and will reappear about 1 hour and 10 minutes after sunset. In mid-July, we have a little less than 7 hours each night for star gazing. On July 5 the Earth will be at its farthest distance from the sun, at 94.5 million miles. The reason for the warm temperatures now is the greater height of the sun and the long daylight hours.

THE MOON—July opens and closes with a full moon. This is possible as the moon's phase cycle lasts 29.5 days; so an early full moon can be followed by a full moon very late in the month. A second full moon in the same month is called a Blue Moon, and this will be the first Blue Moon since March 1999. After July 5 the moon shifts into the morning sky, and is then most easily viewed at dawn. Around July 17 the moon hides in the sun's glare for a few days. On July 21 a slender crescent moon appears near the bright planet Jupiter. On July 24 the evening moon has grown to half full. This is the best moon shape (resembling the letter "D") to view the moon's craters and mountains with binoculars or telescopes. Along the lighted moon's left edge the rising sun catches the raised crater rims and mountain peaks. July ends with a full moon appearing in front of Capricornus.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM—Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steady, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. During July, the brilliant planet Venus will be spectacular in the eastern dawn. In early July, Venus appears close to the bright star Aldebaran of Taurus. The very bright planet Jupiter continues to rule the western dusk in July, slowly dropping a little each week. By the end of the month, Jupiter will be setting as the sky turns dark, and the planet Saturn will appear below and to the left of Venus in the eastern dawn.

THE STARS—The Big Dipper begins to drop lower in the north-northwest during July, while off the curve of the constellation's handle the bright golden star Arcturus shines high in the western sky. Well up in the east is the very bright star Vega, the jewel of a trio of bright stars known as the "summer triangle." The southern evening sky features the zodiac groups Scorpius and Sagittarius. Scorpius (the Scorpion) resembles a starry letter "J" with its brightest star Antares visible near its upper right portion.

JULY ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES—The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, July 16, at the LaVale Public Library. All sky gazers are welcome.

Keep Your Child Lead Safe

These steps will protect your child from lead poisoning:

- Get your child tested for lead poisoning at ages 1 and 2.
- Wash your hands and your child's hands with soap and water before all meals.
- Wash your child's pacifier and toys often.
- If you live in a home built before 1960—move your child's crib or bed away from window sills and clean painted surfaces like window sills two times a week with hot water and a good household cleaner.
- If you live in a home before 1960, call the Lead Hotline at 410.631.3859 before you remodel your home.
- Give your child foods high in calcium, iron, and vitamin C. These foods may help protect your child from lead poisoning: baked potatoes, broccoli, cereals with iron, cheese, kale, lean ground beef, milk, orange juice, and tomatoes.
- Serve healthy foods and snacks on a daily basis.

For more information, call the Lead Hotline at 1-800-370-5323 or the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111

DHL 400 REVIEW

Newman on top

'Lucky dog' rule helps lift No. 12 Dodge to victory

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Brooklyn, Mich.

As Ryan Newman's voice came on his radio channel, saying "Happy Father's Day, Dad," one could almost hear the words on Dale Jarrett's lips: You lucky dog.

Newman won Sunday's DHL 400 at Michigan International Speedway with a late-blooming No. 12 Dodge and a whole lot of good fortune.

He fell a lap down 23 laps into the race, pitting an overheating car so his crew could remove trash from the grill.

He eventually got back on the lead lap as the recipient of NASCAR's lucky dog rule that rewards the first car a lap down when a caution flag flies.

Newman worked his way to the front late in the race, overtaking Jarrett's No. 88 Ford on a restart with 22 laps to go. Jarrett finished third.

Then Newman withstood a last-lap charge by Kasey Kahne with the aid of another caution flag. Greg Biffle's spinout on Lap 199 of the 200-lap race did not induce a caution, but P.J. Jones did when his No. 50 Dodge hit the wall hard at Turn 2 on the final lap.

That forced the last quarter-lap of the race to unwind under yellow, behind the pace car. It was the fourth race this season to end under caution.

NASCAR's official explanation of the late mishaps: Biffle spun, had no contact with the wall and was cleared by the field; Jones' car made heavy contact, at least six cars were behind him, and NASCAR did not want to delay dispatching rescue vehicles.

Jarrett was happy with third — his best finish of the year — but was annoyed by losing to two drivers who benefitted from the lucky dog rule. Kahne had been a lap down, too.

"Ryan did a great job and then the 9 car [Kahne], I don't know where he came from but he was fast," Jarrett said. "I knew when he got that lap back that he might become a factor.

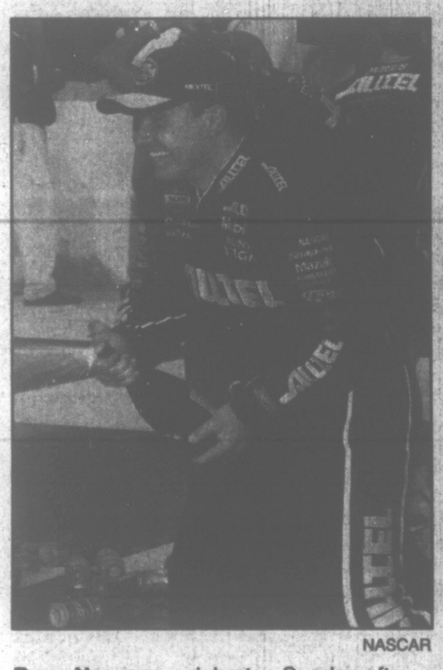
"Somewhere along the way I have or will benefit from that lucky dog or whatever you call that stupid rule, but I just don't agree with giving people laps back. I think the 12 car got his back, so both of the guys that beat me were a lap down at one time. I don't know what that says."

It says that Newman and Kahne are both opportunistic.

"Today I really like it," Kahne said of the controversial rule. "At tracks like this, a bigger track [MIS is two miles], it's hard to get your lap back and there are more cars on the lead lap. On a track like this, the lucky dog's definitely nice."

Newman was the luckiest dog of all, of course. But he felt over the last 17 laps he had the car to beat, although his car slipped near Turn 2 on the final lap.

"I slipped pretty badly in the middle of two," Newman said. "I don't know if it was oil or I just hit something or what, but it got really, really loose and I had to check up. They said Kasey gained three car lengths on me in the back straightaway. I knew we had a pretty good advantage. I really don't think he had a shot at all, but obviously he was closing in pretty quick."



NASCAR

Kahne's reality is that if not for the caution, he would have experienced his fourth close second-place finish of the season.

"If it had gone to the start/finish [line], I would have lost by another half-car or car length," Kahne said. "It would have been another close one. I would have needed three or four more laps, but I'll take another second."

It's Newman's first win in this season. He won eight races last year and finished sixth in points. He's now ninth, 361 points behind leader Jimmy Johnson.

He said he isn't overly concerned that it took him 15 races in 2004 to finally win one.

"We've had some great runs and my mistakes have killed them," Newman said. "The deal at Dover, spinning out on pit lane, hitting the cone at Darlington. We had a car capable of winning at Atlanta, [but] we stayed out long [on old tires] to see if we could get a caution. . . . So we've played it safe getting top-fives in certain instances."

DHL 400 NOTEBOOK

Impatience costs Stewart at meeting

By AL LEVINE
Cox News Service

Brooklyn, Mich.

NASCAR drivers are routinely penalized for missing the pre-race drivers meeting by being placed at the rear of the field. But how about being spanked for leaving the meeting early?

Tony Stewart perhaps accomplished something unprecedented Sunday before the DHL 400 at Michigan International Speedway when NASCAR booted him to the end of the line for exiting the meeting early.

STEWART

Some drivers were asking questions of NASCAR officials about restarts. Then Robby Gordon wanted clarification about scoring decisions in Saturday's Busch Series race at Kentucky, in which Gordon was black-flagged.

Stewart apparently had heard enough. He stood up and said, "Can't we just go race?" He then left.

Later, word came down from NASCAR: Stewart was sent to the rear of the 43-car field.

He had qualified 27th in the No. 20 Pontiac and got as high as eighth with 25 laps to go. But a wreck with eight laps remaining gave Stewart a 24th-place finish.

New points leader

Jimmie Johnson's fourth-place finish Sunday gave him the Nextel Cup points lead by seven over Dale Earnhardt Jr., who finished 21st. Earnhardt had held the points lead the past seven races.

"Perfect," Johnson said. "That's what we're here for."

JOHNSON

It's the second time in Johnson's career he has held the points lead; the first occurred in 2002 and lasted one week.

"Bragging rights is all it is," Earnhardt said. "It was good to be in the lead. We may get it again, but not running like this."

Earnhardt's No. 8 Chevrolet started 11th, fell back to 27th halfway through the race and was running as high as fifth with 20 laps remaining.

"We just had a terrible race car," Earnhardt said. "From the drop of the green flag the car wouldn't turn. It just wouldn't go. We tried to make it better but never could."

His crew chief, Tony Eury Jr., seemed mystified.

"We have tried everything," Eury said. "We've tested everywhere. [Teammate Michael] Waltrip is running good [finishing 10th], and believe it or not, those cars are identical. Why that No. 8 car won't run, I just don't know."

TALK THE TALK

A guide to NASCAR terms

"Trading paint"
A slang term used to describe aggressive driving involving a lot of bumping.

"RPM"
Short for revolutions per minute, a measurement of speed of the engine's crankshaft.

Biffle insists he's not leaving Roush

In an attempt to quash persistent rumors about his career, Greg Biffle said Saturday he would fulfill his contract with Roush Racing at least through the end of the season.

"We're not going anywhere right now," said Biffle, driver of the No. 16 Ford. "It's kind of crazy what we see on the Internet, but I've got a contract with Roush."

His team has had a less-than-stellar season, ranking 23rd in points with one top-10 finish in 15 races. Biffle said his goal is to get into the top 10 in points.

"I feel like we're really close," he said. "I'm working as hard as I can here to get this program turned around and capable of making the top 10 in points."

History book

Chevrolet checked it out and declared that the 1-2-3 qualifying order for Sunday's race by Hendrick Motorsports teammates Jeff Gordon, Brian Vickers and Jimmie Johnson was a first in the Modern Era.

Hendrick was also the first in the Modern Era to sweep the top three positions in a Cup race when Gordon, Terry Labonte and Ricky Craven finished 1-2-3 in the Daytona 500 on Feb. 16, 1997.

BUSCH REPORT

Kyle Busch rallies from last to first at Kentucky

Cox News Service

Relegated to the back of the 43-car field after wrecking his car in practice, Kyle Busch took the lead with two laps to go and held on to win the Meijer 300 at Kentucky Speedway for his third Busch Series victory of the year.

Busch, the younger brother of Nextel Cup driver Kurt Busch, qualified second Friday, but wrecked his Chevrolet during a post-qualifying practice session. Because he used his backup car Saturday night, he was forced to start at the back of the field.

After passing Leffler, Busch passed Biffle for the lead with two laps left. Busch won by 1.274 seconds over Biffle. Mike Bliss finished third, followed by Ron Hornaday Jr. and Jason Keller.

Busch remained second in the series points race behind Martin Truex Jr., but narrowed the gap from 40 to 10 points.

Safe Sitter Classes Set This Summer At GCM Hospital

Garrett County Memorial Hospital will offer Safe Sitter classes throughout the summer. According to a GCMH spokesperson, Safe Sitter is a medically accurate program that teachers boys and girls ages 11 to 14 "safe and nurturing care" and the rescue skills needed to respond appropriately to medical emergencies when caring for children.

"In addition to safety and health training, Safe Sitter training includes lots of information on childcare basics, child development, and managing behavior," said Judy Simson, GCMH Wellness coordinator. "Students learn how to take control of their charges in a positive way, what to expect based on the age of the child, and how to make the experience positive for both the children and themselves. They also learn tips for managing the business aspects of the babysitting job.

"While the short-term goal is to prepare competent teenage babysitters, the long-term goal is to prepare young people for their responsibility as parents."

Classes will be offered in three sessions from 4 until 8 p.m. each evening. The first will be held Monday, July 5, and Wednesday, July 7; the second session on Monday, July 19, and Wednesday, July 21; and the third on Monday, August 16, and Wednesday, August 18.

Only six students may be enrolled in each class, based on the Safe Sitter organization's standards for student/instructor ratios. Class admission will be on a first-come first-served basis. Preregistration is required.

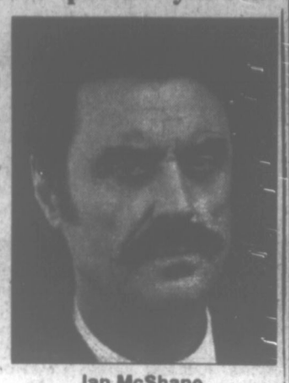
Milch swears 'Deadwood' profanity is real

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it



Ian McShane

Q: I've enjoyed "Deadwood" on HBO, but I wonder about the "period authenticity" of some of the curse words. Were they really part of the lexicon during the late 1800s? –Dennis Koppo, Elmhurst, Ill.

A: "Deadwood" creator David Milch, a former Yale professor who spent a year researching the period, insists that the profanity used in his hit series – including that 10-letter compound "c-word" that seems to be Al Swearengen's (Ian McShane) favorite – was indeed being used in the late 1800s when "Deadwood" is set.

Milch also cites period accounts from journalists and essayists who visited that part of the frontier and returned to report that many of the rough-hewn settlers used profanity that could curl your hair.

For the record, some historians warily acknowledge that the salty words may have been in at least limited use at the time "Deadwood" takes place, but they suggest Milch deliberately overuses them for dramatic effect.

Q: Is Anthony LaPaglia of "Without a Trace" related to Jonathan LaPaglia of "The District"? –Shirley Benedetto, Daytona Beach, Fla.

A: With apologies to the readers who saw this answer on one of its earlier appearances, and as a courtesy to the many others who did not:

Yes, Anthony LaPaglia is the oldest of three brothers. Jonathan is the youngest. Michael LaPaglia, the middle brother, is not in show business.

Q: In the "Friends" finale, who was the actor playing the doctor who delivered the twins? –Fiona Clayton via e-mail.

A: John Rubinstein, 57, may best be remembered by older viewers from his role in the 1976-80 ABC drama "Family," where he played Jeff Maitland, the estranged husband of Nancy Lawrence Maitland (Meredith Baxter), or his co-starring role with Jack Warden in the 1984-86 CBS detective series "Crazy Like a Fox."

In addition to those two series roles, Rubinstein has been a familiar face on television for more than 35 years, thanks to countless guest appearances as well as roles in notable TV movies and miniseries including "Roots: The Next Generations," "The French Atlantic Affair," "Skokie," "Liberace," "The American Clock" and "Norma Jean and Marilyn."

Feature film credits include "Getting Straight," "Zachariah," "The Boys From Brazil," "Daniel," "Red Dragon" and "21 Grams." Rubinstein also won a Tony Award as best actor for "Children of a Lesser God" on Broadway, where his credits also include "Pippin," "M. Butterfly" and "Ragtime," among others.

The son of piano virtuoso Artur Rubinstein, he also is a gifted composer in his own right.

IN FOCUS

Former priest Ralph Pinto and his daughter, whom he had with a former nun, is part of HBO's "America Undercover" documentary series "Celibacy" Monday, June 28.

The film looks at the basic human drive of sex, and those who choose to abstain from it in the name of religion. In light of today's sexual scandals in the Roman Catholic Church, the film questions if sexual denial is healthy. The film travels to a Buddhist convent in Tibet and an Eastern Orthodox convent in Romania.

Let's Get Down To Business!

ENTERPRISE RENT-A-CAR, OAKLAND

Enterprise Rent-A-Car, known for its "we'll pick you up" policy, has an office in Oakland, which is managed by Steve Bennett and Kimberly Smith. The business also employs two part-time employees.

Enterprise Rent-A-Car was founded in 1957 by Jack Taylor. He started the business with seven cars and a strong central philosophy: "Provide customers with exceptional service, give employees respect and ample career opportunities, and growth and profitability are sure to follow." Known today as the "neighborhood car rental company," Enterprise has held firm to its founder's values and grown accordingly, noted a spokesperson.

Part of that commitment to local communities and their customers brought Enterprise to Oakland six years ago. The branch originally opened inside Team One Chevrolet. Customers responded well to Enterprise's personalized service and "we'll pick you up" policy, and the branch soon outgrew its allotted space, said the spokesperson. Two years ago it opened a new and larger branch in its current location on North Third.

Today the entire company has a fleet of more than 600,000 cars and 5,500 branches. It offers more than 120 different makes and models of vehicles from compact cars to luxury vehicles to SUVs. All are value-priced, offering customers exceptionally low rates.

Enterprise is known as the neighborhood car rental company because of its focus on strong values and building up hometown communities. Part of being a dedicated local leader is upholding the company's founding values:

•Personal honesty and integrity are the foundation of the company's success.

•Customer service is a way of life. "Enterprise maintains an uncompromising focus on customer service, from an employee's distinctive professional dress and courteous demeanor to directly linking career advancement opportunities to the actual customer service provided," said the spokesperson.

•"Great things happen when we listen to our customers and to each other." Enterprise understands that an open and respectful exchange of ideas is critical to maintaining high standards for service and personal success.

•"Our doors are always open." Enterprise reaches out to people of all backgrounds – in serving existing customers and winning new ones.

The Oakland branch hopes to continue to grow and expand in the Garrett county area, the spokesperson noted.

This past May, the Oakland branch had the opportunity to do its part in supporting U.S. troops when 2,500 soldiers of the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit arrived at Camp Dawson in Kingwood, W.Va., for special training.

In need of vehicles for military transport, the unit approached the Oakland branch, which nearly doubled its fleet to provide 40 cars, truck, and vans for the troops. Training was cut short when one unit was called up to go overseas. However, before leaving, the grateful troops took the time to award the branch a plaque expressing their appreciation for the services received during their stay at Camp Dawson.

Salem Trust Sets Banquet, Silent Auction Benefit

The sixth annual Out-Spokin' benefit banquet and silent auction for the Maryland Salem Children's Trust is slated for 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 18, at Frostburg State University's Lane Center. Salem, a United Way agency, provides home and family settings for children who have been abused, neglected, and abandoned.

The dinner speaker will be Mike Williams, a Chicago native whose life changed dramatically when he was adopted as an infant, according to a spokesperson. "Born into a family steeped in poverty, drugs and abuse, Williams was handed to the postman by his mother one morning in the hope that one son might have a chance at a future. Two other sons were murdered at the age of 17, one in prison and one on the street.

"Williams combines a humorous outlook on life with an eternal perspective and deep gratitude for the intervention of God and the couple who cared enough to give him a home and family," the spokesperson concluded.

The silent auction fund-raiser, which will take place prior to the dinner, will feature numerous items donated by local merchants and individuals.

For information or reservations, or to donate an item for the auction, persons may call the Salem Children's Trust at 301-689-8176, ext. 206.

Natural Products Protects Against Inflammation

Inflammation is a common body response that can occur in almost any tissue and is usually associated with itching, redness, swelling, or pain. No matter how the inflammation is caused, some herbals may be useful. Among the best known of the anti-inflammatory herbs in German chamomile, especially when applied to the skin. When compared to over-the-counter hydrocortisone cream, chamomile's effect was weaker but still significant.

Tumeric is an Indian spice which has been studied in many trials because of its anti-inflammatory properties against the COX-2 enzyme, which has been implicated in developing colon cancer. Ginger oil obtained from the plant's roots has been found to have a profound activity against inflammation in a number of medical studies. The supplement form of the licorice plant, not the candy, is thought to help relieve inflammation. Bark of the white willow tree contains another commonly used anti-inflammatory, aspirin. Witch hazel is frequently sold as a tincture used for its anti-inflammatory and disinfecting properties.

You and Me Against the World

This title to a popular song shares more than a romantic sentiment. Leo Tolstoy, in a letter to his son, wrote, "The goal of our life should not be to find joy in marriage, but to bring more love and truth into the world. We marry to assist each other in this task. The highest calling is that of the man who has dedicated his life to serving God and doing good, and who unites with a woman in order to further that purpose."

Of course, Mr. Tolstoy did not mean we should not be happy with our mate. Happiness finds a couple when they unite as one spirit in God's service. In the marriage vows themselves, we hear "...and the two shall be as one."

Had God felt that Adam could have accomplished his mission on earth alone, He would not have given him Eve as a helpmate. The Creator chose to unite the two. "It is not good that man should be alone. I will make him a helper fit for him." (Genesis 2:18)

In this month of happy unions, may you remember that God makes a good marriage great. Worship together and stay together. May God Bless!

Our Heavenly Treasures

Our moods sometime seem as fleeting as the wind; here one moment and gone the next. We can be in a good mood one minute only to find ourselves feeling sour or blue shortly thereafter. Fortunately, the bad moods usually pass just as quickly as they come. Some psychologists theorize that moods are related to our stockpile of resources, and that while our resources are growing, we tend to be in good moods, whereas dwindling resources can trigger bad moods. On this view, when our circle of friends is growing, our investments are making money, and the sun is shining on our crops, we tend to be in positive moods; but, when our friends leave us, our bank accounts dwindle, and the sun is nowhere to be seen, we are more likely to be in a bad mood. So what can we do to deliver us from our bad moods? Be productive. Do some housework, exercise, work on neglected or damaged relationships, and take stock of our material and spiritual resources. And perhaps most important of all, remember that our most valuable treasure is stored in heaven. So, don't neglect your relationship with God. In the final accounting, our bank account won't matter nearly as much as our relationship with God.

Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth... But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven... For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.
R.S.V. Matthew 6:19_21

Low-Cost Pet Care

Q. I am retired and live on a fixed income, so keeping expenses to a minimum is very important to me. However, my cat's veterinary bills just keep rising. How can I keep my pet healthy without breaking my budget? — June L., Swampscott, Mass.

A. Veterinary care costs are a concern for every pet owner, but especially so for those whose incomes are fixed or limited. Even if your pet is perfectly healthy, bills for routine checkups and vaccinations can add up to thousands of dollars over the cat or dog's lifetime.

Fortunately, many professionals realize that the love and care we provide for our four-footed pals is much greater than the amount of money in our pockets. Programs across the country have been developed to help ensure pet health no matter what the owners' circumstances. For example, low-cost (or even free) vaccination clinics are offered by many cities for cats and dogs. Veterinary schools can provide non-emergency treatment and health screenings for much less than private practices.

Scan your local newspaper daily for specials like free vaccination days. Contact the nearest shelter or the Humane Society to find out what programs are available, or if additional help can be given to those on low or fixed incomes. Stop by or call pet stores — some large store chains of... low-cost clinics several times a year.

At home, keep your pet healthy and happy to reduce visits to the vet: feed it good food, brush its teeth regularly (once a week on average), and apply flea and tick repellents according to the instructions on the product packaging. Spay or neuter pets to lessen the chance of them wandering outdoors and getting into fights or being injured. Combined with an annual checkup and vaccination program, your pet's health care costs should remain manageable for a long time to come.

Vintage Telephone

Q. I have an old telephone that is in working order. I would like to find out how much it is worth and, perhaps, sell it. — Joe, Payson, Ariz.

A. A good source might be Ron and Mary Knappen, owners of Phoneco, a shop that both buys and sells vintage telephones. The address is P.O. Box 70, Galesville, WI 54630. One of the better groups for enthusiasts is the Antique Telephone Collectors Association, P.O. Box 94, Abilene, KS 67410.

Q. I have a Popeye doll that is probably from the 1930s. I would like to know if it is a collectible. — Eunice, Greenville, S.C.

A. According to the 4th edition of Hake's Price Guide to Character Toys by Ted Hake, Popeye was introduced to the world by cartoonist E.C. Segar in his comic strip, Thimble Theatre, in 1929. Within a year, Popeye had become the strip's most popular character.

To find out the value of your doll, I suggest you contact an expert. Judith Katz-Schwartz is an appraiser who buys, sells and appraises dolls of various types, including ones based on cartoons. Write to her c/o Twin Brooks Antiques, P.O. Box 6572, New York, NY 10128. You should expect to pay for this service, and always include a SASE when writing experts and sources mentioned in this column.

Strange BUT TRUE
By Samantha Weaver

• Davy Crockett was also a justice of the peace.

• Everybody knows what is meant when a person says that someone is "batty," but not many people know how that term came to mean "crazy" in English. It was once common for bats to roost in church steeples, but the tolling of the church bell would disturb their daytime rest. Being so suddenly awakened, the bats would leave the steeple in a panic and fly around in a frenzied fashion. This chaotic flight was thought to resemble the disturbed and disorganized thoughts of the insane. In the early 1900s, Americans began saying that someone who is crazy has "bats in the belfry," and that was eventually shortened to "batty."

• Sea turtles that dive to great depths have been known to suffer from the divers' ailment the bends.

• William Shatner is famous for his role as Captain Kirk in the original "Star Trek" TV series, but he wasn't the first choice of actors to play the part. The producers and director originally wanted to cast Jack Lord or Lloyd Bridges as the intrepid captain. And Martin Landau was considered for the role of Spock before Leonard Nimoy was cast.

• Ambrose Bierce defined a lawsuit as "a machine which you go into as a pig and come out as a sausage."

• Ever wonder what your kids are reading in school? A survey was conducted recently to determine which works of literature are used the most as assigned reading in middle and high schools across the country. William Shakespeare tops the list: "Romeo and Juliet" and "Macbeth" were ranked first and second. In third place is Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," with "To Kill a Mockingbird" by Harper Lee in fourth.

Forest Svc. Tree Survey Adds New Satellite Imagery

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forest Service announced this week that the U.S. Forest Service has launched a new system for taking inventory of Maryland's forests. The system, which uses satellite imagery, will be conducted annually and will provide better data to guide conservation.

The former system relied on periodic measurements taken in 10- to 13-year cycles. Maryland's most recent periodic inventory, conducted in 1999, showed that the state had 2.6 million forested acres, a loss of more than 100,000 acres since 1986. Five U.S. Forest Service inventories reveal that Maryland's forests have been contracting since the 1960s.

"Losing forested land is a major issue here," said Forest Service director Steven W. Koehn. "This new inventory approach will give us the reliable and timely data we need to assess how development continues to affect our forest resources." The annual inventory will measure characteristics such as forest area, number of trees, timber volume, wildlife habitat, tree biomass growth, and changes in the state and its counties.

"We want to better understand the entire forest ecosystem," said Dr. Charles Scott, manager of the Forest Inventory and Analysis (FIA) program at the U.S. Forest Service's Northeastern Research Station in Newtown Square, Pa. "In addition to timber data, the survey will provide information to assess the condition of wildlife habitat, plant diversity, fuel and potential fire hazard, and mortality caused by insects and disease."

FIA researchers began Maryland's survey in May. Under the improved survey system, which is being implemented nationwide, a percentage of plots in Maryland will be assessed each year, and an inventory of the whole state will be completed every seven years.

The inventory will be conducted in three phases. The first uses satellite imagery to classify the land. In the second phase, ground crews take tree and site measurements at sample locations. These measurements are then combined with the satellite imagery to provide reliable statewide and county information annually. In the third phase, resource analysts examine some of these areas in greater detail to learn more about forest health.

Six months after collection, the data from the surveys will be made available to the public on the U.S. Forest Service web site at www.fs.fed.us/ne/fia. The data from forest inventories are used to formulate federal, state, and local plans for managing natural resources.

Yard Sale Benefit Slated By Bear Creek Church

The Bear Creek Church of the Brethren has scheduled a church-wide yard sale, rain or shine, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, June 25, and from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, June 26. The church is located along Brethren Church Road, which is off Accident-Bittinger Road just east of Accident.

Proceeds from the fundraiser will benefit the church's building fund, explained spokesperson Joyce Lander. "The last renovations to the church were completed in 1963," Lander said. "Alterations are needed to make the church handicapped accessible.

The congregation of Bear Creek was first organized in 1846, and the present structure was built in 1889. "The building has undergone several changes in its history," explained Lander. "What is now the back of the sanctuary was initially the front. Other alterations and additions included brick veneer, classrooms, and a social hall."

For further information on the yard sale fundraiser or the Bear Creek Church of the Brethren, persons may call Lander at 301-746-8780.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Fresh Produce Now Available At Tailgate Markets

Many produce vendors in the area are already selling their vegetables and berries from their farm thanks to the warm spring this year. Early produce includes strawberries, lettuce, greens, spinach, radishes, peas, and new potatoes.

The official farmers market season opens Saturday, July 10, with the Mtn. Fresh Producers Association tailgate market starting at 10 a.m. in the pavilion in the Oakland town parking lot.

Prior to July 10, fresh produce will be sold at the pavilion during the Wonderful Wednesdays celebrations in Oakland from 10 a.m. to noon.

The Old Fashioned 4th of July celebration at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry will be held on Sunday, July 4, and will host a farmers market from 1 to 4 p.m. This market is open to all producers in the area.

For information about these and other farmers markets, persons may call Cheryl DeBerry, agriculture marketing specialist, at 301-334-6960, or Cathy Sanders, market master for Mtn. Fresh, at 301-334-4580 The Mtn. Fresh web site is www.MountainFresh.org.

Parasite Info Workshop Set at Garrett Coll.

Internal parasites (gastro-intestinal worms) are the number one health problem affecting sheep and goats in the Mid-Atlantic area. Because worms have become resistant to many of the anthelmintics (dewormers) producers use, a more integrated approach to internal parasite control is necessary, according to the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension.

To help producers develop internal parasite management (IPM) programs for their farms and flocks, University of Maryland Cooperative Extension will hold (IPM) workshops for sheep and goat producers in various Maryland counties and nearby locations. The primary instructor will be Susan Schoenian, area agent for sheep and goats at the Western Maryland Research & Education Center.

The local workshop will be held at Garrett College (Center for Adventure and Outdoor Studies) on July 7 from 6 to 10 p.m. The workshop will be limited to 20 participants, but a second workshop may be scheduled if needed. Persons should call the Extension office at 301-334-6960 to reserve a spot.

In addition to teaching the basics of internal parasites and their control, the workshop will teach proper anthelmintic use and provide hands-on training in doing fecal egg counts. The cost of attending the workshop is $12 per farm or family. Participants will receive a laminated FAMACHA© Guide.

Farm Service Agency Reports

EMERGENCY LOANS AVAILABLE THROUGH FSA

West Virginia Farm Service Agency state executive director John B. Rader has announced the designation of 34 counties in West Virginia for FSA Emergency Loans.

"The counties were designated for Emergency Loans by President Bush because of damages caused by severe storms, flooding, and landslides occurring Nov. 11 through Nov. 30, 2003," stated Rader. "This designation was made to enable FSA to provide financial assistance to those farm families who suffered severe losses as a result of the disaster.

"Public Law 98-258 provides for counties that are contiguous to another county that has been designated as a disaster area to also be eligible for Emergency Loans," Rader explained. "Fifteen counties in the state are contiguous, including Preston, to one or more of the designated counties, and are therefore eligible for assistance."

The only counties that are not covered by the designation are Berkeley, Brooke, Hampshire, Hancock, Jefferson, Mineral, and Morgan.

To be eligible for an Emergency Loan, farmers must have suffered at least a 30 percent production loss or a physical loss, be able to evidence adequate repayment ability, and be unable to obtain adequate credit from other sources. Loans to one operation are limited to $500,000 or the calculated production loss plus the physical loss, whichever is less. Loans are also limited to owners and/or operators of not larger than family-sized farming operations.

"Farmers in all West Virginia Counties may apply for Emergency Loans up through Monday, Aug. 2, 2004," added Rader.

Farmers in Preston County are served by the Farm Loan Office located at the Marion/Taylor FSA Office. Farm Loan manager Douglas Cyphers and Farm Loan officer Karen McBee maintain office hours in the Preston County FSA Office on most Wednesdays. To schedule an appointment to file an Emergency Loan application with the Farm Loan staff, persons may call 304-329-1923 in Kingwood, or 304-363-8861 in White Hall.

Farmers Encounter Warm, Wet Weather

Warm temperatures brought the area scattered thunderstorms, which occurred quite frequently throughout the week. There were 5.0 days suitable for field work for the week ending June 20. Air temperatures averaged in the mid 70s, and average precipitation was anywhere from .20 inches to reports of 4 inches in some areas of the state. The rain slowed harvesting progress and kept farmers out of the fields for a few days, but barley was 67 percent harvested compared to 36 percent the previous week.

The moisture and humidity combined to make it difficult to harvest and decreased test weights for barley and winter wheat. Rains have slowed the hay harvest as well as the planting of double crop soybeans. The corn and soybeans already emerged were looking good compared to last year. Vegetables planted are well above last year's averages, and close to the five-year averages. Topsoil moisture was 5 percent short, 75 percent adequate, and 20 percent surplus.

Alpine Lake Leisure Living House Tour Set

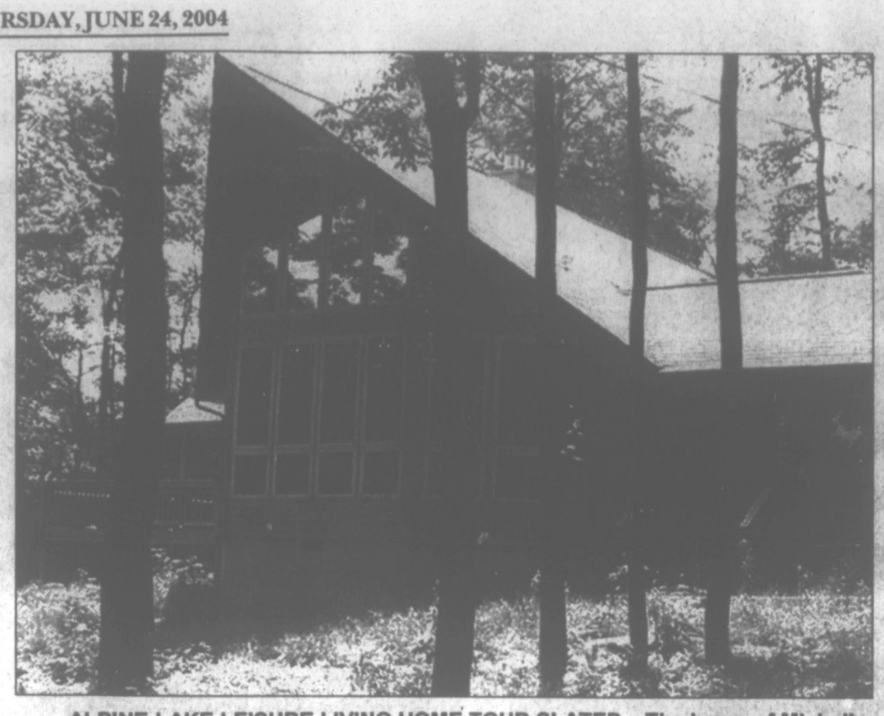
The Alpine Lake Beautification Committee will host its annual Leisure Living House Tour on Sunday, June 27, from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Alpine Lake Resort Community.

Alpine Lake Resort is a recreational community nestled in the Appalachian mountains of West Virginia. The center of the community is a 148-acre lake fed by artesian wells and streams. Surrounding the lake are an 18 hole golf course, a lodge, and over 350 homes.

On the day of the tour, three of these homes will be open for visitors. Although each of the open homes is distinctive in style, each features designs that harmonize with the natural settings and provide ample views of the surrounding mountains, forests and lake.

One of the homes on the tour is that of Michele and Barry Barra. Currently it is a vacation and weekend home for the Barras but it was designed for eventual full-time use.

The open floor plan features kitchen, breakfast room, dining room, music, and living areas separated only by the stone fireplace. Two bedrooms, a loft area, and three full baths complete this home, which was built in 2002 by Homes for All Seasons. Large windows afford views of the lake and mountains.



ALPINE LAKE LEISURE LIVING HOME TOUR SLATED – The home of Michelle and Barry Barra is one of the houses that will be open during the Alpine Lake Leisure Living Home Tour on Sunday, June 27. Two other homes will also be open. During the tour, there will also be a show of arts and crafts produced by Alpine Lake residents in the lodge. Tickets for the tour are $5, and may be purchased at the lodge the day of the tour. Refreshments will be available for tour participants at the boathouse. See story.

The Barras have kept décor and landscaping simple and natural so as not to detract from the natural beauty surrounding them.

Another of the homes on the tour is that of Dottie and Skip Creamer, which they call "Villa D'View" because it is sits high above the large end of the lake with views of the golf course, lake, lodge, and mountains.

Both Creamers enjoy decorating, Dottie claiming the upper level and Skip's "freehand" décor featured on the lower level. Designed for comfort and accessibility, as well as privacy for guests, this home was built by Rick Connor of Lennox, W.Va.

Another home on the tour is that of Birgit and Bernie Stock. The Stocks' home was built in 1994. Rick Connor was the builder. When Birgit and Bernie purchased it in 2000, they loved the view of the lake and beach area, but found they needed a bit more room.

They added the "mountaineer" room at the back of the house and the patio in 2001. They enjoy one-level living with three bedrooms, two baths, and views of the lake from the dining room and eat-in kitchen.

In conjunction with the tour, there will be an arts and crafts show featuring creations of Alpine Lake residents. Paintings, photographs, and quilts will be among the items on display at the lodge during the tour. Visitors are also invited to stop at the Boathouse, where refreshment will be served.

At each stop on the tour there will be an opportunity to participate in a raffle of a handmade item created by an Alpine Lake resident. Tickets for the home tour cost $5, and may be purchased at the Alpine Lake Lodge. Each ticket includes a $1 discount for a meal at the Alpine Lake restaurant in the Evergreene Room, which may be used at any time.

Proceeds from the tour and raffle will benefit beautification projects at Alpine Lake and the Terra Alta/East Preston School Library.

Two Cortland Acres Employees Earn Certificates

Director of housekeeping Wanda Trader and director of maintenance Jerry Marsh were recognized for their outstanding service and leadership to Cortland Acres during the Cortland board meeting last Thursday.

Certificates were presented to Marsh and Trader by the West Virginia Health Care Association in recognition of Cortland's deficiency-free evaluations by the W.Va. Office of Licensure and Certification. The certificates highlight exemplary evaluations in those respective departments for three consecutive years.

This credit includes exceptional detail to the cleanliness and upkeep of the facility; maintaining a safe and comfortable environment; and overall department efficiency.

"Having a skilled and experienced team of employees is a key part of our success in maintaining high Life Safety standards year after year," said Marsh.

"From the moment you walk through the doors, it's obvious how dedicated these individuals are in keeping Cortland's environment safe and clean," said board member Annie Good.

"We certainly appreciate their commitment and fine work," added board chairman Pat A. Nichols.

Marsh joined Cortland in 1993. He is a master electrician and certified engineer.

Trader began in 1984, and has served as the director of the housekeeping department since 1995. She currently manages 13 employees.

"I enjoy working at Cortland, I really do," said Trader. "I enjoy the residents and their families and the employees. I also appreciate the involvement and support of the board members in providing us the resources we need to offer excellent service to the residents."

MOUNTAINEER 4-H

There was a reported sparse showing of members at the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club June 14 regular meeting. After gathering at the Eglon Memorial Building, the group traveled to the farm of Claude Winters, where Caitlin Norwish gave her two presentations using her horse, Cisco. She demonstrated how to groom, tack, and ride a horse, and invited questions from the group. She also extended an invitation to them to ride Cisco. Her talk was given concerning the history of the horse.

Returning to the Eglon Memorial Building, talks and demonstrations resumed. Trevor Spaid demonstrated the different parts of a hammer and how to show hogs in the ring using his younger brother as his "guinea pig." Sara Lewis showed the various tools she uses in making jewelry, and then explained her self-determined project in creating a weight tape to be used in determining weight of alpaca crias.

The meeting was then called to order by Sara Lewis. Devotions, "Helping Hands," were presented by the Safety Committee, Debbie Collins and Cody Hardesty. The flag pledges were led by Caitlin Roth.

A lesson on swimming safety was presented by Linda Lewis in lieu of the planned trip to Alpine pool.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the president. Ten members answered roll call. Three dollars were coliected from members to buy school supplies for the elimination dinner "basket." Nathaniel Lawler reported that he won a blue ribbon on his rocketry demonstration at State 4-H Day held in Lewis County June 5.

Several members are planning to attend either county or state camps. Because of the very wet conditions, the flower bed at the Memorial Building has not been planted.

The next meeting is at Cathedral Park, on Aug. 2, with a carry-in meal set for 6:30 p.m. All projects, except livestock to be exhibited at the Buckwheat Festival, are to be turned in at that time. The evening is for families, and it is hoped to tour Red Horse Tavern that evening, also.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Since last Sunday was Father's Day, we can't escape being reminded about the "Father Figure" role in our daily lives. I had much time with my own father with a lot of quality times helping him in the barn or in the hay field, picking rocks from the newly fresh-tilled fields, and the many days he devoted to taking me and "Joey" to hundreds of horse shows. Even after a long hard week of work, he still got us up early on Sunday mornings to first take us to church at St. John's and then drive a few hours to horse shows somewhere. He felt that church was very important and that we should go there before the shows. Then he had to hand over a pocket full of money for gas and entry fees, and what did he get in return? The pleasure of watching his little girls win scores of blue ribbons and them being more concerned about his opinion of our performances than even the judge's opinion.

My uncle, Dan Englar, took photos of Joey and me at the State Fair Horse Show in August of 1971 when I was the same age as my Claire is now. I was seated on the top rail of the fence and had the most concerned expression on my face because my Dad gave his verdict about one of the most important rounds of jumping which was "OK," but he didn't think that it was even close to being good enough for that level of competition. But it turned out that the judge had a higher opinion and we won the first blue ribbon ever won by a rider from Garrett County at the State Fair Horse Show.

It was luck that during my whole life I always tried to live up to his high standards. I wish I had been a better daughter for the finest father possible. The old snapshot of him holding me showed his handsome face glowing with joy and love. It was a terrible tragedy that he never had a chance to cuddle my three babies. I know he would have had a wonderful time between 1986 and the present, when he would have had 10 wonderful grandchildren to love and be proud of and share their lives with them.

Of course I regret that he was not here to be "The Father of the Brides" when Carol and I got married. I just saw Spencer Tracy playing the role in the old movie with young Liz Taylor as his daughter. It is a nice comedy, but it pulls at your heartstrings.

Besides missing my father today, of course, I also miss both of my wonderful grandfathers that I had in my life, at least during my teens, and spent much time with them too. Charlie Buckle and Oral Glotfelty were the real thing of the "old-fashioned" grandfathers. They taught me so many things about nature, gardening, and horsemanship, both being horsemen themselves. They didn't ride, but drove horses. They also raised some very fine sons and daughters. But I was blessed with some very strict uncles. For many years I relied upon them to play the role of "daddy" for me. Sadly, most of them are already gone, too. Especially I missed on Father's Day Pappy Dale because he was like the grandfather my children didn't know. The kids learned to make as much fuss with him on Father's Day as a real grandfather. I had to call "Pop" Sussman even if I am not sure if am still his real daughter-in-law.

The Woodmen of the World bus trip to Pittsburgh for the Saturday Pirates game was a success, except for the fact that the Bucs lost the game to the Seattle Mariners. The bus was full and the weather was pleasant. Brother Barry journeyed up from Frederick and was joined by his friend Rick Johnson of Frostburg and cousin Courtney Englar to go with the group. Courtney is a big Orioles fan, but consented to go slumming to a Pirates game.

The twins, Darryl and Elliott, are lucky that they got a market lamb as a 4-H project again this year, along with their hogs. I saw one of the twins taking his lamb on a walk this beautiful sunny morning. It is always a pretty sight, those blonde boys coaxing along a lamb which is so far untrained. It is nice to have some sunshine for a change from the rain. Speaking of rain, I tried to drive back home from Accident yesterday afternoon, and it rained so hard I could barely see to drive. It was a "rain whiteout." If we were not on the mountaintop, we would have had a flood. But the bottom on the north side of Negro Mountain had no rain.

Although I saw some tures over Negro Mountain in the early autumn. It is not any different than my alarm clock of singing birds, even in my New York days, although my apartment in Manhattan only had a handful of trees in the courtyard by my windows–not like here on my family farm.

I don't see how anyone can sleep past the racket they start making as soon as the sun rises during the summer, which is about 5 a.m. This means, of course, as soon as the daylight fades, I must get ready to go to bed. It is sheer habit about my sleep patterns. Most of my life I was so busy and I had to start my day before any normal person would. Even during summer school vacation, I couldn't wait to start my new fabulous day. I always believed that it was an essential wife's duty to make the coffee before the husband got up and it was essential to be up before my small children or babies awoke. Now that is pretty simple because teenagers like to sleep late.

My little Meredith was so taken aback by a new litter of kittens at the Weavers' house that she encouraged our Tigger to go up and father a new litter. She wants to get custody of them. She can forget that. I suspect that Chris and Sherry hope someone will be adoptive parents for the kittens. If you need a kitten, their phone number is 301-245-3942. I understand how my girls feel about kittens. One highlight of my childhood was when our head mother cat, Tinkerbell, had a new litter. She always hid them very well in the hay mows in our big barn. We used to launch a full-blown surveillance campaign to follow her to discover the new kittens. Actually, Tinkerbell was among the first litter of her mother from our first cat, Cuddles, during our childhood. Tinkerbell survived to a ripe old age until I finished college. I still can remember too well how hard I cried when I found her dead on the road. I don't know the father of the Weavers' cat's kittens. I do know our Tigger does not have romance on his mind right now, as he just wants to be by the window, fascinated by the prospect of getting to those birds.

I awoke this Monday to an almost silent dawn. Very few birds wanted to sing in this fog-drenched morning. But later, a few breaks in the big clouds settled in our tableland and allowed some patches of sunshine here and there, so more birds started to sing. It still was only a handful, but it was better than nothing.

I am so glad Father's Day is over. This Monday my girls will be home, but not for long because next week is 4-H camp, and then to band camp. It seems like I never have them more than one or two days now, and then never long enough to achieve a regular routine in our lives. I need very much to feel a real part of my family. Yesterday I called long distance to Washington state to "reach out and touch" my aunt and uncle, Betty and Ralph Hummel. Betty remembers the same cabins at 4-H camp that housed her and her siblings. Next week, her grand-nieces and grand-nephews will be attending camp, as well as her sister's (Dorothy Quaintance) granddaughter from New York state. She pointed out that Uncle Ralph's father was among the CCC workers who built the 4-H camp.

I was happy to be able to wish Uncle Ralph a Happy Father's Day. I forgot to tell

OTC Medicines for Children's Colds

Infants and young children often are vulnerable to the side effects of commonly used medications. Therefore, choosing over-the-counter products wisely can make a difference in how your child feels while being treated for various conditions such as a cold. All children are at risk for developing a cold, but for most, the illness is self-limiting. It is normal for young children to experience 6 to 8 colds a year compared to the average of 2 to 4 colds a year in adults.

For infants younger than 9 months of age with a stuffy nose, saline nasal drops are recommended. Petroleum jelly can be used on the skin just under the nostrils for children of all ages if this area becomes irritated from repeated wiping. Decongestants such as pseudoephedrine are a cornerstone of treating pediatric colds. Decongestant drops are preferred for those over 6 months of age. Antihistamine use in children is controversial. Increased fluids and humidity are preferred for treating coughs instead of using medications in children. For a fever, pediatric formulations of aspirin, acetaminophen, or ibuprofen can be used unless the illness is thought to be viral. In those instances, stick with acetaminophen only.

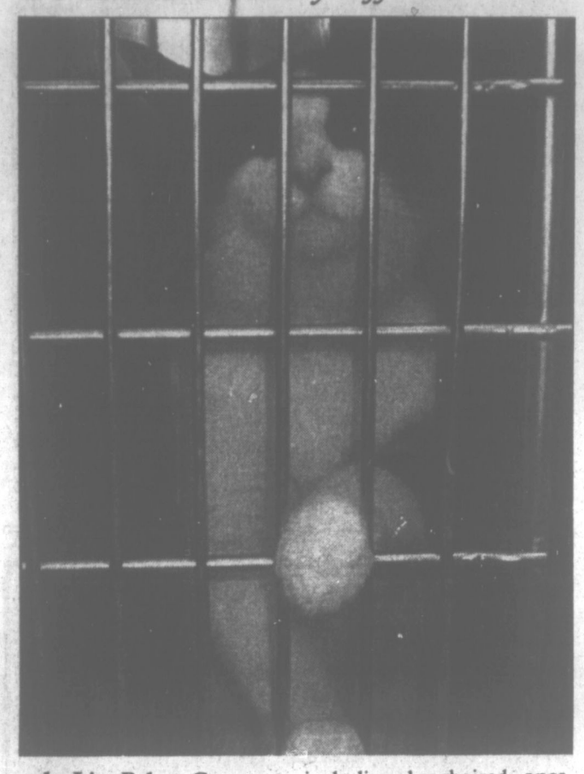
June Is Adopt A Shelter Cat Month; GC Humane Society Offers Advice



by Lisa Baker, Garrett County Humane Society

June has been designated Adopt a Shelter Cat month. Most people know that there are usually plenty of nice cats available at our local shelter. At any given time there are several previously owned cats and strays available for adoption.

Sometimes they have already been vaccinated and spayed or neutered. This means the adoption fee will be a lot less, as the fee is normally applied to the cost of spaying or neutering the adopted animal.

In the last year, there have been all colors and sizes of felines available, including longhaired ones, adults, and kittens. They are also all litter trained, and for the most part, all are friendly.

I own both a dog and four cats, and to this day will tell anyone that my cats are much easier to care for. Maybe that is because they spend most of their time outside. If you live next to a road or in town, then that may not work, so you will need to consider the cost and maintenance of having a litter box for your cat. Cats are also smaller, quieter, eat less, and cost less to alter and vaccinate than dogs.

But they are not as trainable. They seem to do things when they want to. Regardless, I think they make nice pets, and since they take up less room than a dog, you can have several!

When considering getting a cat, review all the pros and cons (if there are any). Then visit your local shelter, view the VeryBestPet Network board at WalMart, or visit www.Petfinder.com. There are plenty of cats out there that need a loving home.

Remember also, the Garrett County Animal Ordinance takes effect July 1. This requires that your cat be licensed. The cost is $3 if it is spayed or neutered, and $15 if it is not. This new ordinance in part is to help curtail the overpopulation problem we have in the county now.

You must show proof of rabies vaccination and spay/neuter certificate when you purchase the license. The cost of the license is small compared to the love and companionship you get from your cat.

Please adopt a shelter cat and save a life! For more information, please call the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553.

Betty that her mother's old rose bush is now starting to bloom. The first frilly pink blossoms appeared on her mother's birthday, June 19, which is also strawberry time in Bittinger. The wild strawberries are a strange variety growing along the big field rock beside our barn. When they ripen, they are pure white. I once saw a variety of white strawberries in a seed catalog called "Alpine." I wonder if that means those on our farm descended from plants imported by my earliest ancestors from Switzerland. I hope so. I am eager to have my girls here so I can get them to see if the white strawberries are ripe.

A few years ago when my frustration was the highest, it was because I could not go back in the back woods where we have a big, wonderful blackberry patch, and where my grandfather ("Pappy") and I spent many August days picking buckets of his favorite food. I transplanted a blackberry plant beside my house. Now it is a big full bush, and I saw many blossoms on it this month. Maybe I will get lucky and have access to my own blackberries.

The longest day of the year was so chilly in my house I wished that I could turn on my furnace. If anyone knows where I could get a decent used oil burner or boiler, I would appreciate it. I heat my house by the hot water system. I am afraid to even try to find a new one or find out how much it would cost.

It is time for class reunions. Charles "Skeeter" Bowman stopped by my house on his way to his reunion. Several classes from Accident High School held their reunion on Friday night at the fire hall in Bittinger. The old Accident High School used to be the same big yellow building in downtown Accident, the elementary school, that his daughter Linda and I first attended. We continued as classmates all the way through our college graduation from the University of Maryland in 1975.

My sister, Carol Bass, along with Doug Stanton attended their class reunion on Saturday evening. Doug had a get-together of some of his classmates and friends at his home in Bittinger on Friday evening.

The crew of ladies from Bittinger who cook meals at the 4-H camp have already been busy with several camps from various counties in Maryland. Mary Lou Smith has been one of the busy ladies.

Today it seems to be trying to rain out the sky so maybe our kids can enjoy a rain-free week at camp. It is hard to imagine a stretch of several days without more rain. This is not the June I remember from my childhood. Of course, June was the best month of summer vacation because it was only the beginning of three months of bliss, which included riding our ponies, lying on the grass, and looking at the clouds and imagining all kinds of things. We would also get a new batch of library books from the bookmobile which used to stop at the end of our lane every week during the summer. Of course, we had to make hay and attend three vacation Bible schools.

We were also very busy with the preparation for the big week at the county fair. A daily bath and grooming sessions for our dairy animals, and then practicing leading them. We also had to set the perfect pose while helping with the mammoth task of canning the products of our garden. We did a few special jars, packing them extra carefully. I believe we were very lucky to be able to really contribute to our family economy. Hard as the work in the hay fields and mows was, we still knew it fed our beloved horses, ponies, and cattle. Anyway, it was pure sensual pleasure being in a barn filled with fresh, newly made, fine, green bales of perfect hay. When we could escape from our chores, we headed for the woods, exploring every inch of the score of square miles of the wild country behind our farm.

In my memory, every day was a sunny day with just occasional thunderstorms. On those rare wet days we still had our barns to play in, building hay forts and hunting kittens. Even if we had to stay inside the house, it was lovely to have time to read as much as I wanted. There were so many books to read and so little time... To me June will always be the embodiment of bliss. I am pretty sure that my own children's childhood was as wonderful as mine was. Their young days were crowded with more suburban activities, such as organized sport teams, soccer, swimming team, and softball, and, of course, television and movies are now a much bigger part of their lives.

As I go along on my journey, the more I regret my failing as a child or a teenager. Every time my girls ask me for money to go on a shopping trip I think that even though I was not a big shopper in my younger days or now either, my needs were in the range of big ticket things, like a good jumping saddle, nice riding boots, and a new set of ski equipment. I shudder to think about my poor parents facing that kind of expense. In fact, it makes me cry. I don't think any child felt more loved than I did, and I hope I can somewhat measure up to the standard my parents set for me.

Now back to the local scene: Torrey Poholsky participated in the American Legion Hillbilly Handball Classic Baseball Tournament in Elkins, W.Va., Saturday and Sunday. Twenty-four teams from several states were involved. Garrett lost to Fairmont but won the game with Charlestown on Saturday and Sunday.

The semi-annual Buckel/Buckle family reunion will be held at the Bittinger Fire Hall on Sunday, July 18, at noon. All relatives and friends are urged to attend and bring lunch. Meat will be provided. Please notify families to put this date on their calendars.

Betty Sacra of Winchester, Va., and Aldina Maestri from Alexandria, Va., are guests this week at the home of Ruth DiPaolo. Elaine Jacobs, Barton, was a Wednesday overnight guest also.

JUNE PROCLAIMED AS NATIONAL HOME OWNERSHIP MONTH – Garrett County commissioners Ernest Gregg, David Beard, and Fred Holliday recently presented a proclamation designating June as National Home Ownership Month. Standing behind the commissioners are Ken Witte, First United Bank & Trust; Cindy Sharon, Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. (GCCAC) Housing Services director; Deb Swiger, GCCAC Homeownership coordinator; Denise Householder, GCCAC Rehabilitation coordinator, Sylvia Guthrie, USDA Rural Development; and Maggie Kroll, M&T Mortgage. Garrett County celebrates a homeownership rate increase from 57% in 1990 to a current rate of 78%, 10 percent above the national average. Many throughout the community are helping to empower Garrett County residents in achieving the "American dream." For more information about home ownership opportunities, persons may call Swiger of GCCAC at 301-334-9431.

Rotary Doll Sale Benefit Slated For Grantsville Days

The Grantsville Rotary Club will host its annual doll sale during this weekend's Grantsville Days celebration, with proceeds going to benefit the new school building fund of the Maryland Salem Children's Trust. The sale will begin at 6 p.m. tomorrow, Friday, June 25, and continue on Saturday as long as supplies last.

Play dolls made by Corolle Dolls of France will be offered at a fraction of their value, according to a spokesperson. "Through the generosity of Corolle Dolls, these tradeshow samples and dolls with damaged packaging can be offered to the buyer at a fraction of the consumer price," the spokesperson said.

Normally, these dolls range in price from $10 to $55, doll accessories from $20 to $70, and doll outfits from $7.50 to $20, but Grantsville Days buyers will have the opportunity to purchase doll outfits for $2, and dolls and their accessories from $5 to $20.

The Grantsville Rotary will also be selling funnel cakes at its Grantsville Days booth. These profits will benefit Grantsville and Somerset County community projects.

The Salem Children's Trust offers education to children from Garrett and Allegany counties who have not been able to succeed in public schools. For additional information regarding the Trust, persons may contact Joyce Sauder at 301-689-8176, ext. 211.

Pastor Sehorne Resigns
VICTORY BAPTIST CHURCH
After 15 years as the founding pastor of the Victory Baptist Church (3173 Hutton Rd, Oakland), Doug Sehorne has felt led of the Lord to step down as Pastor. Pastor Sehorne has written several books including three Bible Commentaries on 1 Peter, Nehemiah and James. The members of VBC want to thank Pastor Sehorne for giving them 15 years of spiritual direction through his consistently rich, straight-forward Bible preaching!
SPECIAL DAY PLANNED
JUNE 27TH, 2004
On Sunday morning, June 27th, 11:00 AM, Pastor Sehorne will preach his last message as Pastor of VBC. If he has been a blessing to you in anyway, we invite you to come and celebrate his 15 years of faithful ministry with us. It would be a great joy to him to see you here!

OAKLAND ROTARY INDUCTS NEW MEMBER – The Oakland Rotary Club recently welcomed new member David J. Mancuso, an investment representative with the Edward Jones Company. He has lived in Swanton for the past six months, but prior to moving there, he spent many summers at Deep Creek Lake. Mancuso reported that his company allows their investment representatives to locate wherever they choose, and he could think of no better place to establish his business than Oakland. Club president Bob Stephens stated that he was excited to have a new member in the club and noted that Mancuso was the fifth new member this year. The Oakland Rotary Club meets on Thursdays at noon in the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Community Services building. For more information, persons may call club secretary Joan Johnson at 301-533-1031. Pictured, left to right, are Mancuso's sponsor, Lou DiCarlo, and Mancuso.

ACCIDENT

ANNUAL 4TH OF JULY CELEBRATION

Accident's annual 4th of July Celebration will be held on Saturday, July 3. A parade through town will kick off the festivities at 11 a.m. Chicken dinners will be served beginning at noon in the Accident fire hall. Bingo will begin at 1:30 p.m. There will be musical entertainment throughout the afternoon and different activities. Anyone interested in donating pies for the celebration is encouraged to do so. The public is invited to join in the daylong festivities.

ACCIDENT AMERICAN LEGION POST 208

A monument to honor all veterans has been erected in the middle of the town of Accident through the cooperation of local citizens and the Accident American Legion Post 208. Ed Bach, masonry teacher at Northern High School, designed the new monument and, with the help of his students, made the monument a reality. This in no way replaces the old monument in the Little League baseball field that was constructed by B.O. Aiken in the mid-1940s to honor WWI and WWII veterans. That monument has been moved to the new site to be honored along with the newly constructed one.

All labor for the new monument was donated, but there is an expected $2,000 expense to be paid to finish the project. Anyone who would like to donate to this cause can do so by sending donations to American Legion Post 208, P.O. Box 208, Accident, MD 21520. All donations will go toward the purchase of a flagpole and brass plaques for each branch of the service, and to memorialize all veterans. Post 208 greatly appreciates all the help in this good cause.

DOWNPAYMENT FOR YOUR DREAM!

President Bush has signed the "American Dream Downpayment Act," have you heard of it or know it might affect you? To begin with, it makes available $200 million for downpayment aid. However, the money is earmarked for those who fit a certain category.

First-time buyers who earn up to eighty percent of an area's median income are eligible to receive $10,000 or six percent of a home's purchase price, whichever is greater! The goal of the act is to help American families achieve the "American Dream" of homeownership, and also to help build stronger communities.

There are other reasons to consider buying a home now the real estate market is strong, but certain factors might make this an ideal time to take advantage of the opportunities. Although mortgage rates should remain historically low, they are sure to rise somewhat from the average rate of 5.8 percent that we saw in 2003.

If mortgage rates rise, lenders might raise their credit standards or even require higher downpayments. If you wait too long, you might be "priced out" of a loan, even with the good news of the American Dream Downpayment Act.

If you're considering buying a home, but feel confused about your financing options, contact a real estate professional who can explain the details in a simple and meaningful way. Turn your dreams into reality!

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

CHILD CARE

Little Shadows

I saw a young mother with eyes full of laughter
And two little shadows came following after.

Wherever she moved, they were always right there
Holding onto her skirt, hanging onto her chair.
Before her, behind her — an adhesive pair.

"Don't you ever get weary as, day after day, your two little tagalongs get in your way?"

She smiled as she shook her pretty young head,
And I'll always remember the words that she said.

It's good to have shadows that run when you run,
That laugh when you're happy and hum when you hum —
For you only have shadows when your life's filled with sun.

LAZY EYE?

Subjects Wanted For Research

Janine Mendola, Ph.D., in the WVU Department of Radiology, is using a new technique called functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI) to study visual perception in people with normal vision and with amblyopia. Amblyopia (or a "lazy eye" problem) results in poor vision in one eye. Many people with lazy eye wore a patch over one eye as a child. The study will require you to lie in an MRI scanner for 1-2 hours while images of your brain are made as you view pictures on a screen. We are looking for healthy subjects with a lazy eye problem between the ages of 18 years old and 35 years old.

You will receive $70.00 and a free picture of your brain for a 2.5 hour time commitment

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

LIGHTING A CHARCOAL BARBECUE

Q – When I try to light charcoal, the fire usually goes out right away. Is there a better way to do this?

A – When you've got a big bag of charcoal in your hands, it's easy to forget that it takes two things to make a fire: fuel and oxygen. Chances are that the reason your fires keep going out is that they're not getting enough oxygen. Proper ventilation is half the battle, and when you're standing around an outdoor grill, it's the part that's often overlooked.

There has to be adequate room to draw in fresh air from underneath the fire. Some grills have rotatable vent holes, and those need to be fully open when first starting the fire. If you have a set of bellows from your fireplace, those sometimes can be used to help circulate air. Later on, with the fire fully going, the rotatable vent holes can be partially closed to reduce the fire – by reducing the oxygen intake.

Some types of charcoal have been manufactured containing a mildly flammable solvent to help the coals light better; that type costs more than regular charcoal. However, if the air supply is closed off, even that won't ensure a good fire.

For ordinary charcoal, people squirt on some charcoal-lighting fluid, which is a mixture of flammable solvents and non-flammable diluting agents. On the outside of the container it only says "contains petroleum distillates," but it doesn't say which ones or how much of each. The proper way to use it is to squirt some on unheated charcoal, and wait a few minutes while the useless solvents evaporate and the good solvents soak into the charcoal. With plenty of air, charcoal treated this way will usually light successfully.

When a fire isn't burning very well, instead of providing better air, there is a tremendous temptation to squirt a stream of charcoal lighting fluid onto the half-burning coals. Knowing full well that people are going to do so, the manufacturers of charcoal-lighting fluid make their product "idiot proof" by diluting the flammable chemicals with benign and useless chemicals. Every manufacturer has to build in precautions to avoid getting sued when a product is not used "as directed." For charcoal-lighter, the most important precaution is to make sure that a line of fire will not run up the stream being squirted and cause the whole can to explode. Therefore, charcoal-lighter is manufactured to have a net negative heat value, so that it won't explode.

Compare this with fuel oil or gasoline, which have very high net positive heat values and are intended to explode.

Before you spend a lot of money on gimmicks like fancy charcoal-lighting fluid, make sure you're providing a suitable pathway for air to get at the bed of coals.

Dr. Sheahen is a physicist who was educated at MIT. He lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.
